

TEACHERS BEGIN CONVENTION WORK

Dr. Henry Suzzalo the Principal Speaker in Two Notable Addresses.

PROGRAM FOR TOMORROW.

Departmental Sessions to be held at High School beginning at 10 a. m.—Afternoon in Assembly Hall.

Two addresses by Dr. Suzzalo marked the afternoon and evening sessions of the opening day of the State Teachers' convention in the Assembly hall Monday. Dr. Suzzalo expressed his pleasure in addressing an audience in Salt Lake City once more, and said that while the old warfare is passing a new warfare has begun. "The new warfare," said Dr. Suzzalo, "involves the intimate relationship of education with liberty—a conflict between cultural and industrial education. While men are contending for more industrial instruction in the modern schools and less of that which is for the child's benefit, this industrial system means an incompetent democracy. It means the keeping of the working class poor and adding to the riches of those already rich. The capital of the country is working for more industrial education, in the interest of the factories which are the source of wealth.

"What we need," said Dr. Suzzalo, "is not to take a partisan view of the matter, but to consider it from all its sides. Democracy must be competent to compete in the market place of the world. No man is educated for the democracy of life unless he has two educations, an education for culture and an education for a vocation. An education for culture and an education for some specialized line of work are not in conflict in reality, and there is no reason why they should be. Every American citizen should be trained in two lines of education—one for common culture and the other for some special line of work.

EDUCATION FOR VOCATION.
"Education for vocation is defective in that the whole stress is laid on the industrial development. We must look to the old training in the professions, lawyers, doctors, and so on. A true vocation education must include that which is professional and agricultural. "An education for culture, on the other hand, is simply an education for manhood. No man is cultured unless he senses a vital social kindred with his fellow man. The old conception of culture was that it was useless except in the ballroom or in society. Teachers must attempt to do that which a man cannot be cultured and work with his hands, for man's work requires culture. The professional man should be trained in culture in order to safeguard his workmanship, and so more culture is really needed in the schools instead of less of it. Culture is necessary for the preservation of democracy, for which the civilized world has always striven. Cultural education is really a supplement to industrial education."

At the conclusion of Dr. Suzzalo's address a musical selection was rendered by Mrs. Wetzel's quartet. During the afternoon the following committees were named by President Briggs: Constitution and by-laws—W. S. Rawlings, J. M. Mills, George Thomas. Enrollment—Evelyn Kelly, Wilka Sprague and Mrs. Short. Resolutions—J. O. Cross, J. H. Paul and N. K. Nielson. Auditing—A. C. Nelson, D. H. Robinson and G. N. Child. These committees will make their reports on the last day of the convention, Wednesday.

EVENING SESSION.
The assembly hall was again crowded in the evening, when Dr. Suzzalo made a powerful talk on "The Teaching Life." Dr. Balliet and Miss Harris had arrived in the city during the afternoon, and were present at the evening session. The Imperial quartet rendered the selection, "Dreaming There." Dr. Suzzalo said in part: "It is to be noted first of all that our life is a professional life. Teaching is today an equal profession to that of law or medicine. You have heard it declared the teacher is the servant of the public. I think the misunderstanding of teaching as a profession has come largely from the fact that teachers have been paid by salary. When you are told that a teacher is simply a servant of the state, I ask you to be suspicious of that definition.

PUBLIC OBLIGATIONS.
"We have certain obligations to the public. We must look upon teaching as a social service, but on the other hand we must see it from the standpoint of leading others. Professional practise is always the higher and more dignified calling in the eyes of the public, and justly so.

The teacher's service is the mastering of a crisis like that of the lawyer, doctor or minister. It is a crisis from the standpoint of the child which makes him a master of crisis. Teaching must be a mastering of crises. It means that you must solve the problems of childhood and bring stimulation to the child. When you interpret the course of study to the child it is simply stimulating that child's life. The mastery of a crisis is the mastery of a new situation and most situations are new to children. Things old to the teacher are new to the child. As the crisis of the child often becomes itself a crisis to the teacher, the teacher himself must be a thinker.

SERVANT OF SOCIETY.
"In the practise of any profession man is in a way a servant of society. The professional man is not working alone for money, but for the purpose of reaching the ideal in his line of labor, thus rendering a social service. When money-making dominates the profession, then it ceases to be a profession. It is true of doctors, ministers and teachers. One of the great truths of professional labor is that the professional workman is primarily the servant of humanity and society.
"The profession of the teacher is first, the mastering of the moral and intellectual crisis of childhood, and second, the rendering unto society of a social service.

MASTERY OF CRISIS.
"We ought to look upon teaching as the mastery of crisis and not the driving of children. The monotony of the work will then disappear and teachers will enjoy their lives and calling. Teaching is not the mere work of teaching children every scholastic fact in the course of study, but rather the making of men and not the transmission of facts only in your duty. When you are interested in your work, the making of men and the drag and grind of your work are no more. The realization of teaching as a mastery of crisis will take away the monotony of the school room."

RECEPTION AT ODEON.
The reception and ball at Odeon hall was a pronounced success, the function being attended by more than 500 teachers. The hall was brilliantly illuminated. Between dances the visiting teachers repaired to the floors below where refreshments were served. The affair was under the leadership of F. N. Poulson and William Bradford, while every principal and every local teacher constituted himself a host in making the evening pleasant for the visitors.

CHRISTMAS AFTERMATH.

Complaints Covering Assault and Grand Larceny Issued.

Four complaints were issued Monday by the county attorney as the result of Christmas festivities. Bert Rance attempted to kill his wife, Anna Rance, Christmas day. It is alleged, by throwing a stove poker at her. The poker missed her head by a narrow margin, and Mrs. Rance swore to a complaint against him charging him with assault with intent to do bodily harm. Rance came home intoxicated, it is said, and when his wife reproached him for it he attacked her.
George Moore, who became intoxicated the day before Christmas, and shot up the house of Samuel Westfield at Eleventh East and Tenth South street, was charged with disturbing the peace. Moore was pursued by a posse the day of the shooting and when he was captured he was tied to a tree. The sheriff sent a deputy who released him and took him to the county jail.
Leonard Jackson is charged with grand larceny. The complaint alleges that on Christmas day he stole a Peter Buekovich of $9 and a gold watch.
Lyle Baratt, who conducts a pool hall at 25 west Second South street, was arrested on the charge of contributing to the delinquency of Dover Francisworth, 17 years old. The young man with several other companions played pool in the place Christmas day.

THE MARIMBA BAND.

Unique Organization Which Comes With Lauder at the Tabernacle.

The Harry Lauder Concert company, which comes to the tabernacle Wednesday evening, Jan. 5, has a number of striking features in addition to Lauder himself, probably the most famous of the Marimba band, a troupe of Central American boys who perform on a very peculiar instrument, the like of which has never been seen before. They play their own native airs which are quite catchy. There are five Guatemalan boys in the troupe and all of them are brothers. The instrument upon which they perform is called a "Marimba," and is the only one of its kind before the public. It was built by the father of the boys, who is quite a musical genius. He taught them to play when they were children, and when they made their first public appearance in their native country, two of them were so small they were obliged to stand on stools in order to properly play.
They have appeared in public in a great many of the Latin American countries, and have won medals of merit.

ORDERED TO VACATE.

Dissolution of the Old Chamber of Commerce Scheduled Next Week.

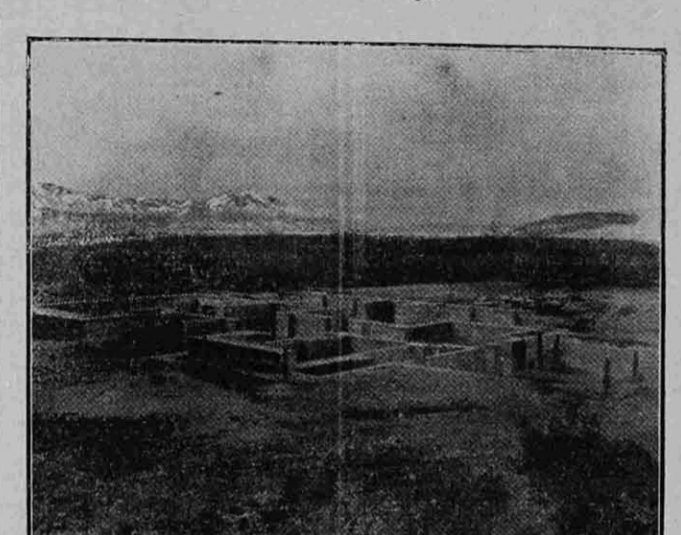

In a few days there will be a great breaking and tearing away in the so-called Chamber of Commerce building on west Third South street, near the Sanitarium. Some time ago the Utah Manufacturers' association gave notice that as soon as the Vermont building on South Temple was ready for occupancy it would take up quarters there, which act meant that the Real Estate association, Chamber of Commerce and State Fair association had occupied a part of the same ground floor would be out looking for new homes. The Salt Lake Chamber of Commerce will then be a thing of the past, having been dead virtually for years.

In order to renovate the building so it may be cleaned up and rented to advantage to various kinds of businesses that are rapidly pushing out west along this street, orders have recently been received by the occupants of the big room to vacate by the first of the year, or as soon thereafter as possible. Preparations for moving are now under way and soon the old Chamber of Commerce will be "dark." So now the Utah Manufacturers' association, as well as the others, are looking for new quarters, at least until the Vermont building is completed, which is being hurried forward with all possible dispatch. This should be about the first of February. The Vermont will furnish a splendid home for the Manufacturers' association, the location being central and the quarters to be made to order, as it were.

Brigham Young University Campaign.

This Department is Conducted by a Member of the Faculty.

BASEMENT OF THE NEW TEACHERS' COLLEGE.

On his recent visit to Utah President Taft and party were driven to Temple hill as being the most prominent point of interest in the city. He thought it was an ideal place for a great school, and grew enthusiastic over the prospect of Utah valley, with the broad expanse of Utah lake to the west, and the panorama toward the south of a dozen cities and towns, spread out amid fertile fields and well stocked pastures, a rural paradise. The foundations of the building, which are of cement concrete, were already finished on the occasion of the presidential visit.

Estimates Necessary to Complete the building $110,000
Subscribed by Alumni and friends 58,157
Subscribed by B. Y. U. Faculty 9,775
Subscribed by Students now attending 3,861
Subscribed in large since the beginning of the holiday campaign 7,648
Amount still necessary to complete the building 32,569

A prominent visitor to Utah, on viewing the unfinished walls of the Salt Lake temple wrote: "There seems to be centuries of anticipation in every representative act of this peculiar people."

How true the remark is, may be verified on every hand. The laying out of Salt Lake City is an instance, also the building of the Tabernacle and the great organ within it. All our temples proclaim the same ideal, also our churches, especially those of recent erection. The Salt Lake theater was half a century in advance of buildings of its kind. The Groves L. D. S. hospital is another illustration, and the most recent examples are the Deseret News business block and the new Utah hotel on the site of the old titling block.

It is therefore only in keeping with traditions of our people that the administrative building of the Brigham Young university should be built of the most enduring material, and be as artistic in contour as college architecture will permit.

In other words, in asking you to contribute your means to so splendid a structure, we are appealing to your pride—the pride every Latter-day Saint feels in seeing his Church set the pace to the world in all things that make for the elevation of mankind.

But this very pride of achieving the best, compels us to trust the future, compels us to project things for which the means of accomplishment are nearly always hidden in the rich, fertile soil of FAITH. And not only is faith required for this enterprise, taken as a totality, but in the very nature of things, faith is equally required by each individual donor in deciding upon what shall be his share in it.

In any passing enterprise in which he is asked for money—and these come to him, as they should, every day—he gives on the basis of knowledge; that is, he feels in his pocket, and divides generously from the contents of his purse. But in contemplating his share in a great temple—say a temple of learning—he names a sum that draws heavily upon his confidence in the future.

"I don't know where it is coming from, but put me down for $100"—no remark has been commoner than that in the meetings for raising funds for this building.

You see, dear friends, we are appealing for a real sacrifice on your part, assured as we are that "sacrifice brings forth the blessings of heaven."

FOR RIGID ENFORCEMENT.

Electricians Meet With the Object of Securing Better Inspection Rules.

Men prominent in the Salt Lake electrical world met Monday night at the Commercial club and took the first steps toward organizing an association which will have for its objects a rigid enforcement of inspection rules for electrical wiring of all buildings, a higher standard of workmanship, and a betterment of the craft generally. The matter has been under consideration for some time and the meeting was the outcome of the feeling that Salt Lake has grown to the size where it should have metropolitan laws along electrical lines.
Eleven representatives of supply dealers and contracting firms were present. They were F. C. Walker of the Salt Lake Electric Supply company; C. B. Hawley, Intermountain Electric company; Lon J. Haddock, Independent Electric company; Frank Ade, Citizens' Electric company; O. L. Saul, Utah Electric Supply company; G. H. C. Gulver, B. G. Holding company; Thomas Honos, Electric Wiring & Fixture company; George Winness, Electrical Engineering company; Construction company; Mr. Gaylord, Foulks-Gaylord company of Los Angeles; Mr. Kingsley, Meteor Electric company, and George Gunn, Madison & Gunn company.
A committee to prepare a constitution and bylaws is composed of F. C. Walker, C. B. Hawley, George Winness, Lon J. Haddock and G. H. C. Gulver. The association intends to co-
