

DISCOURSE

BY

ELDER WILFORD WOODRUFF,

At the General Conference, Sunday Morning, April 3, 1881.

REPORTED BY GEORGE F. GIBBS.

I THINK that all of us as Latter-day Saints should have our hearts filled with gratitude and thanksgiving to God our Heavenly Father for his mercies and blessings which we enjoy this day. It is certainly a source of much pleasure to me to have the privilege of meeting with so many of the Latter-day Saints, and with so many bearing the Holy Priesthood in this dispensation of God to man. I cannot but rejoice when I reflect upon the history of this people, and contemplate the dealings of God with us, how that He has protected us and sustained us and delivered us and made us a community in the land, and that too under adversity and opposition.

In tracing the history of the Prophets and Apostles of old as well as those of our day, we find that there have been some very peculiar manifestations of the trust and confidence in God that they have exercised. Consider, for instance, the position of the Three Hebrews. They could afford to trust themselves in the hands of God; they could afford to meet whatever punishment or affliction or persecution that might be heaped upon them in consequence of their obeying the law of God. But they could not afford to bow down and worship the image which Nebuchadnezzar had caused to be set up, because it was contrary to the commandments of God. The history of the result of their refusing to obey the royal edict, commanding all Babylon to fall down and worship it, we are familiar with; also with the similar circumstance in which the prophet Daniel figured. In any and every age of the world when God has called or commanded a man or a people to perform a certain work, they through determination and perseverance, and faith in Him, have been enabled to accomplish it; and I do not know of a single instance wherein anything ennobling or exalting has been gained when His command has been shunned or willfully disobeyed. I will here mention the case of Jonah, which presents itself to my mind, when the Lord sent him to deliver a message to Nineveh. The requirement was a little too much for Jonah, and he thought he would try to avoid it; but after he had spent three days and nights in the belly of a whale, he thought, no doubt, that if ever he got to land he would unhesitatingly obey the commandments of the Lord. The result we know. We take our Savior, and also the Apostles who followed him; we read the history of what they suffered and passed through. All of the Apostles suffered death (excepting one, whom they could not destroy), including the Son of God himself, in order to seal their testimony with their blood; while the Savior had to suffer upon the cross to fill the mission that he had been preordained to perform; which, by the way, is a very strange example to man, to see the Son of God, the Only Begotten of the Father on the earth, the First Born in the spirit world, a person of His high exaltation and glory, condescending to come forth to be born in a stable and cradled in a manger; and after He grew up, how He traveled about in adversity and suffering, never shrinking from any duty imposed upon him—it should certainly be a good example to all of His followers. And the Apostles themselves, because of their integrity to the truths of the gospel which they had received through their Master, the Savior, they like Him, suffered death, and thus sealed their testimony with their blood. They could perform no more than he could towards turning the hearts of the people to the truth; but they determine to risk whatever suffering, trouble or tribulation they were called to pass through for the word of God and the testimony of Jesus, that they might receive eternal life.

I bring this home to ourselves. I bring it home to the Latter-day Saints; I bring it home to our day and generation. Many of us have been acquainted with our Prophet and Patriarch, Joseph and Hyrum Smith. We know their lives; we know the suffering and trouble they passed through. These men are true and faithful unto death. They could afford to do it; but they could not afford to deny the faith; they could not afford to shrink from the important message which God had given unto them, of establishing this Church and kingdom upon the earth, but they could afford to be true and faithful to the last moments of their lives, in advocating and defending the principles of the gospel of the Son of God. I wish to say to our leading men, the Presidency of this Church, the Twelve Apostles, the Presidents of Stakes and their Counselors, the Bishops, the Seventies, the High Priests and Elders, and to all men bearing the Holy Priesthood, as well as to all who have entered into covenant with God, that we can, as individuals and as a people, afford to maintain our integrity in this our day and generation, regardless of consequences. We can afford to be true and faithful to God; we can afford to carry out every principle and commandment which God has given unto us; we can afford to do this, as much so as Prophets and Apostles and people of God of other dispensations and generations. And I would say to all Israel, there is not one soul of us who can afford to compromise one of the revelations or one of the commandments which God has committed to our charge. No man can afford to do this who is called of God to build up this Kingdom. We can afford, however, to meet the consequences, whatever they may be. And I would say to all present this day that we should have, and that we have as much comfort, as much hope and as much cause to trust in God, and have received as much encouragement, by the overruling hand of Almighty God in our behalf, to go on magnifying our calling and to be true and faithful to every commandment which God has given unto us, as the people of any other generation had in their day; and for one I can say, "It is the Kingdom of God or nothing" for me, and I am willing to risk the consequences. I know that I cannot afford to disobey any commandment which God has given to me, because there is no man who holds the Priesthood, and possessing the inspiration and the gifts of God and the light of truth, but would be ashamed both in the flesh and in the spirit world to meet his God and to be obliged to acknowledge that he did not obey His commandments. And I will here say that whenever we do our duty, whenever we keep the commandments which have been made known to us, we will see the fulfillment of the promises which God has made to us with regard to this day, age and dispensation. There is no promise which God has made to us but what will be fulfilled to the very letter. I read these—the Bible, the Book of Mormon, the Doctrine and Covenants, and I regard them as eternal truths. I cannot find any revelations given from the days of Moses down to the days of Joseph Smith, nor from the days of Joseph to our day, by men who have spoken as they were moved upon by the Holy Ghost, but what has been fulfilled to the very letter, as far as time would admit of. Though the heavens and the earth pass away, not one jot or tittle that will fall unfulfilled. When I read these solemn, these eternal declarations made through the mouth of Joseph Smith my heart swells with gratitude and praise to God my heavenly Father. I consider that the Doctrine and Covenants, our Testament, contains a code of the most solemn, the most Godlike proclamations ever made to the human family. I will refer to the "Vision" alone, as a revelation which gives more light, more truth and more principle than any revelation contained in any other book we ever read. It makes plain to our understanding our present condition, where we came from, why we are here, and where we are going to. Any man may know through that revelation what his part and condition will be. For all men know what laws they keep, and the laws that men keep here will determine their position hereafter; they will be preserved by those laws and receive the blessings that belong to them.

I say again, the Latter-day Saints have every encouragement; their pathway is plain and inviting before them. And the nearer we adhere to the commandments of God, the more confident we shall become that God is our friend and that He is watching over us and that His Son Jesus is our advocate with the Father, that He is in the midst of this people, and that He will contend for the rights of His Saints, and will ward off every weapon that is formed against Zion. So far at least we have been sustained; the arm of Jehovah has been made bare in our behalf ever since we have been in these valleys, and all Israel whose eyes are open to see and whose minds can comprehend the dealings of God with his people, know it. We have been sustained by the power of God from the beginning to this day, and nothing short of the power of God could have saved us and brought us through; and nothing but the power of God can preserve us, and nothing but His wisdom can pilot us safe to the high destiny that awaits us. Perhaps I may be permitted to say, we met with a good deal of persecution and oppression and suffering before we came to these valleys, and still the hand of oppression is stretched out against us, and the public mind everywhere within the pale of Christendom is more or less set on our destruction, and that because a certain Biblical principle—the patriarchal order of marriage is practised by us. When Earl Rosborough was visiting this city, he inquired of President Taylor what excuse the State of Missouri had in driving ten thousand of this people beyond their borders into the state of Illinois; and what excuse the people of this nation had who took part in, and those who countenanced the persecution that we have endured, for persecuting us before the principle of patriarchal marriage was practised by the Latter-day Saints. President Taylor replied, it was because we believed in revelation, because we believed in Prophets and Apostles, and because we believed in the ancient, the apostolic, the everlasting Gospel with all its gifts and blessings. Then, said Earl Rosborough, "it would make no difference, as far as your being at variance with the Christian world is concerned, whether you practice plural marriage or not, unless you renounce all other principles you hold to that caused your persecution heretofore; you would be persecuted still." I say the same to-day. The nation cares no more about our practicing the order of plural marriage than any other principle of the gospel; it would make no difference with us to-day. Were we to compromise this principle by saying, we will renounce it, we would then have to renounce our belief in revelation from God, and our belief in the necessity of Prophets and Apostles, and the principle of the gathering, and then to do away with the idea and practice of building Temples in which to administer ordinances for the exaltation of the living and the redemption of the dead; and at last we would have to renounce our Church organization, and mix up and mingle with the world, and become part of them. Can we afford to do this? I tell you no, we can not; but we can afford to keep the commandments of God. And I will here say, that we have been sustained by the hand of Jehovah in a marvelous and miraculous manner ever since we came to these valleys and proclaimed to the world our belief in the revelation of celestial or plural marriage; and I will say further, and in the name of Jesus Christ our Savior and Elder Brother, we shall be sustained from this time until He comes in the clouds of heaven, inasmuch as we shrink not from the performance of our duties. We have somebody to deal with besides man. The God of heaven holds our destiny; He holds the destiny of our nation and of all the nations, and He controls them. Therefore, I say to the Latter-day Saints, let us be faithful; let us keep the commandments; let us not renounce a single principle or command which God has given to us. Let us keep the word of wisdom. Let us pay our tithes and offerings. Let us obey the celestial law of God, that we may have our wives and children with us in the morning of the first resurrection; that we may come forth clothed with glory, immortality and eternal lives, with our wives and children bound to us in the family organization in the celestial world, to dwell with us throughout the endless ages of eternity, together with all the sons and daughters of Adam who shall have kept the commandments of God.

I pray that we may be able to do our duty in this world. I pray that we may not fear man who can only kill the body, but fear God who hath power to cast both body and soul into hell. I feel to say that there is no people under heaven that have so much cause to rejoice and to be grateful than the Latter-day Saints. There is no other people since the foundation of the world called to perform the work that you, Latter-day Saints, are called to perform. The God of heaven has given you the kingdom, the great and last kingdom, the only kingdom which has ever been set up on this earth to remain until the coming of the Son of Man. Although in its infancy, this work has a great and a mighty future; and as I have often said, the eyes of all the hosts of heaven are over us; the eyes of God Himself, and the eyes of all the prophets and apostles that have ever lived in the flesh are watching this people. They know that they are not neither can they be made perfect without you; and they fully understand that we cannot be made perfect without them. They understand the greatness, the extent, the power and the glory of this dispensation.

When I contemplate the fact that the few men and women dwelling in these mountain valleys have had committed to them this great and mighty work, I feel that of all people under heaven we ought to be the most grateful to our God; and that we ought to remember to keep our covenants, and humble ourselves before him, and labor with all our hearts to discharge faithfully the responsibilities that devolve upon us, and the duties that are required at our hands. For we can afford to do anything that God requires of us; but none of us can afford to do wrong. It would cost far more than this world with all its wealth is worth for the Latter-day Saints to do wrong and come under the disfavor of Almighty God. Our prayers, one and all, should be that of David's—"Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins; let them not have dominion over me; then shall I be upright, and I shall be innocent from the great transgression."

I pray God to bless this assembly of His people; and to bless the Presidency of the Church, the Apostles and all bearing the Holy Priesthood, together with all who have entered into covenant with Him. My earnest prayer is that the blessings of our God may be over us in time, that when we get through and shall pass behind the veil, we shall have done all that was required of us, and be prepared to dwell with the sanctified and the just made perfect through the blood of the Lamb. Amen.

Editor Deseret News:

John B. Thatcher Jr. and myself are here in the once sacred Temple, but, oh! how changed. The building is in a filthy and a dilapidated condition, but is full as good as might be expected. It is seldom if ever used for any public purpose, but is kept more for a curiosity, etc. The old lady that has charge said a shilling was the usual price for admittance, but seeing we were Mormon Elders we could go in free, and gave us the keys to stay as long as we wished, which was several hours. Although the Temple has been defiled and desecrated, yet it was with peculiar feelings that we entered the once holy building, where God and angels once talked face to face with our beloved Prophet, and other Elders of our Church. My heart aches when I look back upon the past and reflect upon the future, for I know that God is just, and the blood of the righteous dead will not cry in vain for redress. In the near future many will call to mind what we have told them, for we know that the prophecies of the holy prophets will all be fulfilled. That the great judgments spoken of will sweep this generation, or the larger portion of them from the face of the earth, so "but few men will be left." Then, if not before, we hope to see the fruits of our labors.

We are highly favored in getting good, comfortable houses to hold meetings in, as a rule, and have a very good turn out to hear us speak, and good attention is generally paid to what is said. But, for all that, we are not blind to the indifference that is generally manifested by the mass of the people. When they turn us away, hungry and weary, with sneers and jeers, from their doors, we feel to pity and not despise them, and can say, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." For we realize that it is prejudice, oftener than meanness, that causes them to do so.

We are to hold meetings in Berita on Sunday the 10th, and about the middle of next week we expect to start for East Rochester, Columbiana County. We travel among the people most of the time, stop and talk with those that will listen to us.

Ever praying for the welfare of Zion, I remain, as ever, your humble brother, etc.

SALINA, July 21, 1881.

Editor Deseret News:

To-day I was handed a copy of the News in which it states a man called at the office and represented fraud as being practiced on the workmen on the Sevier Valley Railroad in Salina Canon. I paid one Jens Anderson on our time books for the month of June, his time 22 days at $2 per day being $44. Payments—store account three dollars and thirty cents, board bill twelve dollars and twenty-five cents, time check $27.65, payable July 25th.

Our rates of wages run as follows: from $1.75 to $2.25 per day, these prices are regulated by the foremen in charge, they well knowing how to price labor, being two men from your city and well known to the workingmen of Salt Lake, names James Dick and John Beck.

Now let me say that we have been at all times prompt in our payments to all workmen, which the evidence of the past month's estimate will show, being much over twenty thousand dollars. Men keep coming and going, those that imagine that railroad work is ball-room play find themselves mistaken, and pack their duds and leave, and I presume that if Mr. Anderson ever was in Salina Canon at all, he was a fiddler or an accordion player; men that are content to earn their bread by hard licks stay with the railroad, while light weight throwers move on. I have been steady at work in Salina Canon from the first day of January, 1881 to the present, with nothing less than a hundred men, and now over 200 besides teams. And if there is any man that can say truthfully that he has not been paid promptly when their pay becomes due, I don't know him. I cannot say that there never was any complaint from men, but no man ever made complaint to me that his cause was just, that I have not at once made or tried to make satisfactory. Please remember our farmers are not railroad men, and it is hard to get them down to ten hours labor every day that is many of them. For reference as to the truthfulness of my statements I will refer you to Bishop Jensen, of this place, and to the following named persons that are now in charge of men on my contract: Bishop Rearn, John Knighton, J. P., both of Gunnison; James Woodruff, of your city; James Pullman and Hyrum Strong, of Glenwood; J. Patterson, of Spring Town, and many others.

Respectfully yours,
JAMES ROBBINS & SON.

CHESTER, June 30th, 1881.

Editor Deseret News:

On June 30th under a spacious bowery thoughtfully arranged by the good people of Mount Pleasant, were seated two thousand persons, mostly composed of the Sunday Schools from Spring, Chester, Mount Pleasant, Fairview, Moroni and Fountain Green, to participate in a Jubilee for the Northern half of this Stake of Zion.

With that promptitude and savviness, for which County Superintendent Maiben is distinguished, the large audience was called to order at 11 o'clock.

Hymn, "My God the Spring of all my Joys," prayer by Assistant County Superintendent, Edward Clift; Hymn, "The Song of Jubilee."

The absence of any string or brass instrumental music was painfully felt, hence the Mount Pleasant Choir, under the leadership of Prof. Mattison, with Miss Clementine Morrison and Augusta Dehlin, accompanists on the Organ, rendered beautiful musical service throughout the day. Superintendent Maiben made a few opening remarks, when the programme was duly ushered in.

The "Chapter on Prayer" was pronounced by the Mount Pleasant Sunday School, North Ward; the rendition of "Answers to Questions" by the Mount Pleasant Sunday School, South Ward, was ably rendered.

The Fairview Sunday School forth the "Word of Wisdom" Song, "Put your trust in God,"
