yellow rattlesnake, the largest he had ever seen, was in bed with the child, and actually coiled round her body. His presence instantly wrought a change in the conduct of the snake, which dexterously uncoiled itself from around the child and assumed an attitude of battle. The mountain's side hung upon a rack over the door, he grasped it in his hand with feelings that cannot be described, and awaited an opportunity to shoot. He had no sooner done so than the snake commenced coiling round the child by rubbing his head against her cheek and darting his forked tongue at most in her eyes. Then he would raise his tail and rattle so rapidly as to make one continuous sound, at which the child was greatly delighted. But upon the least movement on the part of the almost distracted parent the snake would entirely change the tone of his rattling and swell to almost twice his natural size. During all this time the child tightly grasped the snake with its chubby little hands, and jerked and wriggled about in a very rude and unceremonious manner, laughing and talking to her horrid plaything in a perfect ecstasy of delight. This state of things was finally ended by a movement of the parent, which so enraged the snake that he drew himself up into a tight coil, leaped out of bed, and would have buried his fangs in the father's face had he not quickly dodged to one side. As it was, the serpent went over his shoulder and out at the door, where he renewed the signal for battle, but was quickly stretched out stiff in death by a shot from the rifle.

A party of young men in the same neighborhood only a few years ago had a very interesting adventure with rattlesnakes, which may be briefly stated: Early in the fall of the year, and before the snakes had begun to hibernate, a tight coil, leaped out of bed, and would have buried his fangs in the father's face had he not quickly dodged to one side. As it was, the serpent went over his shoulder and out at the door, where he renewed the signal for battle, but was quickly stretched out stiff in death by a shot from the rifle.

FOREIGN NEWS.
GREAT BRITAIN.
LONDON, 11.—In the Lords to-day, Redoubt questioned the right of the United States to maintain its demand for indemnity for damages caused by the Alabama, now that the American government had granted an amnesty to the rebels and reconciliation with the South was complete. He asked whether the government intended to bring this point to the attention of the arbitrators at Geneva.

The evacuation to be complete within one year.
PARIS, 11.—It is reported that negotiations between France and Prussia for the evacuation of France, has resulted in an agreement by which the occupation of French territory by the German troops will entirely cease before the end of the present year.
