pared with the enemy. The Japanese doubtless realize that their own navy is not so strong as the United States navy, and that the latter is well equipped with modern warships, and in all probability will seek to recover the government of Hawaii to meet the emergency in the Pacific.

LIGHTS IN THE DARK.

It is not often that a case of justice is done by lightning bolts. In the case of the Japanese, however, it is not often that a case of justice is done by lightning bolts. In the case of the Japanese, however, it is not often that a case of justice is done by lightning bolts.

THE CASE OF KITA.

The question of what to do with the case of Kita, a Japanese, is one of the most important at present. When the case of Kita, a Japanese, is one of the most important at present. When the case of Kita, a Japanese, is one of the most important at present.

THE REWARD FOR REIDS.

The offer, by the governor of Hawaii, of a reward for the heads of Japanese officers and private in the present war is by no means a novel procedure on the part of the United States.

BRITISH REAGENTS.

The decision of the British government to send a large number of British agents to the Pacific is a move which should be taken with care.

They, the Japanese, approve the policy now adopted by many British statesmen of sending to exhibit their products at international fairs. They are a time-consuming task, but they are a time-consuming task.

WILLIAMS IN A HURRY.

From the way the present situation of Williams has been reported, it is not difficult to see that he is in a hurry. From the way the present situation of Williams has been reported, it is not difficult to see that he is in a hurry.
