HAYWOOD IS READY FOR TRIAL

Illness of Saturday Has Passed Away and His Condition Is Again Normal.

WORKING HARD FOR A JURY.

Judge Wood Determined to Secure One -Hawley Will Open for the State And Richardson for Defense.

Boise, Ida., une 2 .- The work of securing a jury in the case of William D. Haywood, charged with the murder of former Gov. Steunenberg, will be resumed tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, unless the prisoner has a relapse. Today Haywood is himself lapse. Today Haywood is himself again. Although a little drawn and pale as a result of the medicine and the opiates administered to relieve him from the acute pain which he suffered yesterday morning, he appeared to be in his normal condition. He was out early in front of the courthouse and walked in the sun, afterwards sitting with members of his family among the pleasant surroundings of well-kept lawns and rose bushes fragrant with blossoms.

Judge Fremont Wood has stated that he is determined a jury shall be secured tomorrow if possible. Forty-four talesmen remain of the venire of 61 summoned last week. Only one more peremptory challenge can be exercised and this lies with the defense, the prosecution having exhausted its 10 peremptory challenges on Friday. This leaves two men to qualify, if the defense should see fit to exercise its last challenge. That they will do so is admitted by counse! but it is not expected that there will be much difficulty in qualifying the two men out of the talesmen yet to be examined. Should this not be done within the regular hours, it is quite probable that Judge Wood will hold a night session. again. Although a little drawn and r hours, it is quite probable that Wood will hold a night session.

CASE FOR THE STATE. With a jury secured before court adjourns tomorrow night, the case for the state will be opened by James H. Hawley, leading counsel, on Tuesday morning. This, the first gun in the real engagement, will be a lengthy recital of the position taken by the state of Idaho, in the effort to prove that Haywood, together with Moyer, Pettibone, Slmpkins and, Orchard, were responsible for the death of Frank Steunenberg on the night of December 30, 1905.

This opening address to the jury will be the first official outlining of the case the prosecution hope to prove. Ever since the arrest of the three men, Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone, spec-ulation has been rife and innumerable statements, more or less well founded in fact, have been published. It is, however, true that except in the most general way no authoritative statement has been given out.

ORCHARD'S CONFESSION.

It is now nearly 16 months since Harry Orchard, who by his own confession, it is alleged, is the assassin of former Gov. Steunenberg, made a sworn statement implicating what is colled the "inner circle" of the Western Federation of Miners in the plot to murder Steunenberg and in a series of crimes extending over many years of the history of labor and mining troubles in Idaho. Within a few days after Orchard made this statement, Moyer, the president of the Western Federation of Miners: Haywood, the secretary and treasurer of the organization, and Pettibone, a member, were arrested in Denver on extradition warrants and brought to this state on a special train under circumstances that have aroused much discussion since the arrest and which have been carried the arrest and which have been carried to the highest court in the country in order that the rights of the prisoners night be preserved.

LITTLE KNOWN OF CONTENTS. Intimation of what Orchard has stated in his confession has come from stated if his confession has come from one source and another and from time to time in the last year, but it may be stated positively that very little is known of the contents of the confession which will figure, it is stated, as the most sensational feature of the case against Haywood the first of the prisoners charged with the murder to be placed upon trial.

CORROBORATIVE EVIDENCE.

It is believed that the state has in reserve much to corroborate Orchard's testimony. Orchard will be a witness, but counsel for the state do not propose to rely upon his evidence. Every point bearing on Haywood's connection with the actual murder of Steunenberg must, the prosecution openly state, be corroborated before they can hope to prove their case. In the work state, be corroborated before they can hope to prove their case. In the work of securing this corroboration the Pinkerton detective agency has figured largely. It may be said that the best men of their force have been engaged on it for the last 12 months. Captain "Jim" McParland, famous as the principal figure in many detective stories of real life within the last 20 years, now in charge of the western division of the Pinkerton agency, has directed the work. He now makes the statement that he believes he has a complete case.

THE DEFENSE BUSY.

On the other hand, the defense of Haywood has been as busily at work as the prosecution. Other scores of detectives have followed every clew and every intimation of what the Pinkerton agency was doing. A large amount of money, estimated to be as much as $500,000, has been subscribed by the members of the Western Federation of Miners, an organization with 75,000 members, and by other labor organizations throughout the country.

PROPAGANDA FOR DEFENSE. The propaganda in behalf of the pris-oners. Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone, has been widespread and active, and much sympathy has been aroused. The best legal counsel has been secured in their behalf, and six lawyers are daily in court actively conducting their case, while two or three others are in re-serve. Counsel for the defense claim that Orchard's implication of their serve. Counsel for the defense claim that Orchard's implication of their clients was made out of whole cleih, and that the Western Federation of Miners had nothing to do with the Steunenberg assassination. It is charged that what is known as the Mine Owners' association, which has fought the Western Federation for many years, is behind the effort to discredit the officers of the federation, and further that they will be able to disprove every statement made by Orchard on the stand and in his confession, which, it is claimed, is a fabrication built up to shield himself and secure immunity from the consequences of his munity from the consequences of his

OPENING FOR DEFENSE.

E. F. Richardson, a prominent attorney of Denver, will open for the defense, but it is understood that it has been agreed that the case for the defense will not be shown until after the case for the prosecution is all in. It may, therefore, be several weeks before Mr. Richardson delivers his opening address. It is conceded that the introduction of the evidence for the state, and especially the restimony of point. This will mean probably that the state will not be able to conclude under three weeks, or possibly 30 days. The case for the defense will take equally as long. It may therefore be estimated that the case will last 60 days after the opening tomorrow—if, indeed, a jury has been secured by that time. Sixteen days of actual work has been spent in the effort to secure a jury. Counting the adjournments, the case has now been going on one month. QUALIFYING JURYMEN.

This work of qualifying jurymen has been tedious and remarkable chiefly on account of the latitude permitted to counsel on both sides in conducting their examination. Nearly 200 talesmen have been examined, the main difficulty being to secure a reisdent of the county who has not formed an opinion. Fremont Wood, the presiding judge, is trying his first important murder trial. The charge has been made by the supporters of the prisoners that the state did not intend to give the men a fair trial, and it has evidently been the determination of the judge to prove at the outstart that the utmost fairness must be expected throughout the trial. In fact, the detail as to the life of the talesmen under examination to which counsel for the state and defense have been permitted to go without objection on the part of the court, has been a matter of comment. It has at least brought the expressed conviction on every side that if the case is conducted throughout with a similar impartiality no charge of unfairness can be sustained.

HAYWOOD'S APPEARANCE.

QUALIFYING JURYMEN.

HAYWOOD'S APPEARANCE.

Haywood, the first of the prisoners to be tried on the charge of the murder of Steunenberg, is a man of impressive physical appearance. It was, therefore, a matter of surprise when on Saturday it was announced that the prisoner was too ill to appear in court. The physicians who were called in were at first alarmed. Haywood was suffering great agony and was ed in were at first alarmed. Haywood was suffering great agony and was at times in convulsions and unconscious. Opiates were administered, together with other medicines, and a further examination showed that there was nothing serious the matter. Throughout the case so far, Haywood has been a close observer of every detail and has consulted with his counsel on every point. While a strong man, his surroundings and the tedious progress of the case have told man, his surroundings and the tedi-ous progress of the case have told upon the man's nervous system. Since his arrest he has been accustomed to take a great deal of exercise. For the last three weeks he has failed to play his customary game of quoits in the jail-yard or to walk on the lawn. At the same time, he has been a heavy eater, and the physicians say that the nerve strain and failure to observe the ordinary rules of health brought on a congestion resulting in observe the ordinary rules of health brought on a congestion resulting in irritable headaches. The congestion has now been relieved, and it is thought that all cause for uneasiness has been removed.

One of the possible delays after the jury box has been filled is the inclination on the part of counsel on both sides to go very carefully over the record of the men who have so far qualified. A number of detectives have been at work on this, and it is stated that affidavits have been secured and may be used to show that the court should reopen the examination of two or three men now in the

the court should reopen the examina-tion of two or three men now in the jury box on account of public expres-sion of opinion at some time since the arrest of the prisoners. No admis-sion along this line will be made by counsel, however, and it may be that the affidavits are not suffriently strong to warrant the move.

JUDGMENT FOR EUGENIE.

Paris, June 2.—The ill-feeling of the French masses toward the former Empress Fugenie, widow of Napoleon III, has been strikingly illustrated. The exempress, who, since her return from exile, has divided her time between the Herel Continental in Paris, where she exile, has divided her time between the Hotel Continental in Paris, whence she ceuld look over the gardens of the Tuilleres, where she once reigned supreme, and the watering resorts of the Riviera, some months ago brought suit to recover a large number of articles now housed in the French national museums, on the ground that they had been the "personal" property of her husband and were of "no historic and little intrinsic value." The case attracted no attention at the time and practically went by default, but when the court decided in the empress' favor a tremendous outery was raised. The popumendous outery was raised. The popumendous outery was raised. The popular newspapers took the matter up: the empress was called an "adventuress," any many of the old stories prejudicial to her fame were revived.

The Matin, under the caption "Au Voleur" ("Stop Thief!") investigated the empress' claim and found that the articles given her by the court included gifts to Napoicon III by sovereigns and foreign states—priceless tapestries, paintings and other objects of art, and, what most aroused the ire of the populace, some relics of the great Napoleon. The experts employed by the paper appraised the value of the "alunder" at close to a million dollars. The result is that the government, in deference to the clamor, has formally entered an appeal against the decision.

LIGHTNING STRIKES BALLOON

Rome, June 2.—A tragic incident took place today during a review of the troops by King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena. As a part of the maneuvers, a military balloon was sent up to a height of 700 feet, with Capt. Utilivelli in the car. A storm which had been coming the history with the capt.

SNOW IN NEW YORK.

New York, June 2.—Snow fell in New York today. The flakes did not fall as snow all the way to the pavements, but, coming from a colder temperature, they swirled about the tops of the skyscrapers and, before dissolving, added a midwinter touch to the most remarkable June 2 that New Yorkers have known. At the warmest moment of the day the temperature was officially recorded as 51 degrees. At 10:20 a, m, the mercury had dropped to 45. At 8 o'clock tonight it was 47.

PARISIANS ENRAGED AT

plan of the proceedings at the second peace conference probably will follow closely the procedure of the first congress, held in 1899, Practically nothing has been worked out in advance. The arrangements up to the present time simply cover the opening ession, when M. Uelidoff, the Russian ambassador to France, will call the conference to order and make an address extending his sovereign's greet-dress extending his sovereign's greetings to the delegates. Dr. Jonkheer D. A. W. Van Tets Van Gourdain, the Dutch minister for foreign affairs, will reply in an address of welcome on helalf of Queen Wilhelmina. Thereafter it will remain for the conference to decide how it will proceed.

It is safe to assume, however, that the general line of procedure of the former conference will be duplicated. The first thing in order will be the appointment of committees to consider the various subjects inscribed upon the Russian program. These will hardly number more than five. Unless the question of the reduction or limitation of armaments is injected into the proceedings at the outset, in which event the main struggle may be at once precipitated, the plenary body probably will not meet again for 10 days or a fortnight; in order that the committees may have an opportunity to prepare will not meet again for 10 days or a fortnight; in order that the committees may have an opportunity to prepare reports for submission. In general, it is not expected that the full conference will meet more than once a week until the work of the committees justifies more frequent sessions.

The opening sessions, it is expected, will be public to the extent, at least, of admitting a few distinguished guests and press representatives, but the sessions of the conference and of the committees will be secret.

The question of giving out a public statement of the progress made will be decided by the conference itself.

In 1899 Russia attempted to shroud the proceedings in mystery and secrecy, but after a fortnight it was found that this course led to the publication of so many mischievous rumors that several semi-official statements were issued. This year many of the delegates, realizing the advantage of stopping the mouths of the sensation-mongers, favor the issuance, daily if possible, of a brief semi-official statement. The French language, as in 1899, will be the official language, as in 1899, will be the official language of the conference, although the advent of the South Americans and the growing influence of English may lead to some relaxation of the rule with regard to the debates, and may result in a compromise such as was arranged at the peace conference. the debates, and may result in a com-promise such as was arranged at the peace conference at Portsmouth, whereby the protocols, or minutes, were inscribed in both French and English, although the French text was to be regarded as official in case of dis-pute.

to be regarded as official in case of dispute.

The government's official entertainment of the delegates will not be lavish but rather will be in the same good taste as its attitude with reference to the program. Nothing will be arranged which could in any way interfere with the work of the conference. Parliament has appropriated 100,000 guiden. ($40,000), for the reception of the country's guests, but this covers the expenses in connection with the sittings of the hall of the knights. In addition the government will give an entertainment, the nature of which has not been definitely determined, except that it will not be an evening reception. More probably it will take the form of a day trip or excursion to some interesting historical spot. The municipality will give a formal reception. Queen Wilhelmina out of her privy purse will also entertain the delegates as a body. In 1899 she received them in the old royal palace at Amsterdam; but this year she will offer her hospitality at Hetloo, her country seat, about an hour's run from The Hague.

Beyond these official functions there will be much private entertaining by the Dutch aristocracy, and among the diplomats themselves. In addition, to the delegates will not lack for distraction in their idle moments. The city is almost ideal in the summer. It lies picturesquely in a low green land-scape, threaded with canals and dotted with characteristic Dutch windmills, and is always cooled by the breezes of the sea, two miles away. The streets are quiet and the homes and villas of the Dutch aristocracy, bearing testimony to the fortunes amassed in the East Indies, give it an air of elegant cosmopolitanism. Minister Hill is exmony to the fortunes amassed in the East Indies, give it an air of elegant cosmopolitanism. Minister Hill is extremely anxious that the ceremony of the laying of the cornerstone of the palace of peace, to which Andrew Carnegie has subscribed $1,500,000, shall take place before the conference adjourns. The site of the building has been chosen in a park, called the Benoordenhoustche Peider, but the plans have not yet been definitely approved.

The lowest estimate of the duration of the conference is six weeks, and the belief is that it will be in session between two and three months.

BRITISH DELEGATES. BRITISH DELEGATES.

London. June 2.—Although The Hague conference will meet within a fortnight, the British delegates have not yet been instructed as to the attitude they shall maintain. This delay in notifying the delegates is the result of the heavy parliamentary program, which keeps the members of the cabinet busy, and the difficulties the government has had since the collapse of the Irish council bill.

Even Prime Minister Campbell-Bannerman's proposal for a reduction in

expenditures for armaments has not yet been outlined, and while those members of the government favoring discussion of the subject still maintain that it should be brought up, there is a strong feeling that after all it might be better to drop the matter or leave it for some other power to introduce.

the question has been received, the United States and Spain being the only powers showing any enthusiasm for it. Great Britain is anxious to do nothing at which Germany would take offense, and it is possible, therefore, that another power, probably the United States, will be urged to bring up the question with a promise of Great Britain's support.

Great Britain will, of course, do everything in her power to increase the efficiency of the court of arbitration, and the government is being pressed by its supporters to move for the throwing open of The Hague arbitration court to all nations and for the extension of the processes of arbitration, mediation and investigation, but on this point, as on other points, no decision has yet been reached.

The delegates will be instructed to give support to suggestions for the alieviation of sufferings caused by warfare, but they will carefully examine any greations of international law, such of exempting private property from capture at sea, contraband, the limitation of the right of search, commercial blockades, the organization of prize courts, floating mines, etc.

There is an element of the Liberal party represented in the cabinet that has made exemption of private property at sea one of the planks in its platforms, since Great Britain opposed the suggestion at the last Hague conference, so there is a possibility of the government making some concessions under this head if it can overcome the opposition of permanent officials of the foreign office.

Although Great Britain of all powers is more affected by the application of the principle that a public deht cannot justify armed intervention. Sir Edward Grey has practically agreed that should the United States propose the application of the Drago doctrine to the South American republics, Great Britain will not object to it.

ARGENTINE'S PROPOSAL.

ARGENTINE'S PROPOSAL.

ARGENTINE'S PROPOSAL,

Washington, June 2.—The Argentine proposal which is to be laid before the second Hague conference looking to the holding of a third international conference in Buenos Ayres in 1910 will, it is expected, result in bringing the second conference face to face with the American proposition to give the conference permanency and provide for periodical gatherings. Some of the great powers have been dragged into the second conference unwiningly by force of public opinion and are believed to be strongly averse to binding themselves to participate in a continuous round of meetings at which they would be constantly confronted with the danger of having to discuss or even vote upon delicate international questions that they would much rather leave untouched.

It is said to be the purpose of the conference to endeavor to secure an in ternational agreement defining uni nation to domicile in another nation and the extent of hisl fability to the demands upon him by the government of the country in which he has taken up his residence. The proposition comes from Argentina and it would doubtless have been urged by Argentina as a proper number for the program of the approaching second conference at The Hague had it not happened that that program was practically closed before the project had taken definite form. So the Argentina delegates were instructed to take the course indicated and ask for another conference in 1910. In South America and Central America resident Americans are generally unand ask for another conference in 1910. In South America and Central America resident Americans are generally unwelcome visitors. They strenuously object to paying forced loans; refuse to render military service and by flaunting their many exemptions before the eyes of the natives cause much dissatisfaction among the officials. The state department has been inclined to the view that if Americans arel iving in a foreign country upon an income derived from that country and are without intention of returning to the United States to reside, they should be passed over to the sovereignty of their adopted country. Therefore it is probable that, looking to its merits alone and without reference to the effect it may have upon the other and larger subject of a permanent conference the Arjanine proposition will have the support of the United States.
