> Some men seem to think that government consists in forcing people. They are never satisfied unless their authority and power are felt and recognized. A kind, cheerful, manly obedience they cannot appreciate; they look for a cringing servility, and if they don't meet with it feel that the dignity of their position is not respected. All materials must come under their sledge hammer -the iron and the diamond are treated alike; consequently, the gems that might adorn their crown and reflect its brilliance are broken and lost. Enterprise and talent must be crushed if it does not emanate from the narrow sphere. They drive with a tight rein and a sharp lash, and cannot ride behind the freest team without the liberal use of the latter. Like some painted old beldame on the stage, they have to keep people at a distance to secure their admiration, as a nearer inspection reveals their deformity and shallowness. They crush the flower that would beautify their homes and regale them with its fragrance, because their hand did not plant it; they poison the stream that, if gently guided aright, would fructify their fields and fill their barns with plenty. Would these tyros take a little time to contemplate nature and its operations they might learn some valuable lessons on government. The great centre of our universe governs by attraction, not repulsion. His beams cheer and fructify all the planets within his system, while his attractive influence holds them in their orbits and causes them to revolve in the most beautiful order in their appointed spheres. The brethren and sisters with us are all moderately well at present, but we have not that vigor and strength that we enjoyed in Utah. We are all looking forward to the "good day coming," when circumstances will break this monotonous life and make business more lively.

A BABY MARKET .- The New York Dispatch gravely asserts that the sale of illegitimate babies in that city is a large and profitable business, and so publicly carried on as scarcely to be clandestine. These so-called nurseries are numerous, and may be found in different parts of the city. The seeker after infantile loveliness can, upon application, be accommodated to any desired extent; babies from one day to one year old, are on hand, or provided to order, of any and at prices ranging from $25 to $200. warranted sound, and in a good state of preservation at the time of delivery. A reporter who visited one of these baby bazaars was offered a sickly little male infant, seventeen days old, with a red flabby skin, covered with "rash," for the unreasonable price of $30. A robust female child, four months old, was exhibited, but the reporter did not inquire the price. A baby boy one month old, who was good and gave no trouble, was held at $75. A year and a half old French boy, with fair round limbs, hazel eyes, and curly black hair, was ticketed at $150. The matron in charge volunteered the information that babies just then were "rather dull."
