that the scatte is standing by American sugar and tobacco growers. Manager Cutler was asked what would be the effect if the Philippines were to become a territory of the Unit-ed States, and he replied that of course would place them on a par with Arizona and New Mexico. But then, there is no immediate fear of anything of that kind being done.

GOVERNOR CUTLER GLAD.

GOVERNOR CUTLER GLAD, Gov. Cutler commented thus: "Char-ity begins at home and I have always favored attending to our home indus-tries first and then taking care of the Philippines. I am glad that the senate has defented the Philippine sugar tar-iff and was surprised that it ever passed the house. It will result in great benefit to the sugar industries of the west and will encourage the rais-ing of sugar beets and will eventually mean the establishment of more sugar factories in the west." factories in the west."

W. S. McCORNICK.

W. S. McCorick said, "There is but one view to take in Utah; it was em-inently proper for the senate commit-te to do, and it will add materially to the value of the beet sugar interests throughout the intermounain country. I believe that the consideration of the proposed bill added largely to the de-pression of sugar stocks. The failure proposed bill added largely to the de-pression of sugar stocks. The failure of the legislation will greatly encourage the beet sugar industry, and have a buoyant effect on its stocks. Its suc-cess would have brought the Philippine sugars in direct competition with all western sugar interests and with dis-pstrous results."

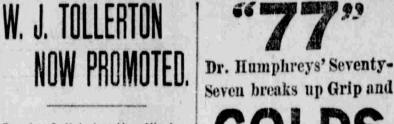

WHAT BROKERS SAY.

E. L. Burton, the well known broker, said, in response to questions from a "News" representative: "My opinion has always been that this is not so much a Philippine proposition as it is a fear of what might happen in the sugar markets of the United States if sugar markets of the United States if the Independent Sugar company of San Francisco should get to refining Ha-walian sugar there. This company will handle about 80 per cent of the Ha-walian product, and has been getting 10 years contracts from the growers in these islands. Now, should these sug-prs be shipped to San Francisco for refining, the question arises: Will not this sugar be distributed in the western country, and thus invade the beet sugar territory? And in this event, what will become of prices? That is what will hurt our sugars. will hurt our sugars.

will become of prices? That is what will hurt our sugars. "Then there is another thing. The low extraction from the beet this has season has been a source of depression in the industry; but fortunately this will not be permanent. This was due to the withering of the leaves by a pest which appeared about the same time as the tomato blight. The larger and broader the leaf, the greater the secre-tion of saccharine matter; and when the leaves are in any way affected, the yield in sugar is also affected. More-over, there is agitation in certain dis-tricts among the farmers or growers for higher prices, and while most fac-tories have the usual contracts, some have not signed up within 50 per cent of the proposed national legislation will not affect the market, and in fact its passage would not have affected it either locally. This would have requir-ed time. It is the anticipation of leg-islation which affects stocks." Mr. Burton expressed the opinion that what American sugar growers had most to fear was competition with West Indian and European sugars. He dit was voted to continue at the old schedule. They are receiving 34 cents per hour for nine hours while helpers are getting from $1 a day up.

that what American sugar growers had most to fear was competition with West Indian and European sugars. He did not think sugar growing in Mexico would prove profitable on account of the indisposition of the natives to work. seeing that nature had provided them largely with food, and clothes down in that country don't go for much.

WILL TURN TO SUGAR. John C. Cutler, Jr., the stock broker, said: "The shelving of the Philippine tariff bill will relieve the minds of peo-ple who are interested in the beet sugar industry, and the investing public will. again turn its' attention to sugar stocks. Locally, the market already dis-plays a better tone, and there is a plays a better tone, and there is a strengthening of sugar stocks all along the line."
