mother died in Provo, September 23 The deceased took an active part in the affairs of the city in an early day. He was mayor of the city from 1855 to 1860 and held other official positions. In the sixties he was called on the mission to settle the Muddy valley in Nevada, and remained there till the mission was abandoned when he returned to Provo, which has since been his home. He leaves two wives and eleven children, the youngest, Elder Benjamin Bullock being on a mission in Great Britain and two sisters, Mrs. Jane Riggs and Mrs. Mary Roberts, living in this city, and one brother, Mr. Jared Bullock, living in Wyoming. Elder Bullock was an unassuming, kindly, honorable man, considerate, sympathetic and charitable in all his intercourse with his fellow men, whose memory deserves to be honored by his descendants to the last generation. On the 26th and 27th of January last, the former date being the fiftleth anniversary of his marriage, and the ter the eightieth anniversary of his birth, a large family gathering was held at his home, attended by members of the family living in Provo. On the following day he became ill and his sickness continued till death brought

Joseph Sherman, one of the oldest inmates of the asylum, was buried yes-terday. He was about 76 years of age. a native of Canada, and came to Utah many years ago. He was an inmate of a private asylum in Salt Lake for several years before the State asylum was built, and was considered a very dan-gerous patient. After he came to Provo he became a model patient, and for many years did considerable work for the institution as a tailor and shoemaker. He was a handsome and shoe-tinguished looking man and always scrupulously neat in his habits and al-tire, making his own clothing and taking great pride in his appearance. OLD FOLKS' REUNION.
