

FIRST MEETING AT KANSAS CITY Opening Session of Transmississippi Commercial Congress. EXCELLENT WORK WAS DONE.

Speech of Secretary of State Elihu Root Came as Fitting Climax To the Proceedings.

Special Correspondence.

Kansas City, Nov. 20.—The first day's meeting of the Transmississippi commercial congress is ended and those in attendance are more than satisfied with the work thus far done. The speech of Secy. of State Elihu Root came as a fitting climax to the opening day of a session bound to be historic if for no other reason than the splendid address of the "Premier" of President Roosevelt's cabinet. The large convention hall (the one in which Wm. Jennings Bryan was the second time nominated by the Democratic party for president of the United States) presented a beautiful appearance, and the assembly was one well calculated to inspire the speaker. The speech was in manuscript and was delivered with such earnestness and distinctness that every word appeared to be caught by every person present. At times under the inspiration of his grand subject and the generous applause of his auditors the speaker's voice rang through the hall with all the sentiments expressed and the power of the speaker. That the speech will live in history there is no doubt. It is a reaffirmation of the Monroe doctrine; its clear statement of the need for closer commercial relations with our sister republics of Central and South America and the way to bring about those relations were so impressive as to strike conviction to all present, and to find ready response and hearty support from all irrespective of political lines. At the close of the address Gov. Prince of New Mexico in well chosen words expressed belief in the history-making qualities of the address and moved a vote of thanks to the eminent speaker, which was given by a unanimous rising vote. The members of the convention after adjournment crowded upon the large platform to congratulate the speaker, and the crush became so great that guards had to be placed to regulate the number upon the platform at any one time as it threatened to give way under the struggling mass that tried at first to force their way upon it.

OPENING ADDRESS.
The speech was given at the night session (the third of the day) and occupied an hour and a half in delivery. The first address of the opening session was by the chairman of the executive committee, Col. Fred W. Plummer of Kansas City, who in his address introduced in the order named Mayor Henry M. Beardsley, who welcomed the delegates on behalf of Kansas City; E. W. Hoch of Kansas, who welcomed the members of the congress on behalf of the state of Kansas as part owner in Kansas City. A telegram of welcome from Gov. Folk of Missouri was read, in which he explained that his duties in connection with the examination of the returns of the late election prevented his presence in the convention. Secy. of State Elihu Root was the last of the speakers to welcome the delegates, speaking for himself and Senator Warner. Several speakers had alluded to different records of various states, and in particular glowing terms. Gov. Hoch of Kansas, in speaking of Missouri and her resources, said that if a wall were put around her borders, cutting her off from the rest of the world, her people have such natural resources that they could live on without any serious discomfort. So Senator Stone said: "Governor Hoch has made a statement for Missouri, simply an assertion. I can say of her as Webster said of Massachusetts: 'The state of Missouri. There she stands. She speaks for herself.' He then welcomed the delegates to this part of the country, and to Kansas City, which he declared to be 'The commercial capital of the Missouri valley, and destined to become the greatest center of commercial life in the west.'"

Brief responses to the addresses of welcome were made by Gov. Brady of Alaska, Senator Flynn of California, Gov. Mickey of Nebraska, State Senator George W. Swink of Colorado, and John Henry Smith of Utah. The last named speaker's address was delivered in characteristic style, and provoked most hearty applause and was given considerable space in the local papers.

SPEECH BY FRANCIS.

President David H. Francis was then introduced and delivered an able address, the main features of which have been sent out by the Associated Press. President Francis was greeted with hearty applause and his address was well received, the delegates remaining patiently in their seats and heartily applauding the speech until the end although not finished until 1:30 p. m.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The afternoon session should have convened at 3 p. m., but it was after 4:30 when President Francis re-entered the convention hall. He brought with him, however, E. H. Harriman, who is in Kansas City with other prominent railroad men with the idea of arranging for increased terminal facilities and a new union station for Kansas City. Mr. Harriman was introduced as a man who don't like to talk in public, and came forward smiling happily at the delegates greeting accorded him by the President Francis. He is the only man who had ever succeeded in committing him to a speech. Mr. Harriman humorously described his feelings on the first occasion (which he said occurred at the opening of the world's fair at St. Louis) and at the present time. He then made an address in which the main point seemed to be an attempt to impress upon his hearers the idea that enough has already existed upon our estate books to correct any evils that exist without the enactment of the recent rate bill, and that no further laws need be enacted; simply an enforcement of those now on the books. He also declared his belief that the less the cost of transporting freight the more the cost of one of the things that increase the wealth of the present day or even at the feet, and thus enable him to make the cars and therefore trains of length without decreasing the motive power, and distribute it through the train.

CONVENTION NOTES.

the congress and some of their number are scheduled for addresses at tomorrow's session.

MANY COMMENTS MADE.

Comments on the speech of E. H. Harriman were many, and varied with the views of the speaker. Some seemed to think they did not amount to much; that they did not propose any remedy for existing evils, and that the speech amounted to only a plea for no action or for delay in action with railroad legislation. Mr. Harriman's personality, however, was in striking contrast with the towering form of President David H. Francis. The latter is over six feet in height, of large frame, rather florid complexion and with the slow, graceful action traditionally associated with the typical southern gentleman. Mr. Harriman as he shook hands on the platform in parting with President Francis scarcely came to the latter's chin. One elderly man expressed the opinion that he did not weigh more than his pointer. This is probably a mistake, but Mr. Harriman cannot surely weigh more than 125 pounds.

But although his frame is small it is well proportioned and suggests the well balanced head, showing well developed mentality. The hands during his address were alternately shoved deep into his trousers pockets or both brought forward in a gesture simple but energetic and expressive of some thought the speaker wished to emphasize. He is said to control more miles of railroad than any other business man in the world but in his talk smilingly disclaimed this and said he did not control even one mile—that it was all controlled by the stockholders and directors. And then the facial muscles around the plastic mouth under the dark drooping moustache seemed to relax as if he had perpetrated a joke and were smiling inwardly and watching the effect upon his hearers. None of the latter denied the assertion audibly but I afterward heard numbers assert that it all amounted to the same thing and that Mr. Harriman controlled both stockholders and directors and therefore the railroads.

STRIKING ILLUSTRATION.

Secy. Root, as he sat upon the platform, afforded a striking illustration of the truth that ability cannot be invariably told by appearances. A delegate of more than ordinary intelligence asked to have the secretary of state pointed out to him and when this was done insisted that some mistake had been made. That more than a dozen of the handsome men who graced the platform knew more than that quiet man with closely cropped hair and moustache, who neither by size nor shape of head showed superiority to or even equality with many of the men around him. Yet on close examination the head was seen to be well proportioned though not for "dress parade." And there was something in the quiet smile; in the quick glance of the eyes; in the working of the fine and rather large white hands that betokened power and reserve force. And those who heard him speak believed that his reputation was warranted. That while the title a "Field Marshal Among the Captains of Industry" was not misapplied in introducing Mr. E. H. Harriman, that the work so begun by James G. Blaine while secretary of state in promoting reciprocal trade relations with South America, is in the right hands and will be carried to complete fruition under the no less capable secretaryship of Elihu Root. "The Premier of Roosevelt's Cabinet."

MISS ALLEN'S RECITAL.

First Public Appearance at Congregational Church Last Evening.

The First Congregational church was well filled last evening, on the occasion of the first public appearance of Miss Esther Allen, violinist and professor of music at Gordon academy, since her return from Europe. Miss Allen was assisted by Miss Mary H. Kimball, soprano, and Misses Jennie Sands and Judith Evans as accompanists. The fair debutante amply fulfilled the expectations of her friends in her violin performance. Her program was artistically made up, including choice selections from Tartini, Pachelbel, Beethoven, Dvorak and Brahms. The artist was perhaps best in the Bruch concerto in G minor, as it seemed suited to her temperament, and she gave it with a reading that evinced scholarly study. Miss Allen is a clean cut player, her work is accurate, her tone good, in the production of which she was materially aided last night by a fine instrument. She has evidently been a careful student, for her scores were well committed, and she performed with grace and ease. There was no halting or "stopping to think" which so often mar the work of some performers. Miss Kimball had a clear, sweet, lyric voice of good compass. She was well received. The work of the accompanists was up to the high reputation to which they have attained. The program was not too long, and the entire evening was much enjoyed. Miss Allen was congratulated at the close of the program.
