FISH HATCHERIES PUBLIC NUISANCE

Those Maintained in Public
Streams so Declared by Atty. Gen. Breedon.

UNLAWFUL PARAPHERNALIA.

Subject to Confiscation and Owners
Amenable to Fish and Game Law
—Other News Notes.

Ogden, June 28.—The numerous arrests and controversies that have come up this year over the alleged violation of the fish and game laws in Weber county are creating considerable stir in this section. In Ogden valley a number of fish hatcheries have been established, and are maintained in public streams that it is unlawful for any individual to maintain a hatchery in the natural channel of a public stream. The attorney general has received a letter from Atty. Gen. Breedon dealing with the ponds now being maintained on public streams. The attorney general says:

"In my opinion, fish ponds placed and maintained in the natural channel of public streams, in the manner in which you have described certain ponds to be now maintained in Weber county, are illegally maintained and are public nuisances.

"The catching of fish by means of such ponds is a direct violation of the provisions of chapter 115 of the session laws of 1907, and further the using of the streams in connection with such ponds in the manner you describe is in violation of section 14 of chapter 118.

"You ask me to advise you what action I think should be taken in such cases as you have outlined. The party

BIG IRRIGATION PROJECT.

Nine Hundred Men at Work on Strawberry Project.

Special Correspondence.
Provo, Utah, June 28.—The work on the strawberry valley irrigation project is assuming greater proportions than is generally understood. There are now 900 men at work and the payroll for the past month is $20,000. The officials in charge are now constructing a high line canal through which water will be conveyed for the irrigation of land in the season, so that one crop of lucern can be raised on this land. The reclamation officers have also leased grazing land from which $14,000 has been received for the season. It is the intention to expend $350,000 on the project this year.

Under this date Wm. Clayton, of the pioneer camp, journals as follows:
"The morning is fine but cold. Many of the brethren are trading with Mr. Harris for pants, jackets, shirts, etc., made of buckskin and also the skins themselves. He sells the skins at $1.50 apiece, pants at $2 a pair, etc. He will take rifles, powder, lead, caps or calico, and domestic goods in exchange, at his own price. At 7:30 a. m. we proceeded on our journey, Mr. Harris waiting for the other companies. After traveling six miles we came to a point where the road forks, one continuing in a westerly direction, the other taking a south-west course. We took the left hand road which leads to California. This junction of the road is 257 1/2 miles from maintaining such a pond or ponds would certainly be prosecuted for a misdemeanor, for taking or catching fish from the public streams by means of such ponds, and further he would be guilty of a misdemeanor for maintaining in connection with such pond or ponds, screens or traps for the purpose of catching fish or holding them within such ponds.

"Section 118 of the laws of 1907 provides for a seizure of seine, nets, tackle, etc., and all other means and devices, for the unlawful taking or catching of fish of any kind, and upon a conviction for misdemeanor under chapter 115 of the laws of 1907, such ponds, or rather the artificial means used in connection with such ponds could be seized under an order of the magistrate and disposed of.

"I also believe that such pond could be declared a public nuisance (see subdivision 3, section 4275 of the Revised Statute of 1895). It is certainly an unlawful interference and obstruction of a public stream, and it might be advisable to bring a proper action on the part of the state, to enjoin such ponds as being public nuisance and a wrongful interference with the public streams."

CIVIC IMPROVEMENT LEAGUE.

J. C. Nye Succeeds J. S. Lewis as President—Betterment Proposals.

Ogden, June 28.—At a meeting of the Civic Improvement League held last evening, John S. Lewis, who has made a very progressive president, resigned because of being president of the league, feeling that he could not consistently hold both positions. The members at first opposed his resigning, but at last consented and elected J. C. Nye to fill the vacancy. Don Maguire, was made first vice president and E. M. Driggs second vice president. A committee composed of J. S. Lewis and A. T. Wright was appointed to get about the country, etc. he said if we would turn off here and camp, he would stay with us all morning. The place was consequently selected, and we turned off from the road about a quarter of a mile, and formed our encampment near the Sandy at 6 o'clock p. m., having traveled the afternoon 13 miles and during the day 15 1/2 miles.

"Soon after forming our encampment, the twelve and several others had an interview with Mr. Bridger, the object being to make inquiries concerning our future route, and the country ahead, but it was impossible to form a correct idea of either, owing to the very limited view of the country in which he gave his description, but the general items are in substance as follows:

"We will find better grass as we proceed, there is no blacksmith shop at his fort at present; there was one but it was destroyed. Nearly a hundred wagons have gone over the Hastings route, and a large number of the wagons crossed the Black's Fork, and went a little south of west from his place. It is impossible for wagons to follow down Green river. Neither can it be followed in by trail. From Bridger's Fort to the Great Salt Lake, Hastings said, was about 100 miles. Bridger himself had been through 50 times, but could form no correct idea of the distance. Mr. Hastings' route leaves the Oregon road at Bridger's. We could pass over the mountains further south, but in some places we would meet with heavy bodies of timber and would have to cut our way through. In the Bear River valley there is oak timber, sugar trees, cottonwood and pines. There is not an abundance of grass made, but plenty of beautiful pines. There is no timber on the Utah lake, but some on the streams emptying into it. Into the outlet of the Utah Lake three well timbered streams empty. In the valleys southeast of the Salt Lake there is an abundance of blue grass and red and white clover. The outlet of the Utah lake does not travel a large river, neither a rapid current, but the water is muddy and the banks of the river low. Some of his men have been around the Salt Lake in canoes, but while they went out hunting, their canoes were stolen by the Indians. They then spent three months going round the lake in canoes hunting beavers, the distance being 50 (7) miles. The tribe of Indians live around the lake and are a bad people; if they catch a man alone they are sure to rob and abuse him. If they don't kill him, but are in no real danger. These Indians are mostly armed with guns.

There was a man who had opened a farm in Bear River valley, where the soil is good and likely to produce grain were it not for the excessive cold nights. There is a good country south of the Utah Lake or southeast of the Great Basin. Three rivers are known to travelers, one into the Sevier lake. There is also a splendid country north of the California mountains, calculated to produce every kind of grain and fruit, and there are several places where a man might pass from it over the mountains to the California settlements in a day.

The great desert extends from the Salt Lake to the Gulf of California, which is perfectly barren. Mr. Bridger supposes it to have been an arm of the sea. There is a tribe of Indians in that country who are unknown to either travelers or geographers. They make farms and raise a great abundance of grain of various kinds. He can buy any quantity of the very best wheat from them. This country lies south of Salt Lake, distant about 20 days travel, but the country through which one would have to go to reach it is bad, and there would be no grass for animals to subsist on. He supposes there might be access to it from Texas. He never saw any grapes on the Utah lake, but there are plenty of cherries and berries of several kinds. He thinks the region around the Utah lake is the best country for traveling into the Sevier lake, and the country is still better the further south one goes until the desert is reached, which is upwards of 200 miles south of the Utah lake. There is plenty of timber on all the streams and mountains and an abundance of fish in the streams.

He passed through the country a year ago last summer in the month of July; there is generally one or two showers of rain every day, sometimes very heavy thunder storms but not accompanied by strong winds. He said we would find a great plenty of water from here to Bridger's Fort, except after crossing Green river, when we have to travel about 20 miles without water, but there is plenty of grass. We need not fear the Utah Indians, for we could drive the whole of them in 24 hours. Mr. Bridger's theory was not to kill them, but make slaves of them. The Indians south of the Utah lake raise a great corn, wheat and rumpus as was ever raised in old Kentucky.

the consent of the city council to let the Bell Telephone put a conduit up Twenty-fourth street so the poles can be removed from the center of the street.

Pres. Bancroft of the Utah Light & Railway company informed the league that his company has withdrawn its application to the city engineer for more water supply from Ogden river.

The attention of the city council will be called by the league to the bad condition of the street crossings at the intersections in the paved district.

The league expressed its approval of the movement of the police to exterminate all unlicensed dogs.

$3,000 DAMAGE SUIT.

A $3,000 personal injury damage suit has been filed in the district court by Ida Larson against the Oregon Short Line Railroad company. It is alleged in the complaint that July 1, 1906, the plaintiff was lawfully standing on the track of the defendant company at Minidoka, Idaho, that she was struck by a freight train, knocked down and sustained injuries to her right side which caused great bodily pain. Plaintiff alleges that the accident was caused through the carelessness of the defendant company permitting a freight train to enter the Minidoka yards at such a speed that the train could not be stopped after plaintiff was struck until it had gone 50 feet beyond her. It is alleged that no bell was rung or whistle blown as a signal of danger of an approaching train.

WILSON DIVORCE SUIT.

Suit for divorce has been filed in the Second district court by May L. Wilson against Charles E. Wilson. It is alleged in the complaint that the parties were married at North Ogden, Weber county, July 3, 1894 and have three children. That for five years past defendant has been guilty of habitual drunkenness and failure to provide. She asks for a decree of divorce, custody of the children, and alimony.

STATE NEWS BRIEFS.

New Bishop at Paradise.—At the Hyrum stake conference held at Paradise June 23, Bishop Samuel Oldham, after 23 years' faithful service, was honorably released owing to the infirmities of age, and Peter O. Hansen was sustained as bishop of Paradise ward. Bishop Oldham was ordained a patriarch by President Francis M. Lyman.

Jail Break at Nephi.—Wednesday evening Edward Lindsay, who was sentenced the same day to five years in the state prison for robbing J. A. Pierce in Europe, and Peter O. Hansen, from the county jail by boring a hole in the wall with a chisel, which he had secreted in his clothes. The prisoner made his way to Thistle Junction, where he was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Judd of Utah county. He was later identified by Deputy Sheriff Goldbrought of Juab and at once taken to the penitentiary. Lindsay's mother was confined in the same jail about four years ago on a charge of embezzlement, and while there lost her mind and committed suicide.

AN ARIZONA TRAGEDY.

R. H. Daniels Kills J. E. Brown, for Insulting His Sister.
Globe, Ariz., June 27.—James E. Brown was shot and killed by R. H. Daniels, a saloonkeeper of this city, this afternoon. An insult to Daniels' sister was the motive, according to Daniels. Brown was confined several years in an asylum at Phoenix and was released 18 months ago. Nothing is known of him here, but it is believed that Brown is not his right name. He is said to have been a footlocker in Oklahoma.

"Such was the information we obtained from Mr. Bridger, but we shall know more about things and have a better understanding when we have seen the country ourselves. Supper having been provided for Mr. Bridger and his men, the council was adjourned. Mr. Bridger going with President Young to supper. The remainder of the Pioneers retired to their wagons conversing on the subjects touched upon. The evening was fine and mosquitoes plentiful."

James Bridger is described by Capt. R. B. Marcy as an illiterate man, tall, thin, wiry, with a complexion well bronzed by toil and exposure, with an independent, generous, open cast of countenance, indicative of brave and noble impulses. P. W. Meadows, of Billings, Montana, who knew Bridger well, says he was born in Washington, D. C. in 1807, and joined Ashley's fur company for the mountains in 1828. In his long experience in the western world as an explorer, trapper, hunter and guide, he became well acquainted with nearly every part of the mountains and had the reputation of being the most skillful and reliable guide known. While in the east in 1835 he purchased a farm near Westport, Mo., but the change in his habits was unendurable, and he returned to the mountains, and resumed the occupation of guide, which he followed until age compelled him to abandon it, when he went to live upon his farm. He died at his home near Westport in 1881. For some reason or other, Bridger was hostile to the saints, and when the Indian war broke out in 1833, he was accused of furnishing the savages with arms and ammunition to be used against the Mormons. This was nothing less than treason, and when this became known Mr. Bridger found it necessary, for the sake of his personal safety, to abandon Fort Bridger and get out of the territory.
