DISASTROUS CONFLAGRATION.

Warehouses of Boyle Furniture Co., G. A. Low Co. and Hide & Pelt Co. Burned.

SHOCKING DEATH OF CHILD.

Ran Into by R. G. W. Passenger Train At Woods Cross and Dies in Ogden Hospital.

Ogden, May 7.—Ogden was visited by a $1,000 fire yesterday afternoon, about 4:30 o'clock, destroying the warehouses of Boyle Furniture company, George A. Lowe & Company, and the Ogden Hide & Pelt company.

The fire was discovered at the hour mentioned by a railroad call boy, who saw smoke issuing from the Boyle Furniture company's building. An alarm was telephoned to the fire department, which quickly responded, but the flames had gained such headway that the other buildings which adjoined it on both sides had commenced to burn. The department quickly laid several strings of hose to the fire and soon had streams of water playing on the buildings, but the fire was already beyond control, and the heat was so intense that the firemen could not get close to the buildings; so hot was the fire that the hose, with water running through it, was scorched, lying in the middle of the wagon road on Wall avenue, and the firemen, realizing that they could save but little of the three warehouses directed their attention for some time in saving the Scovcroft & Sons' company's large building, and C. A. Smurthwaite's warehouse. The Smurthwaite building caught fire twice but the flames were quickly extinguished, doing only about $100 worth of damage.

The George A. Lowe company was the greatest loser. It had a stock of $15,000, consisting of heavy wagons, light wagons, buggies and hardware in its building, and but little was saved, but the property was fully insured.

The Boyle Furniture company was totally destroyed, together with its contents, which consisted of iron beds, chairs, little iron wagons and other furniture valued at about $7,000, and the building at $2,000. The stock was fully insured, but the building was a total loss. The Boyle company carried $1,000 insurance in the following: The Home Fire of New York, German Alliance of New York, and in the Scottish Union & National.

The Ogden Hide & Pelt company's stock of hides and furs belonged to J. S. Smith & Company of Chicago, and was valued at between $5,000 and $6,000, which was totally destroyed, with an insurance of $3,000. The building which it occupied, valued at $1,500, belonged to O. M. Runyon, manager of the company, which was only insured for $1,000. This building was also occupied by the company as its office, and all of its books and valued papers were in the safe, and Mr. Runyon has been unable to get at them to find out their condition.

The flames shot up into the air for a long distance, as the stock in the building was very dry and burned quickly. The fire department did some excellent work in saving the adjoining buildings. The department was at work for over four hours.

The exact origin of the fire is not known, but it is supposed a spark from O. S. L. switch engine No. 1161, which passed the buildings a short time be-

BABY'S SHOCKING FATE.

Hit by R. G. W. Passenger Train and Fatally Injured.

Ogden, May 7.—A sad, fatal accident occurred on the Rio Grande Western Saturday afternoon, when Marie, the little two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parker of Wood's Cross, Davis county, met with injuries that proved fatal. The Parker family lives but a few rods from the Rio Grande Western railroad tracks at Wood's Cross. Saturday while the young parents were busily engaged in work around the home, the little child wandered from the house to the railroad tracks, and was not missed by the mother until she heard Rio Grande Western passenger train No. 5, north-bound, coming along and show up. The mother seemed to realize that something had happened, and began to search for the babe, and was grief-stricken when she saw the train come to a halt and the trainmen picked up the unconscious form of the child. The father was quickly summoned, and the parents, together with their injured babe and a little three-year-old child were placed on the train and brought to Ogden with all possible speed. On arrival here they were quickly taken to the Ogden hospital, where physicians were in readiness to operate on the child, but its injuries, which consisted of a large scalp wound and a fracture of the skull were too serious for the child to survive, and it passed away in a few minutes after being placed in the operating room. The heartbroken parents had the little body prepared for burial and returned to Wood's Cross on the evening train. It is claimed that at the point where the accident occurred the R. G. W. had no fence or other protection from its tracks.

TRIBUTE TO FRIENDSHIP.

Address of Rev. J. E. Carver at Eagles Memorial Services.

Ogden, May 7.—The Eagles held their memorial services yesterday afternoon commencing at 3 o'clock which were largely attended. Some very beautiful vocal selections were rendered by Miss Hancock and Mrs. Jones.

Rev. J. E. Carver addressed the assembly, taking for his subject, "Friendship." He said in part: "Friendship is one of the greatest blessings that God has given to man. That man is rich who is rich in friends and that man is poor who has no friends even though he may be rich in worldly treasure. Cicero has written a great classic on friendship and yet the most common man who has one true friend knows in his heart the value of friendship's tie, as well as classic pen can depict it. It is life's friendship that changes dull routine, dark trial, grim despair and steady toll into a life of contentment. Some time ago we noticed an Oriental weaver, weaving a beautiful tapestry, the most of it is composed of dull coarse thread, somber in shade and unattractive to view but through it all he was entwining beautiful strands of scarlet and gold into figures of rare richness and beauty so that when the work was completed it was an object of rare attractiveness. Such we thought is the place of friendship in human life. The most of our life is common place and oftentimes saddened with sorrow or made heavy with care. Failure too oftentimes deepens life's monotony and into a life like this friendship comes like the beautiful strands in the tapestry and changes the tolling and commonplace into joy and contentment. Let us treasure then the memory of our friends as a sacred heritage. Let us think of them as part of God's choicest gifts to us, let us see in them a manifest evidence of His love. There are many phases of friendship. How much we owe the helpfulness of friendship. Worldly things do not constitute near all of life's needs. The heartiest and noblest need that which true friendship only can give and which if friendship does not give us must be left unsupplied. Even the sorrows which our friends bear are needed by us that our sympathy may be deepened and that our power of bearing another's burden may be developed."

Special Correspondence.

Logan, May 6.—Ruben P. Robinson, a young man from Willard, who was attending the Agricultural college, died about midnight last night as a result of injuries received in a baseball game yesterday afternoon. After the track meet a game of ball was played between a team representing the engineering classes and a picked nine from the school. Robinson was at the bat. The pitcher, a student named Gardner, threw a fast in curve. Robinson stooped to dodge the ball, but it struck him squarely on the left temple. He was dazed for an instant or two, but on recovering proceeded with the game. After the game was finished he went home, and at the supper table complained of feeling ill. His head was swimming and he was unable to get to bed and to sleep. His loud snoring attracted the notice of his fellow students, who tried to awaken him. Failing in this they sent for a doctor, but before help could reach the young man he had died. His relatives came from Willard and took the body home.
