In Woman's World.

When spring sunlight and air rush into the house with the ardor of house-cleaning days, spots and stains galore come to notice. Marks, softened by the hangings and shaded lights of winter, stand out conspicuously when curtains come down and uncompromising daylight enters. Here are some excellent suggestions for removing unsightly spots and stains, and giving the furnishings a clean, sparkling look.

If a quantity of silver is to be cleaned, try this method: Mix sweet oil and whitening to a smooth, creamy paste. Apply with a flannel cloth. Allow it to stand until dry. Polish first with cotton flannel, then with chamois skin. Have two skins, both very soft and pliable. Dip one in cold water, wring it very dry and wipe off the polished surface; then polish with the dry skin. Never apply cold oil or any patented polish whose ingredients you do not know to your piano. Women who used coal oil on cleaning days soon found that the entire surface of her piano was marred by tiny cracks.

Leather picture frames, portfolios, etc., can be cleaned with benzine. Apply with a soft cloth, and if the benzine removes the polish, apply the well-beaten white of an egg.

For removing spots from wall paper and window shades, fill small cheese cloth bags with cornmeal and rub the soiled surface as you would with a brush. Soak the cloth in large grease stain on the wall; for instance, above a couch where members of the family have rested their heads, can best be removed by the use of blotting paper and a hot iron. The heat draws the grease through the blotting paper. Then rub the spot with fuller's earth and the stain will disappear.

To remove grease stains from doors, mix a quarter pound each of fuller's earth and pearl ash with a quart of boiling water. Soak the floor with this for 24 hours and scrub with sand.

Clean soiled photographs with broad crests, rubbing the surface lightly, or with fuller's earth, using the latter dry.

The burner of lamps should be boiled in water containing vinegar and ammonia. When new wicks are to be inserted, allow 24 hours for soaking them in vinegar, and then dry them thoroughly before using. This will prevent the unpleasant odor peculiar to a new wick.

THE MARITAL UNREST.

In the time of our great-grandmothers and grandmothers nobody thought of dissolving the marriage tie. A woman's career was marriage, and having once embarked upon it she never considered going back.

But in these days debate is rampant, and so many persons have "amalgamated" that one wonders what slight reciprocal affection induced them ever to advance at all. Probably it was not affection, but a desire to go back, and a visible sign rather than inward and spiritual graces, and can cause the most unlikely and unblending characters to find each other irresistibly charming. And while they are finding each other charming, marriage is so easy! Since the beginning of the world, admonition and advice have done very little toward the curbing of passion, and obstacles have only served to excite it. And it is not too much to say that most young people, if left to form their own characters, with little in the way of responsibility forced upon them and a great deal in the way of comfort and pleasure at their right hand, will form rather self-indulgent characters, which, rushing were into the seventh heaven, are exceedingly chagrined to find how much self-denial is demanded of them when they get there. Nobody has explained to them what marriage, and the companionship of it really means, nor what a fund of tact and tenderness, forbearance, good will and gentle judgment one must have to tide over the hard places that come, at times, to even the most loving couples.

Unquestionably, the summer girl of 1907 is pinning her faith on the net blouse. "Peter Pan's" have almost run their course; embroidered linen is chic, but a bit passé; silk set off by lace medallions suggests factory work; but the hand-made net waist,

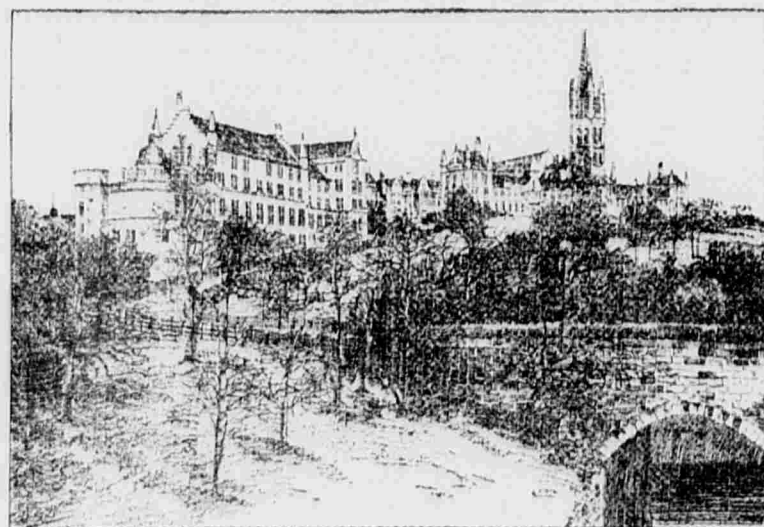

A PAQUIN MODEL IN STRIPED VOILE.

The vogue of very dark colors for general wear is well illustrated in the model of green and blue striped voile, made over a very dark blue silk lining. The skirt is long and plain, and the bodice portion of Japanese outline laid in fine plaits at the shoulders and sleeves. From the wide sleeves of the jumper bodies extend shorter sleeves of bright green silk, those ornamented with hand-embroidery in dull oriental colorings, the same appearing in touches on the green silk collar. The chemise is of fine tucks and plaited lawn.

THE SIMPLE HAT IS EXTREMELY SMART.

A NOBLE EXAMPLE OF A GREAT SCOTCH SEAT OF LEARNING.

Glasgow university, shown in the cut, is now one of the most imposing educational plants in Great Britain. The building on the left has been dedicated recently by the Prince of Wales. The situation of the university is particularly fine, and visitors to Glasgow are always appreciative of the institution's dignified appearance.

THE HOME OF FIELDING.
Fielding Lodge, here pictured, was one of the residences of the English novelist, Henry Fielding. It is at Bath, which in those days was at the height of its vogue as a fashionable resort. Everything connected with this great literary light is of special interest this year, which is Fielding's bicentenary.

Corsetry

has had a rude awakening like Monarchies, like Empires pursuing wrong principles for ages—blindly following precedent Corsetry led herself to revolution.
Long suffering woman to all the ills of vanity an heir; enlightenment has brought you to your own—beauty with comfort and consequent grace—farewell forever to the laced back instrument of deformity with its resultant ill—impaired breathing, compressed stomach, displaced organs and ribs, disfigured back—was ever there a tyrant either political or physical to visit such torments upon its people?

Our Front Laced

corsets were the revolutionists; enlightenment came when "Unresistible" and the "Gossard" began their reign. Liberty, freedom to the tortured body is their law and their loyal subjects, countless as the leaves upon the trees, with loud acclaim pronounce them peerless.
