BREVITIES.

Ear painting is the latest Paris folly.

Claquers have become a nuisance in Cincinnati theaters.

Among the court files at Taunton is the finding of a Coroner's jury, which concludes that "the said——came to his death by the visitation of the aforesaid God."

Such of the South Carolina negroes as are called upon to pay taxes receive the collector with surprise and indignation, and ask him, 'Don't you know that we elected you?'

Eugenie goes to Jerusalem this summer to fulfil a vow made years ago, that if she gave birth to a son she would go and thank God for it, on the Mount of Olives.

David Farragut (the Admiral) told a young Sandwich Island doctor, not long since, that until he was 52 years old he could hold one foot in his hand and jump through with the other foot.

"My dear," said a rural wife to her husband, on his return from town, "what was the sweetest thing you saw in bonnets in the city?" "The ladies' faces, my love."

Miss Boynton, of Crawfordville, Indiana, having lectured on the subjetc "After Suffrage, what?" received an answer the other day in the shape of an old pair of trousers, a jacket, and a dull razor.

A wag, passing by a house in which had been almost consumed by fire, inquired whose it was. Being told it was a hatter's, "Ah," said he, "then the loss will be felt."

Miss Violette Colville is an American girl who is studying music in Paris; and Wartel, her instructor, says she will become a Malibran, and that he shall bring her out when she is eighteen.

A Western editor gets off the following criticism on Parepa: "We cannot imagine, with her great fleshiness and awkward figure, how Parepa Rosa could be successful as an actress in opera; but in a concert she is a wash-tub full of melody."

"Buy a trunk, Pat?" said a dealer.
"And what for should I buy a trunk?" rejoined Pat.
"To put your clothes in," was the reply.
"And go naked! The devil a bit iv it."

A Mississippi editor and Justice of the Peace married a couple in 1858, divorced them in 1860, married the man to another woman in 1861, ditto the woman to another man in 1862, and recently remarried the original couple.

Curran was pleading the cause of a certain Miss Tickle. The judge was a bit of a wag, and Curran opened the case with: "Tickle, my client, the defendant, my lord."—The judge interrupted him with: "Tickle her yourself, Curran; you are as well able to do it as I am."

A little girl in a Sunday school was asked by a teacher:
"Mary, do you say your prayers morning and evening?"
"No, Miss, I don't."
"Why, Mary! are you not afraid to go to sleep in the dark without asking God to take care of you and watch over you until the morning?"
"No, Miss, I ain't afraid, 'cause I sleep in the middle."

A New Hampshire farmer residing near Exeter possesses a mouse-destroying hen. Before being exclusively applied to this feline purpose, she was observed constantly watching close to a corn rick, and the moment a mouse appeared, she seized it in her beak and carried it to a meadow adjoining, where she would play with it like a young cat for some time, and then kill it. She has been known to catch four or five mice a day in this manner.

A correspondent, hearing from all quarters complaints that the peach-trees are failing, advises the following treatment: "First, kill the borer, then break up the ground slightly about the trees, and spread refuse flax-stalks or flax-straws far enough to cover all its roots. The experiment has been tried on an old, languishing peach tree with great success. It soon recovered, pushed out vigorous shoots, and was loaded with larger and better fruit than ever before." Or, in other words, kill the insects and mulch the soil. Just so! This treatment will be found to succeed with other fruit-trees as well as the peach.-Ex.

"I wants to get a drunk," said a Teuton the other day to a person he met on the street, "where I gets em, eh?"
"Want to get a drink? Well, I reckon you can get that in any saloon in town, where benzine is sold. There is a place over the way, for instance," pointing to a saloon across the street.
Teuton went across to the saloon. Saloon keeper got out a glass mechanically, with a look that seemed to say, "Well, what is it?"
"Can I get a drunk 'e wile?"
"Get drunk's you're a mind ter, if you only pay for it," was the reply. "Got whisky I'll warrant to fetch you if you drink enough of it."
"So nich ver stay. I don't want to get drunk like as ter tifels; I only want to buy von leedle drunk."
"If you only want a little drunk, better go and drink red wine. Don't keep it here; keep stuff for a big drunk, that's all."
"Nein, nein, nein; I want a drunk to geep in mine clothes, to lock up mine key up, unt to take me a long von der railroad cars travel in me to Ni Yorrick all e' wile.
"Oh you want a trunk? Why didn't you say so in the first place? There is a trunk store over the way, if that's what you want."
"Yah, dat is richt;" and the Teuton shot across the street to secure his "leetle drunk."
