BE NOT TOO FAST.

Mr. Matthew Arnold greatly offended the American portion of his Boston audience by speaking of "great, intelligent, sensual, avaricious America." The portion of unmercantable eggs and the cabbage not already exhausted on the lecturer for saying that Emerson was not a great philosopher or a great poet, was brought into requisition. But when the lecturer explained that this phrase was a quotation from one of Emerson's letters to Carlyle, the angry audience wanted to take it all back, and naturally felt a good deal abashed at not knowing their Emerson any better.

They felt as did a class of collegeboys who greeted with shouts of laughter what they thought was too "hifalutin" and gorgeous a composition that one of their number was reading. After about ten pages of the brilliant rhetoric which provoked their mirth, he ended by saying: "Thus speaks Macaulay in his immortal essay on history." The boys didn't laugh for a week.

The late Dr. Kenaley, the Tichborne claimant's counsel and subsequently a member of parliament, was making a speech before that body when he said that something would "like a dew drop from the lion's mane be shook to air." As he was thought to be more or less a "crank" this remark was supposed to be some unusual idiosyncy of his own, and the house roared in derision. The other sides of their mouths were as visibly agitated, however, when they learned that this ridiculous language was first uttered by another Englishman named Shakespeare.—Detroit Free Press.

Dr. Gistal, of Marseilles, requested the novelist to enrich his album with one of his witty improvisations. "Certainly," replied Dumas, with a smile, and drawing out his pencil he wrote under the eyes of his entertainer as follows:

Since Dr. Gistal came to our town, To cure diseases casual and hereditary, The hospital has been pulled down—

"You flatter!" here exclaimed the doctor, mightily pleased; but the poet went on:

And we have made a larger cemetery.
