A NEW ANTISEPTIC.—Dr. Desmarts had just addressed a paper to the Academy of Science announcing that Campeachy logwood (Hæma oxyllum Campechianum) possesses the same valuable quality, and in a much higher degree. This fact was discovered by accident. Dr. Desmarts had several cancerous patients under his care, all presenting large ulcerous sores, emitting a most nauseous smell. An astringent being considered expedient, a pomatum composed of equal parts of extract of logwood and hogs' lard was applied to the sores, whereupon, to the doctor's surprise, the fetor disappeared completely, and the emission of pus was considerably attenuated. To complete the evidence he suspended the use of the pomatum for a few hours only, when the offensive emanations immediately recommenced, and the purulent secretion again became abundant. Logwood, as he has ascertained, causes gangrene, especially that of hospitals, to disappear as if by enchantment. He has also found it efficacious in preventing or stopping the erysipelas which often occurs after amputation or the inflicting of other wounds, and is a source of constant anxiety to the surgeon. It entirely removes the puridity of ulcerous cancers emitting characteristic effluvia, and in short of the most fetid sores. This substance also possesses the advantages of being capable of mixture with hæmorrhagic medicines, such as ergotise, perchloride of iron, etc.; it may also be used as a powder and a lotion. The extract of hæmatoyllum, which is much used in dying and is very cheap, is only soluble in warm water.

WHY SALT IS HEALTHFUL.

From time immemorial it has been known that without salt men would miserably perish; and among the horrible punishments entailing certain death, that of feeding culprits on saltless food is said to have prevailed in barbarous times. Maggots and corruption are spoken of by some writers as the distressing symptoms which saltless food engenders; but no ancient or unchivalrous modern could explain how such suffering arose. Now we know why the animal craves salt; why it suffers discomfort, and why it ultimately falls into disease if salt is for a time withheld. Upwards of half of the saline matter of the blood—57 per cent.—consists of common salt; and as this is partly discharged every day through the skin and kidneys, the necessity of continued supplies of it to the healthy body becomes sufficiently obvious. The bile also contains soda as a special and indispensable constituent, and so do all the cartilages of the body. Stint the supply of salt, therefore, and neither will the bile be able properly to assist the digestion, nor the cartilages to assist to build up again as fast as they naturally waste.—[Prof. Johnson.]
