CRITICAL ANALYSIS.

UNIVERSITY OF DESERET,
Salt Lake City, June 8th, 1887.

By carefully examining DeLand's Chemical Baking Powder with the microscope and with chemical reagents, I find that it is free from Alum, Starch, Flour, Bone Ash, Ammonia and White Earth; and that it consists essentially of Cream of Tartar and Bi-carbonate of Soda.

The Baking Powder examined I purchased at Barnes & Davis, in this city.

A SURE CURE FOR THE PILES —You need not suffer from this most distressing disease again in all your life. Emall's Balm acts as a poultice and lubricator, absorbs the tumors and allays the intense itching at once. No caustic, no acid, no pain. A. McGibbons Esq., 19 Poplar street, Allegheny, Pa., writes: "I had itching and bleeding piles so bad I could not sit, stand or walk without intense suffering. I doctored with many physicians, and tried all the (so called) cures that I ever heard of, in vain (paying out hundreds of dollars), until I used Emall's Magic Balm, or Ointment. After the first application I enjoyed the best night's sleep I had for ten years, and two boxes have cured me completely." ☞ Wherever introduced Dr. Emall's Balm takes the lead, and has the largest sale of any Pile remedy in the world. Sold by druggists everywhere or sent by mail. 50 cent boxes. Address Zion's Co operative Mercantile Institution, Salt Lake City. d&w (2)

EVENING NEWS.

Friday, - September 23, 1887.

BABIES OR MONKEYS?

TWO CURIOUS CREATURES BROUGHT FROM CENTRAL AFRICA.

A student of the Darwinian theory would undoubtedly think that the missing link has been found, should he see two objects now at the store of Chas. Rieche & Bro., animal dealers, in Park Row, who are always on the look out for strange creatures, and now have secured two animals that are likely to give naturalists many hours of study before it is satisfactorily explained what they are. Mr. Rieche is a well-informed naturalist, and he has given up trying to solve the mystery. The animals in question are known as He and Is, and they arrived in this country in a large wooden crate a few days ago in the Weland. Mr. Reiche got them in London from a hunter who has spent many years in Southern Africa. He is known as Hunter Wilhelm and has had as many adventures as Allan Quartermain himself. About a year ago Wilhelm came across a tribe of natives near the Zambezi River in South Africa, and although never visited by a white man before, they treated him kindly. From them he learned that 100 miles farther into the interior there was a tribe of hairy savages that frequently swooped down upon the neighboring natives and carried off their women, tore up their crops and stole everything possible to be carried away.

While the hunter was in the village a woman that had been captured a few months before returned with three children that she had stolen from the tribe. The hunter resolved to get them if possible, and as he was friendly with the chief, bought them for trinkets that he had with him and started immediately for England. Mr. Reiche saw him in London and purchased the three children from him. There were two males and one female, but the female, named She, died before starting for this country. One would be at a loss what to liken them to. Their heads are as well formed and developed as a two-year-old child's and the forehead is not at all receding, cut straight and intelligent looking. The eyes are brown, large and bright, and follow a stranger's movements with the inquiring look of a bright baby. The nose, however, is like an African negro's, only much flatter, and the mouth resembles Mr. Crowley's closely. The body is well formed and the paunch extremely like those of the children of southern countries that are fed on bananas. Their hands are human in shape and so are the feet, except the toes, which are longer than a child's and more movable. Long red hair of sparse growth is on the back and limbs, but the front of the body, which is of a tan color, is perfectly free from it.

Although something like a monkey or an ape in appearance, the animals have no tails, and there is no suspicion that there might have been one originally, which might have been amputated. He and It are extremely affectionate and took quickly to Mrs. Sparrow, colored nurse, who has been employed to tend them. An effort will be made to teach them to talk, and Mr. Reiche expects that they will shortly call Mrs. Sparrow mamma.—N. Y. Tribune.

Millionaires at Lunch.

Four of five men, worth collectively money enough to buy Bulgaria, or the Union Pacific road, or Murray Hill, meet and eat lunch together every afternoon between 1 o'clock and 2 o'clock in the Western Union building, on Broadway. They would not be likely to attract attention in a crowd. One looks like a country storekeeper in town on a visit, one like a college professor of a slightly church turn, one like a sharp little Cuban tobacconist, and the other two like ordinary, well fed, solid city business men. Their names will show, however, that they really answer no such description at all, for one is Jay Gould, another is Cyrus W. Field, a third is Sidney Dillon, a fourth is Russel Sage and the fifth is ex-Governor Alonzo B. Cornell. One is the richest man on the continent, one has been governor of the empire state, one was a great man and world famous before the others were heard of, and one, Russell Sage, lost seven millions three years ago without being able to see much difference in his pile afterward. Altogether, they are supposed to be worth two hundred and fifty or three hundred millions of dollars by men to whom the Babel of Wall Street is not uproar and confusion.

One reason why all meet in this way every day is that by doing so they get their luncheon for nothing. That may sound ridiculous to any one who supposes that rich men after getting their money by thrift suddenly become dead to their early training, but however that may be, the friends of at least two of this little company declare it to be a fact that they are glad to economize in this way. There is no such daily conclave in the world. It is really a grand daily inquisition at which railroads and great corporations of many kinds are apt to be discussed in a manner most important to investors the world over—tragically it may be, or happily or desultorily.—Julian Ralph's Letter.

A Photographic Problem.

Will a clear atmosphere produce a better photograph than a hazy climate? That's the question hanging on the lips of every man you meet, and the strangest part is that they all believe it. There was some truth in the statement a dozen years ago, but now, owing to the instantaneous process, requiring a second's exposure, the density of the atmospheric surroundings has no influence. No, the secret lies in the pencil of the retoucher, which glides rapidly over a negative, eradicating blotches, blemishes, wrinkles and moles on the faces of women. By the same means young men with a weak growth of hair on the face have mustaches filled out until the countenance almost escapes recognition. The power of the retoucher is great, and as one case in question I will mention the portrait of a child taken as Puck. In the negative you could see only a stick held across the knee. The retoucher introduced a couple of pencil holders with crayons, which he had to build up by a process a thousand times more tedious than steel etching. Photography is loosing its mechanical cast every day and taking on the accessions of art, which I am convinced will some day leave the portrait painter without a profession.—Globe Democrat.

A Wyoming Hermit.

The Wind Mountains conceal a strange character, known as "Wind River Clark," or the "Golden Hermit." This man is a true solitary, shunning his kind and consorting alone with nature in her most savage aspect, with the wild animals of the mountains as his only companions. For forty years has this "Golden Hermit" made his solitary home in the deepest recesses of the mighty Wind Mountains. Cold or heat seem to impress him not. Two or three times a year he appears at the frontier post of Fort Washakie, loaded down with valuable furs and carrying an ancient buckskin sack filled with gold dust and nuggets; for "Wind River Clark" is a mighty hunter and trapper, and the "Golden Hunter" is the silent repository of the mountains' gold secret.

The advent of the hunter, trapper, hermit and gold-finder is always an event at the fort, for he is sure to bring money with him, and is a never-failing object of curiosity to civilization. Clad in his own and the skins of wild animals slain by himself, the mountain solitary comes and goes like the mountain mist. Three months ago he appeared and disappeared at the fort. A day or two ago a wandering hunter stopped at the post and reported that the "Golden Hermit" was busy in his golden quest deep in the mountains, and that the old buckskin sack had once more nearly completed its mission, being almost full of dust and nuggets. So the fort people are now daily looking for the periodical visit of the man of gold.

It is asserted by the New Haven News, though we don't believe it, that even the fashionable sunburn, upon which some girls pride themselves in summer, is bought in a bottle and put on with a brush. But what if it is? That is better than buying the popular red nose in a bottle and putting it on with a corkscrew.

Is Life Worth Living?

That depends upon the Liver, for if the Liver is inactive the whole system is out of order—the breath is bad, digestion poor, head dull or aching, energy and hopefulness gone, the spirits are depressed, a heavy weight exists after eating, with general despondency and the blues. The Liver is the housekeeper of the health; and a harmless, simple remedy that acts like Nature, does not constipate afterwards or require constant taking, does not interfere with business or pleasure during its use, makes Simmons Liver Regulator a medical perfection.

I have tested its virtues personally, and know that for Dyspepsia, Biliousness and Sick Headache, it is the best medicine the world ever saw. Have tried forty other remedies before Simmons Liver Regulator, and none of them gave more than temporary relief, but the Regulator not only relieved but cured.

NOTICE.

ALL PERSONS INTERESTED THEREin, will take notice—and should remember—that the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Utah and Salt Lake Canal Company, will be held at the office and place of its general business, 123 w. North Temple Street, Salt Lake City, on Saturday, October 1st, 1887, at 11 a. m.

There are several matters that should be considered by the stockholders, but the most important question is, how shall what water, of right belonging to the company, be obtained, retained and used for the purposes for which the canal was constructed? for homes and fortunes are at stake.
