THE discourse delivered in the Tabernacle yesterday afternoon was of more than usual interest to the Latter-day Saints. In the first place it was novel to listen to an Elder relating his experience while on a mission to oriental countries, and especially to hear him, give details regarding the a people more or less acquainted with land of promise, fraught with engressing historic interest.

Circumstances and conditions now existing carried the minds of the congregation forward to future developments of great moment, a forecast of which has been given through the medium of all the Prophets from the beginning of the world to the present. The declaration is necessarily indefinite, but it suggests that we are living in momentous times, when startling developments are liable to occur Nearly sixty years have clapsed since this important fact was communicated to the Prophet, and it is reasonable to anticipate that the particular development, now evidently in its incipiency, directly alluded to by Elder Tanner in the concluding portion of his discourse, is not very distant. One of the signs of its approach is the interest taken by many classes in the land which is, according to divine promise, to be the future home of the Jews as a people, first by those who are not of that race, and next, and more particularly by influential Hebrews themselves. Of the day or hour, however, no man, so far as we know, is cognizant. But the faithful will be looking for the signs of the event and shall be watching for Him# So far as the time is concerned it may be safely set down as a fact that before 'Christ .comes in his glory certain other conditions must arise, as they are to be precursory. Among these developments is the one specially montioned by Elder Tanner in his discourse of yesterday afternoon-the gathering of the Jews to Cansanites who were conquered by certified by the Secretary of the Territheir own lagd. It will pro-bably be their own land from a double standpoint - by divine promise made to their forefathers and by purchase from those holding it at the time the key of their dispensation the time the key of their dispensation of gathering is fully turned. The latter will probably be reached when the hearts of the children are more fully hearts of the children are more fully than now, turned to the promises made to the rathers. The fixing of dates for the falfiment of prophecies uttered by men who were divinely selected to make known in part the purposes of the Creator, is speculative and hazard-ous, and, to say the least, vague and uncertain. But it is not unprofitable to view and consider the signs of the times and seek to know, in a reasonable way, what theyfportend.
