

New Star Rises In The South

President Castro Believes That the End is Near and Picks His Successor in Gen. Alcantara. His Chief-of-Staff Who is a Graduate of the United States Military Academy.

NORFOLK, Va.—Authoritative reports from the seat of government of the Venezuelan republic state that President Cipriano...

Gen. Alcantara is a man in the prime of life. Coming from one of the oldest families of his country, he commands a high position in the social world of south America.

Much interest will be manifested by this country in this political revolution in Venezuela, especially in army circles, as Gen. Alcantara is a graduate of the United States military academy, having been sent there by special request of his government to study the American military methods taught at West Point.

CURIOS CENTIPEDES WITH HEADLIGHTS.

Mr. C. W. Anderson and Mr. H. P. C. Melville, two officers of the department of lands and mines sent out by the government of British Guiana, have made some interesting discoveries in the country mapped out by the award of the king of Italy in the British Guiana-Brazil boundary dispute two years ago.

They started from Georgetown, Demerara, on January 25 of this year, accompanied by an Esau Indian cook and four Aravak boys, and after a most successful trip returned safely on Sept. 12, their absence having lasted some eight months.

At the village of Kamawavang they found Jeremlah, a great chief, a character whose delight it is to teach his people in the alphabet, and teach to them a fine bleached church which he has built. Two of his sons were with the expedition, and these, with a fine ferretfulness of filial propriety, sent for the "old man."

He duly appeared, attired in a garment which at a considerable distance were the aspect of a Roman toga, but on nearer inspection proved to be an ancient macintosh. This was his robe of state, put on in honor of the white men.

His conversation, however, turned out to be confined to the words "Morning morning," and to a recitation of the letters of the alphabet.

Descending to Iroing in corals, or native "dig-outs," the travelers found insects became a prominent feature of life. "Lug-out," the travelers found insects became a prominent feature of life.

A most curious luminous centipede was discovered in the forest country. The animal, which was two or three inches long, bore a red light in its head, and a series of eleven or twelve white phosphorescent spots along its body, one to each segment.

NO CASE OF PNEUMONIA ON RECORD.

We do not know of a single instance where a cough or cold resulted in pneumonia or consumption when Foley's Honey and Tar had been taken. It cures coughs and colds perfectly, so do not take chances with some unknown preparation which may contain opiates, which cause constipation, a condition that retards recovery from a cold.

SIX BEST SELLING BOOKS For Month of October.

According to reports from the leading book sellers of the country, the six books which have sold best in the order of demand during the month are:

famous yacht, the Restaurador, during the period of the Jamestown exposition, to be held on the shores of Hampton Roads, near Norfolk, in 1907.

It will be remembered by readers who keep posted on the yachting news of the world, that the Atlanta, Jay Gould's famous floating palace, was sold after his death, to the United States government, then rebought by Gould's son at the close of the Spanish war, only to be sold again to the Venezuelan government.

The press of this country as well as that of the entire world have disapproved almost every move of the Venezuelan government and its president, and Castro has now dropped the leading role of a storm center, but remains a picturesque personality.

He lives his presence at the Jamestown Ter-Centennial exposition, in his beautiful yacht, will add greatly to the brilliancy and interest of the scene on Hampton Roads, where the Restaurador should be anchored in the midst of the most spectacular naval pageantry that the world has ever seen.

In the event of Castro's death, however, Gen. Alcantara will in all probability take his place in the visit to the United States. He will be warmly received at the exposition, where many of his old army friends will be on duty, and his reception is assured to be both cordial and sincere.

CONTROLLER METZ ON EXPENSIVE MUNICIPAL SERVICE

I am fully convinced that the legislature, on the one hand, at the instance of the very men who are making the greatest efforts for municipal ownership and operation of everything in sight, and, on the other hand, of well meaning advocates of civil service and other reforms, could not, if they tried, put any more stumbling blocks in the way of the efforts of the city authorities to the extension of the principles of municipally owned and operated public utilities.

Discussion regarding the future of trunk line railroads in this country has grown with optimistic expectancy since E. H. Harriman's recent public assertion that we are entering upon an era of unprecedentedly competitive railroad construction.

The young man fresh from college or a technical school may be able to pass at the top of a list in a civil service examination. The practical man who has done the kind of work required of him for years and knows of American life leads all others.

They would be near the bottom of the list; but the man who employs them knows their efficiency, and the practical man in charge of the city's operations knows it.

of American life leads all others. It is there you will find the practical, skilled man who will make the pace.
