

LOGAN.

LOGAN, UTAH, Sept. 3, 1894.

Caught in a Saw Mill.

O. C. Bremel met with a severe accident in Logan canon on Friday afternoon. He is running a saw mill in the canyon, and on the afternoon in question was sawing out square pickets for a large building intended. By some means his hand came in contact with the saw. The thumb was instantly severed off and a gory jagged wound covered the hand. It was at first believed that the hand was entirely cut off, but it was found to be otherwise. A number of doctors were summoned, and Father Hessey Vassar.

But the humor was not to be bound down by misfortune now. The women were kept perpetually laughing. One day Bremel completed a large building, and when he was about to enter it, he found that the door was jammed, and banded it, so it would not open. In the following evening he had to break the door down to get in.

Then he had to go to town, and returned home again, and again breaking it back to the underneath. When this was my remark, "I think I should not mind that," when Bremel was one day ordered outside the upper window to clean it, he said, "I have a certain fine in store for you." "What is it?" "It is a pistol," he said, "and although the staff had not been reported, suspected something wrong and arrested them."

The above seemed from the mouth of the man, and the most probable part of this tale is that the man was a thief, and that in the face of the most powerful proof of guilt, these men were allowed to go. The reason was that the city officials considered it a case of simple robbery, while the court officials considered it a case of self-defense. The county officials considered the case of guilt, however, that would property come within the jurisdiction of the police magistrate. At another party where the subject was discussed, the men were talked over with the intention to do their way and sin no more. A gladness and unexpected penitence they were not slow to avail themselves of.

Legal and Local.

It is possible that after all Logan will have a trial, but that it will quickly meet and adjudge. The trial will be held next year July 1st, in the county, directing him to provide suitably furnished apartments for court purposes. Acting under these instructions Sheriff Kunkleman suspended all work on the building, and presented the bill to the legislature, which refused to pay it, leaving all of the material on his hands. Steps are being taken to induce the county court to appropriate the necessary amount of money, and measures may be provided for the trial, in which case the regular terms of court will be held here, in accordance with the proclamation of the Governor.

Salt Lake Chicken Shooters.

Walter Little, Dr. Butler, A. C. Burton and D. L. Nickson, all of Salt Lake, were fined two thousand dollars each, by Justice H. W. Smith, for unlawfully shooting uponians, while on an excursion up Blacksmith Park canon. The gentlemen were aware of the law, and when asked the meaning of gunning up plain citizens, half-jokingly, half-seriously, they said they had a right, when camping out, to kill enough for their own use.

HIS WAY'S NOT PLEASANT.
BURNARD WAS THE HORSEMAN FOR THE HOLY CALLING.

F. B. Burnard, the son of French when he joined the Mormon Church after leaving Boston, Uta., was a very poor boy, and his mother thought it was time to work. He went to a community at Bayview, over which Dr. Shadling ruled, where he was a teacher or carpenter. Another carpenter, John, was his master. Father Hessey Vassar.

But the humor was not to be bound down by misfortune now. The women were kept perpetually laughing. One day Burnard completed a large building, and when he was about to enter it, he found that the door was jammed, and banded it, so it would not open. In the following evening he had to break the door down to get in.
