CORBETT TELLS OF HIS AMBITION

Believes He Will Defeat Kid Herman-Gives Many Reasons.

JOE GANS TO THE RESCUE.

Dusky Champion Takes Interest in Little Fighter and is Responsible for Denverite's Good Resolutions.

When a fighter has reached that stage where he is generally regarded as a mem-ber of the down and out club, can he recover lost prestige and again work his way to the top ring of the pugilistic severe loss to the top ring of the pugilistic ladder?

Scores of fighters who have been at or near the top of their class, but who fell for various reasons, have tried to get hack to their old-time form but falled. Many authorities on the ways of the ring are of the opinion that, once a fighter reaches the has-been class he is done for others take a different view. A majority of fighters think it possible to bring back of fight may to Nevada, is one who believes it possible to get back to the top and by hard work wit lost laurels.

The little Denverite, one of the most interesting personalities of the prize ring, or said the state of the prize ring, interesting personalities of the prize ring,

In the following the same store belief in his ability to work his way back to the his ambility to work his way back to the toe:

I read somewhere that a man is made or lost by his own ambition. I have heen through periods of recently, I have heen through periods of recently, I have heen through periods of recently. I have heen through I suppose every man has these ups and down-or mental exaltation and depression, but to me they have been shown lately in a light that has been wholly new and highly significant.

I was brought to a realization of all this by Joe Gans. It is curious that a man like Gans should bring to me such a thought, a thought that has changed my whole life.

I am better educated than Joe. I have met the best minds and the highest people in the werld, and yet it was humble Joe Gans that awakened in me the true spirit. He said to me the day he agreed to take me under his guidance:

"Billy, the power of victory in the ring rests with you. It is the mind that makes you win. You must conquer yourself and then you will be able to conquerothers. If you have the spirit of victory in your heart you will win, but I you have not you might as well say good-by to the ring.

Then Joe pointed out to me the terrific struggle he had to win out against every imaginable obstacle. Discredited with the light public, refused matches by fighters and promoters alike, without money, harassed by personal family wees, he has risen superior to all and fought his way back to the top of the ladder by sheer will power and a pluck that has been absolutely indomitable. You cannot but admire this dusky boy from Baltimore, offered as a fighter, he has proved himself. He has fired me with his ambittion.

self greater as a man, for he has overcome himself.

He has fired me with his ambition.

The spirit hat was in me that I thought sas dead has been born anew, and I am soing to conquer the fistic world, if I die in the attempt.

Gans has helped me in furnishing me he inspiration, and he is going to do still mere by helping  $m_{\theta}$  to acquire the means to win back by laurels.

Disspation and reverses had robbed me of the ambition to succeed. I had reached that point when I was looking for the easy means of satisfying present needs.

The future was a closed book to me, and if I had the needful for the immediate is ruture was a closed book to me, and it I had the needful for the immediate hours I was satisfied.

Now I have dreams once more, the same dreams I had when I was a boy and earning my first purses in the ring, wanted then to rise to the top with a seperate resolve that kept me keyed up to the top of my best efforts. Then I swept all before me and the road, so borny for years, grew broad and smooth and smiling.

swept all before me and the road, so horny for years, grew broad and smooth and smiling.

When I beat Terry McGovern all temes rosy for me, and I began to lose imbition. Then every hand was stretched in welcome, and I felt that power that tomes to these who win out. After my proud fight with Terry I began to lose interest. I was too well satisfied with nyelf. I had what they call "a swelled isad." I thought I was the best ever ind the ambition died out of me. I had eached the top. Then came the temptaliations.

MANY TEMPTATIONS BESET FIGHT-ER'S PATH.

ERS PATH.

It is easy to moralize from the depth of a warm armchair on a cold night, but let use tell you that the ordinary man in main walks of life does not begin to eally the temptations that strew the sain of the successful fighter.

Money comes easy and goes easy, and he thousands wen in a few short hours in the ring look inexhaustible. Men goed around you with offers of enternament and the wine that bubbles and lows about you like water in a spring rester. Fair women, whose smiles are antalizing, display their wiles for your benefit and to the winning fighter of high class the world is strewn with roses.

The road is so attractive, so fascinating, the thought that all this is yours for the asking and because you are you, not became of your money or the prestige of position and birth, but just because you are the greatest little man in the world with your fasts. The temptation is such that mighty few can withstand it. Forced to abstain from everything that is alluring while training, the fighter after a battle throws discretion to the winds and plunges into the maelstrom of a "good time."

Then comes the aftermath. Your speed is duiled by late hours and the abuse of your powers, your eye loses its accuracy and your brain does not respond with that lightning speed that is the requiste of the great fighter.

Finances begin to bother you and reverses follow. Then comes the downfall.

LOSS OF AMBITION FATAL TO

LOSS OF AMBITION FATAL TO FIGHTER.

FIGHTER.

If a fighter has lost ambition he is down and out. He loses caste, he loses friends, he loses fights. He is a hasbeen and the world has no use for hasbeens.

I was on the verge of this when I came to with a shock. To keep on that route meant poor I erry's terrible fate. It meant an end in some asylum, or a pullful, sodden, whisky-drugged finish like that of Young Griffo, another great lighter who could not look prosperity in the face.

Then came the inspiration and the words of Joe Gans that have nerved me to a desperate trial for the premier honors. I am going to live the simple life in future.

I am going west now to prepare for this fight. As soon as it is decided where we fight I shall start in training as I never trained before.

I have lost none of my skill. I have not lost my speed.

I have the punch.

With proper training to bring back my physical condition to what it should be I shall be as good as ever.

GANS WILL HELP TRAIN CORBETT.

GANS WILL HELP TRAIN CORBETT.

Gans is coming on later to finish up my training. With Joe near me as inspiration and mentor I shall do wonders, and I am as consident of winding Kia Herman as I am of being alive.

I have not planned out my battle, but I have thought out the best training course to bursue.

I have thought out the best training course to pursue.

Hard work and fast boxing will be the main things in my program. I shall nave a sparring partner at first and then when Joe comes on I shall have to go fast, and that is what I need.

Herman is a tough boy, but I believe I can beat him because I can bit harder and am just as ciever and just as fast. It will be a fight, though, teams told me in New York when he discussed the match that I would find Herman one of the fastest, cleverst little men I ever put up my hands with. He thinks I can beat him, but he also believes it will be the fight of my life, and that I'll have to go all I know how to win.

And that is what I am going to prepare myself for, the hardest, fastest light of my life,

FIGHT WAS PREVENTED.

Spokane, Wash., Jan. 29.—Prize fighting was killed at Lewiston. Idaho, last night by the prosecuting attorney of Nezpercocounty, when he ordered the arrest of Joe Gorman and Jack Reilly, who were scheduled to fight. The two fighters and their backers were booked on the charge of promoting prize fighting. They were all released on $200 bonds to appear for a hearing tomorrow. The act of the prosecutor came as a surprise and it is taken to mean the closing of the lid in Idaho City.

BURNS BEAT HACK.

Omha, Jan. 30.—Farmer Burns defeated Charles Hackenschmidt at the Auditorium here tonight. Burns won the first contest at catch-as-catch-can, in 24½ minutes; Hackenschmidt took the second, Graeco-Roman, in 31 minutes, and Burns won the third, catch-as-catch-can, in 24 minutes.

ON THE RACE TRACK.

Kercheval Captured Tigress Handicap And Again Beat Nealon.

And Again Beat Nealon.

San Francisco, Jan. 30.—There was a very large attendance at the Emeryville track today, great interest being taken in the Tigness handicap in which Kercheval, winner of the Burns handicap, again met Nealon and was again ridden to victory. The defeat of Durnell's crack was in the face of every advantage throughout the race. Nealon for some reason or other was played down to an odds-on choice, Kercheval receding to as good as 5 to 1. Nealon had no excuses for his defeat, and aithough he was bothered some near the finish by Duty Miller, the favorite was beaten at that time. Dusty Miller made a grand effort and was only beaten a neck, after forcing the pace, the favorite coming in third. Results:

TRAP SHOOTERS CHALLENGE. Local trap shooters are out with a challenge to the Ogden crack shots to come down here and compete in the pleasant sport of demolishing blue rocks. A number of local marksmen were out yesterday afternoon and some dicidedly good scores were made. As a result of this Cal Callison immediately expressed a desire that five Ogden shooters get busy and practise for a match shoot. The scores made yesterday were 49 out of 50 for Callison: Pickness, 47: Burgess, 49; Ball, 38; and J. N. Sharp, 38.

Just after the finish of this race, the Bruiser, owned by James K. Clark, and another racer, collided. Mrs. Clark, who was upon the Bruiser, caught her dress in the revolving machinery and was held fast. She was rescued only a few seconds before the Bruiser sank. The racer which collided with her also sank, but no lives were lost. The boat which collided with the Bruiser was the Catherine, owned by Mr. Middlebury of Boston.

SPAIN ENTERS THREE.

For the Balloon Races Which Start From St. Louis.

New York, Jan. 30.—A cable dispatch was received vesterday by President Cortlandt Field Bishop of the Aero club of America from the Aero club of America from the Aero club of Spain entering a team of three men for the international halloon race to be held at St. Louis, Oct. 18. The message named the competitors and they are the same who took part in the first contest which start ed from Paris last year. They are Captain A. Duani, who finished fifth in thy race last year; Lieutenant Herrera, who got eighth place; and Senor E. C. Salamca who was twelfth.

"The presence of the Spanish aeronauts in the race insures twelve well known balloonists," said Mr. Bishop. "France, England and American will be the other countries represented but we still have to hear from other foreign clubs, as the entries are open until Feb. 1."

The event of tonight will be the old-fashioned ball to be given by the Daughters of Utah Pioneers at the Lion House and from present indications the affair will be one of the notable ones of the season. The demand for invitations has been so large that the capacities of the building will be tested to the limit and it is probable that should the daughters decide to repeat the event next season the Salu Lake theater will be engaged for the occasion. All Daughters of Pioneers are requested to bring generous supplies to meet the unexpected popularity of the ball. The event of tonight will be the old-

SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY.

The saponification of petroleum, it appears, is a problem on which eminent chemists have worked for many years. Successful results are claimed at least chemists have worked for many years. Successful results are claimed at least by two French chemists, J. F. Lothammer and C. Trocquenet, and a high-grade soap has been produced without animal fats. The process depends upon the use of an equeous extract of Panama wood. At a recent demonstration, 3 per cent of this extract was beaten up with four quarts of somewhat heavy petroleum, the mixture becoming pale and butter-like in consistency, and the mass was then cooked with 10 pounds of palm-oil over a gas fire, 12 quarts of soda lye of varying strength being gradually added. Analysis of the product shows that the petroleum represents from one-third to one-half of the total fatty matter. The soap is cheaper than others, and is claimed to have numerous other advantages, such as being odorless, antiseptic and non-inflammable.

A curious "break and make" action among the brain cells is thought by Sir William Gowers to explain sleep. Brain activity is attributed to nerve cells, and nerve cords from these divide and subdivide until they end in little knobs. The nerve cells were formerly supposed to be permanently connected through their terminals. It is now known that these may be separated, and it is concluded that separation occurs during sleep. It is claimed that the theory is supported by the effect of nercotics.

Serious gastric troubles among work-men in large electric plants are attrib-uted by a German authority to ozone-poisoning and not to electric radiations. Ozone is produced in large quantities, and with atmospheric nitrogen it forms nitric acid, explaining the acid taste often noticed. An effective remedy is free ventilation and separation of high-tension apparatus from work rooms.

Voluntary dilation of the pupils of the eyes seems to be a most extraordinary faculty. Lately noticing unusual movement in the pupils of a young morphine victim. Dr. Bloch, an English physician, questioned the patient, and found that for several years he had been able to dilate his pupils at will. Conclusive demonstrations were given. A search of scientific literature showed references to only two similar observations, and one of these was doubtful, the other recording the ability to dilate widely the pupil of the right eye. Dr. Block points out that these instances of voluntary control may make it necessary to revise the existing conception of the mechanism of the eye, the existence of an unknown muscle being suggested.

We cannot hope to make weather predictions accurate at all times, George Hes tells us, for it must often happen that an inappreciable cause may upset delicately balanced conditions. For example, a stratum of air may be very nearly saturated with aqueous vapor, while losing heat so slowly that moisture might not be deposited for a long time, and in this condition it is in such a state of unstable molecular equilibrium that the dropping of a small crystal of snow into it may produce a complete and widespread change. The cooling of the air would cause a fail of mist or dew around the snowflake. This deposited mist, sending its heat into space faster than the saturated air, would cool more air and condense more dew, and this would continue rapidly until a complete change of condition had been brought about. Thus the tinlest flake of snow may pull the trigger setting off the atmospheric gun.
