DOORWAY. The Washington Monument Fin-

Washington, 6.—The long expected completion of the Washington monument obelisk was accomplished this afternoon by setting in place the marble capstone and its pyramidal apex of aluminum. The ceremonles were few and simple, an elaborate celebration of the event being reserved for Washington's birthday. Shortly after 2 o'clock Col. Thomas L. Casey, government engineer in charge, and his assistant's Capt. Davis, U.S.A., and Bernard B. Green, clvil engineer, together with master mechanic McLaughlin and several workmen, standing on the narrow platform built around the slopingmarble roof near the summit, proceeded to set the capstone (weighing 3,300 ibs.), which was suspended from a quadrupon of heavy joists, supported by a platform and towering 40 feet above them. As soon as the capstone was set the American fing was unfurled overhead and a salute of 21 cnns fired by a battery in the White it use lot far below. The sound of capts also came up faintly from the crowd of spectators gathered around the base of the monument.

The boy was killed instantly and the mother and little girl seriously injured. There were rumors of accidents in other parts of this city and Allegheny, but nothing definite has yet been received. Murphy Moving Again—The Taking the Pledge.

PITTSBURG, 7.—Francis Murphy has inaugurated another temperance revival in this city, which promises to excel that of eight years ago. Chamberlain advised the liberals of Glasgow to make municipal contests political, and so prepare the way for the parliamentary contest. The constitutional papers are devoting much attention to the revolt of radicals against the single-seat principle. The Parnellites calculate they will be able to return 65 members to the House as soon as the redistribution bill goes into effect. The United Ireland declares the redistribution bill will produce the most momentous change in the Irish constitution that has ever been proposed by Parliament, and says it will lead to the final triumph of the national cause.

In consequence of the foreign office having ordered the government of Hong Kong to refuse to allow the French fleet to take coal or provisions at that port, Prime Minister Ferry has asked for an explanation. He reminds the Foreign Secretary of State that, under the arrangement for the French blockade of Formosa, France refrained from searching neutral ships on the high seas on condition that England should not prevent the French fleet from victualing at any point. It is reported that Granville has held that this agreement stipulated they enforcement of the foreign enlistment act of Hong Kong, inclusive of the interdict against coaling. The misunderstanding is widening the breach between Fngland and France.

DEATH OF THE POSTMASTER GENERAL OF ENGLAND.

England has had to mourn the loss of her Postmaster General, the Right Honorable Henry Fawcett, M. P. Such she does in all sincerety, for he was a man among men. One who in the language of Shakespeare "gave you an assurance of a man." He was professor of political economy in the University of Cambridge. He was educated at Kings College School, London, and at Trinity Hall, Cambridge, of which he was a scholar among its distinguished pupils, graduating with high mathematical honors, as seventh. In 1856, he was elected to a fellowship the same year, and applied himself wrangler with intense ardor to the study of political economy.

For a short time all went well with him, but some two years after taking his

In response to a telegram asking for troops to quell the riot among the striking hatters of South Norfolk, Conn., Governor Waller sent word to advise with Adjt. Gen. Couch, and if necessary the Governor himself will go to the scene.

opened the door of the ministry to Mr. Fawcett who were then offered and accepted the Post-Master-Generalship, with a seat in the Privy Council on May 1880. The advent of Mr. Fawcett to power immediately introduced a new rigiem with St. Martiu's-le-Grand. 1851 not content to be a political, or ornamental chief of this department of the State, Mr. Fawcett threw all his energies into the actual working of the office; and where his predecessors were content to take their keys from the permanent heads of the departments he declined to accept the journals of officialism as a guide for his own conduct. Thus it happened that his fresh and independent judgment within one year had introduced many improvements and reforms into the service. The SECOND GLADSTONE ADMINISTRATION,

PENNY SAVINGS BANK SCHEME, if we may so call it, or rather savingby means of postage stamps, was one of the first reforms of his administration. That attracted general notice; but I must omit many of his reforms that have been laid before me, and will just speak of the "crowing glory" of Mr. Fawcett's administration of the post-office department, namely the office department, namely the

PARCEL POST.

This will ever be associated with the name of Henry Fawcett as indellibly as in the penny post with Rowland Hill. It had often been in contempla-Hill. It had often been in contemplation, but it was reserved for Mr. Fawcett to carry the idea into practice, reconciling the interests of the railway companies with those of the public, and making the government become

It may safely be said that the death of no statesman, not even that of Lord Beaconsfield, has within recent times called forth such widespread sympathy and expression of regret from persons of all shades of political opinion.

The question is asked on every hand,

"HOW WILL HIS FATHER RECEIVE IT?" Nelsonville, O., 6.—Relief for the destitute striking miners of Hocking valley is now (coming from quarters wholly unlooked for. The cowboys of Texas send $150 to the central relief were entertained for him that the committee shock would be too great. The family circle alone were able to appreciate the exceeding nobility of mind and heart, the sweetnesss and cheerfulness of temper which suffused his darkened fife with radiant sunshine. It was simply impossible to be dull or dispirited in the company of one who was himself, despite his affliction, never dull or downhearted. How heavily he felt the burden of his maimed life, probably the world will never know. He lived the modest frugal life of a man of letters, perfectly free from hock would be too great. The family

It was impossible not to feel proud of being able to point to at least one distinguished man in England who had the courage to be "a poor man," to despise wealth and petty ambition, and who, while serving the State with credit to himself and his country, yet remained to the end a modest, unassuming, middle-class English gentleman. His career has been a striking one. His keen, logical faculty, his strong-brained common sense, his intellectual intrepidity, his fearless honesty and his high character for personal interrity, and exhaustless industry, would have made him a great power in any legislative assembly, even had, he started in hife without the warmest sympathy in his favor. He strove to make every one around him and he was wont to say, in his good humored way, that really, his infirmity was a vast advantage to him, for it saved him the trophle of reading books and writing letters. Even when on the threshold of his career he was upparently doomed to life-long helplessness. He resolved with that gay audacity that he would become a great statesman, and a great administrator. Both Mr. and Mrs. Fawcett were staupch advocates for woman suffrage. Mrs. Fawcett is a lady well known as taking an active part in all subjects in which the social status of woman is concerned, and her noble husband lent his voice and cordial support to the same laudable movement.
