Matter Discussed at Enthusiastic Meetings Held in Willard and Brigham City.

SPRAYING ALSO CONSIDERED

Inspection at Logan for Practical Application at St. George Experiment Farm.

Messrs. Thomas Judd, Mons Peterson and Joseph H. Parry, members of the state board of horticulture, went to Logan Saturday and visited the Agricultural college to look up irrigation data and the latest irrigation appliances. The inspection was made with a view to having the latter installed in the southern Utah experiment fruit farm at St. George, that the comparative irrigation requirements of various fruit and field crops may be accurately determined, to demonstrate the most profitable use that can be made of the limited irrigation water in southern Utah.

Messrs. Parry and Peterson, with Prof. W. N. Butt, the horticulturist of the Agricultural college, met with the fruitgrowers of Brigham City and Willard on Monday and Tuesday. Large and enthusiastic meetings were held in both places. The subject of organizing a fruit growers' exchange or union, to promote the fruit interests, especially the packing and selling of orchard products to the best advantage, received considerable attention, along with extensive discussion on spraying and orchard disinfection. The great benefit resulting from the use of the winter spray of lime, salt and sulphur, was strongly urged. Prof. Butt gave interesting addresses on the nature and best method of handling the pear blight, which is doing so much injury in the north and central portions of the state, in some sections destroying whole orchards.

Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Cure

Costs Nothing if it Fails.

Any honest person who suffers from Rheumatism is welcome to this offer. For years I searched everywhere to find a specific for Rheumatism. For nearly 20 years I worked to this end. At last, in Germany, my search was rewarded. I found a cure that did not disappoint me as other Rheumatic prescriptions had disappointed physicians everywhere.

I do not mean that Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Cure can turn joints into flesh again. That is impossible. But it will drive from the blood the poison that causes pain and swelling, and then that is the end of Rheumatism. I know this well. I will furnish for a full month my Rheumatic Cure on trial. I cannot cure all cases within a month. It would be unreasonable to expect that. But most cases will yield within 30 days. This trial treatment will convince you that Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Cure is a power against Rheumatism—a potent force against disease that is irresistible.

My offer is made to convince you of my faith. My faith is but the outcome of experience of actual knowledge. I know what it can do. And I know this so well that I will furnish my remedy on trial. Simply write me a postal for my book on Rheumatism. I will then arrange with a druggist in your vicinity so that you can secure six bottles of Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Cure to make the test. You may take it a full month on trial. If it succeeds the cost to you is $3.50. If it fails the loss is mine and mine alone. I do not expect a penny from you. Write me and I will send you the book. Try my remedy for a month. If it fails the loss is mine and mine alone. I do not expect a penny from you.

Address Dr. Shoop, Box 913, Racine, Wis.

Mild cases not chronic are often cured by one or two bottles. At all druggists.

FOUNDER OF THE SMITHSONIAN.

James Smithson, who founded the Smithsonian institution, never set foot in this country, but lived and died in Europe, and was buried in the English cemetery at Genoa. It will be recalled that he was the illegitimate son of a wealthy English nobleman, Northumberland of the third creation. He inherited a fortune through his mother, and dying in 1829, left about $100,000 to the United States to found a national academy of science and diffusion of knowledge among men. The story of his life and of the development of the disposition which led to this remarkable endowment are of deep and pathetic interest. The cemetery at Genoa falling into disrepair, Prof. Alexander Graham Bell proposed some years ago that Smithson's remains should be brought to this country and reinterred in Washington. The proposal was adopted by the arrangements were gradually perfected, and last month Prof. Bell went to Genoa. He expects to return about Jan. 15 with James Smithson's bones, which will be duly committed to a suitable tomb in Washington, probably in the grounds of the Smithsonian institution. Honor has been lavished in reaching this remarkable man, but it has come at last in full measure.—Harper's Weekly.

THE SOLDIER'S IDLE TIME

Military life is necessarily made up of loafing. You cannot keep a man continuously at drilling, marching or any other branch of military training for eight hours a day and five or six days a week. You have to invent a great many other jobs for him, even to make a pretense of keeping him occupied. But these jobs are nearly all idle time. The soldier is idle in the summer, when he has a great many more idle hours on his hands per diem than any other man in the same rank of life. I do not know whether it is possible to arrive at any record for idle time. If it is the direction in which I should look for the remedy would be to make every soldier, work at some trade for a certain number of hours each day. The number of hours might be shorter in the summer, when there is more opportunity for training and military exercise, and longer in the winter. If it were practicable, no doubt it would make an enormous difference to the value of the soldier as a citizen when he leaves the ranks.—London Truth.

THE IRISH PARTY.

No Alternative for it but Home Rule, Says Redmond.

London, Feb. 3.—"For the Irish party there is no such thing as an alternative policy to home rule," declared John Redmond, the leader of the Irish parliamentary party in the house of commons today, as he resumed debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne. Mr. Redmond proceeded to detail the various grievances of Ireland, incidentally informing the Liberals that it was delusion to suppose they could do anything to help Ireland. He proposed an alternative policy to home rule, because the Irish obtained an act last year remedying some of the evils of past governments, some persons seemed to think that the Irish parliament was shelved, but no concession could be made on the bill for self-government. On the contrary, every concession they had obtained or might obtain would be used for the furtherance of the cause for home rule. The Irish would rather govern themselves badly than be governed well by another nation.

Mr. Redmond bitterly attacked the government's attitude on education in Ireland, describing it as grossly absurd and irreparably harmful to the youth of Ireland. The government's course on the Irish university question, he added, was a dishonest evasion of an admitted duty and a grievance that poisoned the life of Ireland and condemned her to failure in the struggle of nations.

INSPECTING SALT LAKE BUILDINGS.

Electrical Expert Finds the Local Business Blocks Very Dangerous.

MUST DO RE-WIRING AT ONCE.

Unless it is Done Insurance Rates Will be Raised Inside of the Next Sixty Days.

C. A. Gaines, the electrical inspector for the board of fire underwriters of the Pacific, is continuing to inspect the buildings of Salt Lake with the result that he has found several that are in bad condition through defective wiring, notably two business blocks on East Temple street, one on First and one on Second South streets. It is stated that several others will be encountered before the inspection is complete. Owing to the competition among the wiring establishments there is said to be very much defective work in Salt Lake in the direction of stranger and insular of the wires, bad wire, no bushes through hidden woodwork and other defects. In this connection an electrician today told a very humorous story relative to wiring.

It was affirmed that a local firm took the job of wiring a house in the southeast part of the city and in course of events sent a young man, a stranger, from Denver, to do the work. The fellow returned to the shop and reported that he had completed the job, drew his pay and disappeared. When the owner of the house came to connect up the wiring he found that instead of wiring the house he had wired the neighbor's. A couple of bushes through the ceiling in each room, inserted two short pieces of wire so that the ends hung down—and let it go at that. The expert electrician then sold all the wire he had with him to the job, also his tools, and went west to grow up with the country.

While there is nothing quite as raw as this in the business, nevertheless some of the worst encountered is said to be very bad, to say the least. Those buildings which do not come up to the regulations are being marked and the owners notified that unless there is a change in the wiring the insurance rates will be raised in 60 days. In this connection there is being a lively interest shown among the various electrical houses in the city and Mr. Gaines is being followed closely. As soon as it gets news around that a certain building does not come up to requirements the electricians get hot on the trail of the owner for the contract of re-wiring, so between the inspector and the electricians the building owner is in a tight place. Defective wiring has long since been recognized as a hazard to be reckoned with by fire insurance companies. According to the report issued by the electrical bureau of the National Board of Fire Underwriters Jan. 11 for the preceding three months 165 fires, aggregating losses of over $15,000, were directly traced to this source, while reports from the bureau for the same period of 127 additional fires, losses aggregating $1,425,000, supposed to have been due to electricity, but they are not included in this report, as the causes could not be definitely proven as electrical, principally because the fire destroyed the conclusive evidences of their origin. The report includes the fire in the theater disaster and half-tones cannot be reproduced.

Among the freak electric fires cited is the case in the Dooly block, where a tailor's electric pressing iron was left on the fire and the building was destroyed. The fire was caused by a gas pipe in the cellar, a lighted incandescent lamp shut up in a folding bed, a cutout installed in a fixture canopy making contact with gas pipe, blowing out of a fuse in attachment plug in a show window, short circuit of 550 volt feeders caused by accumulated dirt and moisture, and many others.

London, Feb. 3, 5:05 p. m.—A dispatch to Reuters Telegram company from St. Petersburg dated yesterday and forwarded by way of the frontier, says the viceroy of the Russian empire, Viceroy Alexieff, has given Viceroy Alexieff authority to declare war and open hostilities on his own responsibility. He is charged with photographing Japanese fortifications shortly after his arrival at Shimoda, an important strategic point commanding the entrance to the Korean strait.

Senate Proceedings.

Washington, Feb. 3.—The senate took up the urgent deficiency appropriation bill at the beginning of today's session. When the committee amendment providing for a loan of $4,000,000 to the Louisiana Purchase exposition was reached, Mr. Bailey intimated that he might make a point of order against it, but he did not do so. The time, the point, and when at the instance of Mr. Culberson the amendment was so amended as to authorize the exhibition of range cattle from either north and south of the quarantine line, he abandoned the point entirely.

Mr. Bailey asked if the exposition amendment did not stipulate that no further appropriation be made for the exhibition.

"Undoubtedly," replied Mr. Hale. He then went on to explain that the government had great interest in the exhibition and that the United States was a shareholder to the extent of the receipt of one-third of the proceeds. Mr. Hale also explained that the government had participated to the extent of inviting foreign governments to participate.

Mr. Bailey argued that as Congress had especially provided that it was not to be committed to further appropriations the senate from Maine could not contend that the proposed amendment was to carry out existing law.

President Pro Tem. Frye then announced that he would submit the point of order to the senate.

Before this could be done, Mr. Tillman said he wanted to say something on this "loan or gift." The latter, he thought, as it was not likely that the government would ever get anything back. In the course of his remarks he said South Carolina had a share of the steel that had been secured by other cities and he had helped to get it. What he meant was that this expenditure of money was unlawful and unconstitutional.

Mr. Spooner remarked that the senator from South Carolina had put himself on record as participating in a steel.

"What I mean," declared Mr. Tillman, "is that when Congress takes money from the people and gives it to expose them to a risk of a steel. What I want to know is how far we are to go and how much longer we are to participate in—." Here Tillman hesitated. "Steals," interjected Mr. Spooner. "Yes, steals," said Mr. Tillman defiantly.

LIBERAL UNIONISTS.

Hold Meeting and Decide to Maintain Their Organization.

London, Feb. 3.—The Liberal Unionists at a meeting of their executive council held here today decided to maintain their organization. The meeting was called to discuss the situation arising from the publication of the correspondence between Joseph Chamberlain and the Duke of Devonshire, formerly lord president of the council. Mr. Chamberlain presided and made a speech setting forth the necessity of the existence of the association. He said nothing had happened to the association in the future which the danger which the association was formed to combat could only disappear by a declaration of the Irish party that they had abandoned all hope of their intention of converting Great Britain to home rule.

Only two members voted against the resolution providing for the maintenance of the association.

Another resolution instructed the council to assist the Liberal-Unionist candidates without regard to their opinions on the fiscal question, the only qualification necessary being their readiness to support Premier Balfour.
