

STATE FAIR IS NOW HISTORY.

Everything Points to Big Exposition Being a Record-Breaker In Every Sense.

FAT BALANCE IN TREASURY.

It Will Be Some Days, However, Before Actual Figures Will Be Forthcoming.

By tonight practically every exhibit will have been moved from the fair grounds. Yesterday morning the exodus of livestock and the moving of fruit commenced and the Sabbath generally was fairly shattered as an air of bustle and confusion prevailed at Agricultural Park.

Today there was no official statement forthcoming regarding the attendance at the fair and the fat balance sheet. There is an immense amount of work to be done before the total expenditures and receipts can be balanced. However it has been demonstrated that the paid attendance this year has established a new record, somewhere in the neighborhood of 40,000, and in addition there have been two days less expenditure in comparison to last year. The race track and the midway also have enjoyed a distinctly better patronage, while there have been more concessions on the grounds, from which the D. A. & M. society has drawn revenue.

LAST OF THE AWARDS.

Additional prizes in department A.A., fast horses beyond those already set forth in the "News" include a premium for George M. Cannon for the best shetland pony, and first prize for John R. Winder for the best matched team of shetland ponies.

Walter Kiddle's exhibit of what can be grown on a six-acre farm attracted considerable attention at the fair. The display included eight varieties of apples, five of pears, seven of plums, and grapes, seven kinds of squash, beets, carrots, cucumbers, cabbage, rutabaga, tomatoes, onions, peas and sweet corn.

Albert J. Sear, Democratic nominee for county clerk, exhibited some splendid samples of his handiwork with a pen. It was in the form of a framed engraved resolution of condolence.

William Kramiec of Sandy secured a special $10 premium for a display of fruit which was grown on 12 acres of rocky land which ten years ago was considered completely worthless.

The Salt Lake public schools simply swept the board in the department of education and captured all prizes offered as follows:

AN INQUIRY.

If any of the Elders or Saints in the Southern States knows of the whereabouts of Mr. Rollen K. Roberts, who formerly resided in Provo, Utah, they will confer a favor by communicating with William D. Roberts, Provo City, Utah.

FREAK WAGER MAN.

His Town on His Crank Walk Across the Continent—Meets Brother Here.

A strange visitor at the fair grounds was D. P. Evans, the man who is pushing a wheelbarrow across America and back in 20 months to pay an election bet. Evans, with his dog, King, walked by from Lehi Friday, and registered at the Kenyon, wheelbarrow, dog and man. Mr. Porter gave the wheelbarrow passage in the basement, where it will remain till Wednesday, when the strange pedestrian continues on his way to San Francisco. On Saturday Evans started out for the fair grounds, and his coat front covered with the little stars shows that he can't sell or throw away but that you can take and say your own price for it, if you insist upon it. While en route to the grounds he received a genuine surprise in meeting his brother Mark Evans on the other side of the mountain. He had finally left the Cleveland to join him. He traced the way to Salt Lake, and arrived there on Saturday a. m. Mark declared that he will stay with his brother over the night, and then he will return to the south Pacific snow sheds into California.

Monday Evans will call upon Governor Wells and Mayor Morris, to obtain their signatures, as is required in the terms of the bet. When asked how he would manage his wheelbarrow through the 40 miles of tunnels and snowdrifts in the Sierras he replied: "Well, I don't expect to have to sleep in the sheds. I have frequently done more than 40 miles in a day, and expect to get clear through the sheds and tunnels in daylight."

A PREDICTION FULFILLED.

To the Editor: Wellsville, Oct. 5.—I would like a small space in your valuable paper with regard to the commencement of dry farming in Cache Valley. I heard President Brigham Young, at one time, while visiting our valley, declare that the dry benches and uplands would yet be covered with beautiful fields of grain and having faith in his prediction in the year 1875, I commenced to dry farm, as they call it, and had good success even at that early date, having an idea that where vegetation, etc., would grow, grain also would.

JOSHUA SALISBURY.

ECOLLE RETURNS HOME.

Tells of Le Grand, Ogden and Logan Sugar Factories—The Outlook.

(Special to the "News.") Ogden, Oct. 10.—David Eccles has returned home today. He says that the Le Grande sugar factory will handle about 45,000 tons of beets this year; the Ogden factory will consume 40,000 tons but that the Logan factory will not do quite as well as last year. However, the outlook is good and the three factories will handle about 100,000 tons.

MCDONALD RESIGNS.

Well Known Railroad Man Will Engage in Forwarding Business.

(Special to the "News.") Price, Utah, Oct. 10.—B. R. McDonald, for nine years station agent for the Rio Grande system at Price, has tendered his resignation to General Supt. Young, and is to quit the service of the company as soon as some one is named to take his place. Mr. McDonald's resignation was sent in on the 27th of September, but owing to the importance of Price station, the company has insisted that he remain until such time as is convenient for the transfer to another. Mr. McDonald has been connected with the Rio Grande Western, the Pleasant Valley Coal company and the Utah Fuel company in Carbon county for 15 years. He quit an active railroad career of about 25 years to engage in the forwarding business. He will remain in Price and give his personal attention to the Price and Vernal stage line and the handling of his forwarding business to the Utah reclamation and Vernal country, also the hay and grain business and government contracts.

SAM GRICE'S LUCK.

Once More the Jury Brings in Verdict Of Not Guilty.

Sam Grice has again escaped from the toils of the law. It has become a firm belief among the local authorities that it is useless to attempt to prosecute Grice, as he invariably escapes punishment. Few men have been in the custody of the officials more often than Grice, and none have been as fortunate as he in escaping conviction and punishment.

NORWICH CONFERENCE.

The Norwich conference reunion was held Friday night in the Twelfth ward assembly room, there being 140 persons present. A splendid program of songs, speeches, recitations, etc., was rendered, and during the evening delicious refreshments were served to all present. Among the speakers were President John H. White and "Uncle" Robert Nealen, the latter giving a reminiscent talk on conditions in the Norwich pastorate many years ago, when that district included Hertfordshire, Buckinghamshire, Huntingdonshire, Northamptonshire, Cambridgeshire, Norfolk and Suffolk. The fact was also recalled that the Norwich was the first of the British conferences to hold a Utah reunion, this custom having been adopted as early as 1886, when such a gathering was held in the Twentieth ward new school room, the committee consisting of S. Nealen, J. Davies, R. F. Nealen, W. Ashman and J. L. Bunting. And those present last night were two who joined the church in Norwich in 1848—William H. and Sarah Foster, and two who joined a year later, Sarah E. Davis and Charlotte H. Evans. In addition to President White the other officers of the society are William H. Pitt, vice president and J. Fred Daynes, secretary.

HOW JOKES GO THE ROUNDS.

Some of the jokes going the rounds are really original with the authors. Others have been born upon reading the work of a rival. Occasionally a very old joke will suggest a new one, here is, for instance, the joke which has been used for 20 years or more on the minister and variety stage. One man, referring to a woman, says, "She is not exactly handsome, but she has a face that grows on one." The other speaker, usually a woman, answers: "Well I'm glad it did not grow on me." About four or five years ago a well-known comic paper printed that joke; did it purposely? I read it, and to wondering if the editor knew how old the joke was, and I mentally decided that he did, and that he had printed the joke as a joke. About that time a certain doctor advertised heavily that he could amend, revamp, alter, improve, disguise, and change human features by grafting. This idea led me to improve the old joke, and I made the second half of the joke as follows: "I suppose so. It certainly is not a face that one would have grafted." I sold this for two dollars. A few weeks later I heard Mr. Irwin use it on the stage—A "Jokesmith," in October Booklovers Magazine.

WHY JOHN ALLEN'S LIFE WAS SPARED.

"I went to Chickamauga with Judge Newman and Judge Barbour Thompson," says former Congressman John Allen of Mississippi. "I walked about the field and heard the old fellows talking about the spots on which they were wounded, and telling all manner of marvelous stories. I was not at Chickamauga, but I was in other great battles, and when I am told that he can return and pick out the spots where all sorts of things happen in battle, many years afterward, you can put him down as a liar." "Well, everybody was lying, and I had to lie a little myself. I was standing by the railroad station when an old veteran asked me when the next train left for Rome. I replied: 'I haven't been here for forty years. When I stand here and look up that perpendicular hill, recalling the charge I made up it, through a shower of shot and shell; how I dashed my horse through a Federal battery, leaping seven different belching cannons, and emerging from the carnage unscathed, I wonder that I am alive today.'"

The old fellow's eyes filled with tears, as he walked up, put his arm over my shoulder, and said: "Young man, you were undoubtedly spared for some great purpose."

GHASTLY GAMBLING.

"Policies, I'll wager, are already being taken out in London on the life of little Alexis, the new heir to the Russian throne," said an insurance agent. "The English gamble horribly in life insurance, and Alexis must appeal to them as a wonderful risk. They will pay high for him, though." "The insurance rates on all royal lives are a tribute to the power of the nihilists and anarchists, for they are so huge as to be almost prohibitive. The rate on the King of England is enormous, and among monarchs his is the lowest rate of any. That on the Russian czar is the highest. The czar is a bad risk. Many companies would not insure him on any consideration."

"But I loyds, the great London concern, would insure anything or anybody." "Prof. Langley going up in one of his flying machines; a Japanese spy about to enter Port Arthur; a Russian battleship going into battle; Alexis, the little Russian heir, and a certain class of men, taking advantage of this fact, are producing policies upon the baby's life."

"Gambling on lives is a ghastly form of sport, and I believe that it is practiced nowhere but in England. It ought not to be practiced there. The law ought to prohibit it. At Lloyd's, however, it is always going on. Policies at Lloyd's are continually being taken out on persons of eminence all over the world."—Washington Post.

RUSSIA'S UNDERGROUND QUARTERS AT HARBIN.

Harbin, northeast of Mukden, on the line of the Transiberian railway, has been made "a shelter in the time of storm" by the Russian army. Deeming the city safe from the Japanese for some time, the Russians have established well protected winter quarters there and have even gone so far as to build, or, better, dig, many underground cellars. These serve a double purpose. They afford protection against cold and snow and also against the bullets and shells with which the Japs are certain to bombard them if the mikado's doughty little fighters penetrate that far north.

The practice of building underground quarters is an old one. During the sieges of practically all the cities in the various European wars soldiers and civilians lived at times in cellars and caves. In Paris hundreds of terrified people fled to the sewers on some occasions.

In the civil war here in America underground habitations were sometimes resorted to. During the bombardments of Atlanta and Charleston the women and children were in many cases placed in cellars and cave-like "bomb proofs."
