STRUCK A HORSE.

The Animal Carried or the Forewheeler from Ogden to this City.

This morning Union Pacific passenger train, which left Ogden at 2 o'clock and arrived here at 3:10 had a singular experience.

It appears that at the Junction city road track the team ran into a team of horses. One of the animals was struck by the engine pilot and the engineer thought the animal was killed, but on getting him off the tracks he discovered that his companion was still alive. The horses were found lying upon the top of the snowbank apparently not much hurt. Efforts were promptly made to release it when it was discovered that the team's hoss was dead.

After brief consultation it was decided that it could not recover and that in view of that fact it had better be sold. An officer accordingly fired a shot into the brain, killing it instantaneously. Later on the team was carried to the cemetery to be interred.
