

brewing among the employees of the Southern California railway, and especially in the ranks of those working in the railroad shops there. Many of the men employed in the shops have their homes in Los Angeles and long have enjoyed the benefit of reduced fares whenever they desired to go to Los Angeles to visit their families. New orders have been promulgated and seven men have been refused special rates over the road and told they would hereafter have to pay full fares. This lopping off of perquisites has caused much dissatisfaction and may result in a general strike unless cooler counsels prevail or the obnoxious order is repealed. The cause of the issuance of such an order is said to be due to the desire of San Bernardino merchants to keep the trade at home. They claim that employees go to Los Angeles to trade, whereas if they had to pay full fare they would spend their money with San Bernardino merchants.

The cutworms are said to be very bad all over the country this spring, says the Denver Field and Farm. These caterpillars are larvae of night flying moths. There are many species of these, a common one being that known as the variegated cutworm. The moths lay their eggs during the summer months; the larvae generally feed upon grass during the summer and autumn. During winter they secrete themselves in grass, under boards, and the like, and early in the spring are ready to attack any green vegetation. In gardens it pays well to trap the worms under boards, or to dig and kill them wherever they may be at work. A good method also consists in making up a poisoned mixture consisting of bran or corn meal with water enough to cover it, to which is added a little molasses and some paris green. A tablespoonful of this mixture should be put out in the garden late in the day, at intervals of about every five feet. The worms work at night and will be killed by eating this poisoned mixture, but care must be taken that fowls may not get hold of it.

Denver Field and Farm: Eugene V. Debs is sending out missionaries in nearly every state in the west to establish a co-operative commonwealth that shall attract the attention of the world. His Colorado emissaries left Denver this week in a yellow van, on each side of which are painted the words, "Co-operative Commonwealth Van." The missionaries who go with the van are James Hogan, vice-president of the American railway union, who was Debs' right hand man in the Chicago strike, and who served three months in the Woodstock jail with his chief for contempt of court; N. L. Griest, a local revolutionary socialist, who believes that the present social system must be abolished at any hazard; and William Holmes, who was prominent in the Haymarket riots in Chicago. They will preach socialism in every important town in the state, and prepare the way for the inauguration of Debs' co-operative commonwealth. Following is the partial itinerary of the van: Greeley, June 4th; Fort Collins, June 6th; Loveland, June 9th; Louisville, June 10th; Longmont, June 11th; Boulder, June 12th; Littleton, June 14th. From Littleton the van will go south to Colorado Springs, taking in the principal towns en route, thence to Pueblo, stopping four or five days. From Pueblo they will go to La Veta, thence over La Veta pass into the San Luis valley. They will take about three weeks for the purpose, and will visit the Olathe colony, a socialistic settlement which was established about two years ago. Then they will go to Grand Junction and make their way back, stopping at Leadville, Aspen and all of the mining towns.

HAVANA, June 6.—In political circles and among the Spanish general public, where a feeling of acute anxiety has existed as to the outcome of the cabinet crisis in Madrid, keen satisfaction is expressed at the news that Senor Canovas has received fresh proof of confidence from the crown.

OBITUARY NOTES.

LIEUT. COL. J. M. DUNNING.

CANNONVILLE, Utah, May 31st, 1897.—The peace and quietness that usually reigns in Cannonville has been disturbed recently by the death of our esteemed friend and comrade Lieutenant Colonel J. M. Dunning, who passed peacefully to his rest on the morning of May 21st, 1897. His death was caused by a cancer in the mouth. He was under the care of Dr. Siner of Panguitch, who, might have effected a cure if his patient had not been troubled with heart disease. As it was, the ordeal was more than he could stand, and the result, as before stated, was his death.

He was born in Rochester, New York, February 26th, 1855; was married in Beaver City, March 19th, 1875, and joined the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in the early part of 1876. Although not in the least sanctimonious, he was always sincere in his convictions, and as proof of this statement, it need only be said that during the "raid" he left his wives, children, and all on earth that was dear to him to serve a term in the penitentiary, for the Gospel's sake. As a soldier his loyalty and patriotism cannot be questioned. He joined the U. S. army in 1865, at the early age of 10 years, enlisting as a drummer boy. He has three honorable discharges from the regular army, and died serving his fourth term as a soldier, being a lieutenant colonel in the National Guard of Utah. Congress recently awarded him a medal for being the youngest soldier enlisted in the army. His lifelong desire was for the preservation of the Union and the protection of American citizens; and if there ever comes a time when the Constitution is tottering or Old Glory seems on the eve of disgrace, may every American citizen, young and old, pattern after his example.

Sister Jolley is a daughter of Thomas and Mary Keel, now residing at Emery, Emery county, Utah, and was born at Harmony, Washington county, then Kane—June 24, 1869, being nearly 28 years of age at the time of her death. She moved with her parents to Mt. She passed suddenly away after giving birth to her fifth son—which was still-born—being ill but a few hours.

Sister Jolley was of most amiable disposition, a faithful Latter-day Saint, an affectionate wife and mother, a warm friend and of a character that commanded the respect and esteem of all associated with her in life. She leaves many relatives and a circle of friends numbered only by the limit of her acquaintance, all of whom will greatly lament her early call from this stage of action. Her husband is prostrated with grief, and the entire community deeply sympathize with him and his little ones in their hour of extreme sorrow.
