THE CHRISTMAS NEWS FOR 1901.

A UTAH-COLORADO EDITION.

The Christmas edition of the "News" this year will be printed on Saturday, December 21, 1901. It will contain an exhaustive review of the year's developments in business, mining, commerce, real estate, building, and all other branches of business, and will form the most elaborate compilation of the resources and attractions of Utah which has ever been issued.

Our sister state, Colorado, and its industries and attractions will be well represented in the issue, many beautiful views of Denver and Colorado scenery being given. A big part of the edition will be circulated in Denver, and Colorado's principal cities.

Especially attractive articles will be prepared by a corps of selected writers, and leading men of the community will contribute timely articles on current topics.

As the holiday number will be issued several days ahead of Christmas, it will form an invaluable advertising medium to local dealers for the Christmas trade. The general advertiser could find no better means for reaching the people of the great west. The "News" will pledge a circulation of at least 20,000 copies for the Christmas issue. Special rates will be accorded advertisers who wish their notices printed in the Semi-Weekly News as well as giving them a total circulation of nearly 45,000 copies.

The city and county building seems to be a rich field for the sneak thief these days, when so many taxpayers are crowding the county treasurer's office. Thefts of umbrellas, lab robes and even bicycles are being reported every day, in fact anything that is left at the west entrance seems to be unsafe as far as the owner is concerned.

Undertaker O'Donnell and James Taylor of Ogden are anxious to obtain some knowledge of the whereabouts of William Floyd, who was last heard of as bartender at Fort Duchesne. Philip Floyd, a brother died of pneumonia at the Keogh-McKenna hospital last Thursday. He was born in Cornwall, England was 29 years old and had worked nearly all of his life in Birmingham mines. James Taylor is a half-brother and wishes to let William know of Philip's death before making arrangements for the funeral.

J. A. Kindendall, the administrator of the estate of the late Governor Durkee, is residing in this city with his wife. The heirs of the Durkee estate are still pressing their claim upon the United States government for $25,000,000 and the case is at present pending before the Supreme court of the District of Columbia. It is alleged by the Durkees that the governor accepted $64,000,000 in Union Pacific bonds during the early days when they sold as low as 10 cents on the dollar, that he placed them for safe keeping in the hands of the government, and that he died without making any other disposition of them.

WANTED IN KENTUCKY.

Gabe May Rests in County Jail Wearing an Oregon Boot.

Gabe May, the private of the Eleventh battery, who was arrested by the police on a telegram from Kentucky, where May is said to have broken jail, will be taken from the city to the county jail for safe keeping until the Kentucky officer arrives for him, which will be about Friday.

Since his arrest he has been held in jail with an Oregon boot on his foot to prevent any chances of escape.

May admitted he broke jail at Owen-ton, Ky., where he said he was arrested for threatening his employer. He was awaiting trial when he cut his way out of jail.

The police here seem to think the charge against him is a serious one and the authorities at Owen-ton would not be so anxious to get him back. The following telegram has been received by Chief Hilt from Sheriff P. A. Alexander: "Hold May. Will come for him at once."

The authorities of that place have been looking for him for several days and did not learn of his whereabouts until they read in the papers of his experience with hold-ups a few nights ago.

It seems that Miss Hobbs gave him a ring to wear for a few days and it is alleged he sold it. He was arrested in Logan, but managed to escape from the officer.

UTAH POETESS PASSES AWAY.

SARAH E. CARMICHAEL WILLIAMSON.

At the age of fifty-three after twenty-five years of mental darkness, the spirit of Sarah E. Carmichael Williamson, one of Utah's most gifted poetesses, passed from its mortal tenement, her death taking place yesterday morning at 12:30 o'clock.

The news will call up many loving memories, and sad regrets for the sad history of the once brilliant poetess, whose literary gifts placed her name among those of the best writers of the nation, during the few years that her efforts were devoted to literary work.

And it will be with feelings akin to gladness that those who knew her in the zenith of her mental powers will learn that the bright spirit has burst from the trammels of mortal darkness to regain its power in the realms of eternal light.

Mrs. Williamson, or as she is more widely known, Sarah E. Carmichael, was born in Setauket, Long Island, in 1838, and as a child, was brought by her parents to Utah, where she has spent her life. At the age of eighteen she began to publish poems in the local newspapers, and soon after her work found its way into the eastern magazines, occasioning comment of a most flattering kind. Her poem, "The Stolen Sunbeam," the most imaginative and dramatic of her poetic efforts, was selected by William Cullen Bryant for a place in his volume of poems "A Library of Poetry and Song."

Her work came to the notice of Dr. Josiah Williamson, a surgeon in Gen. Connor's army, and was the occasion of his seeking out the gifted young author, and offering his hand in marriage. The union is said to have been a most happy one, but was saddened a short time afterward by the falling powers of mind which blighted the powers of the poetess. Her affliction tested to the utmost the patience of her husband, but until the time of his death, fourteen years after their marriage, his love and devotion to his wife was unflinching.

Since his death, which occurred nineteen years ago, Mrs. Williamson has lived alone, save for the society of attendants, no relatives having been left to cheer her darkened life. A sister who lived until three years ago, was also deranged, and could therefore afford no solace to the other stricken mind. That the gifted author sensed, or had a foreboding of her affliction, can be realized from the following lines written by her own hand:

Weep for the dead! Not for those who claim Immortal life on the scroll of Fame! Not for the soul that feared but shame; Not for the life that reached its aim; Not for the step that marked in flame Print of a hero's tread.

Weep for the dead that breathe and speak! Dead with the life bloom on the cheek! Dead, for they have no aim to seek; Dead to the core—Dead!

Dead to the use of a wasted hour; Dead to the dew on the poisoned flower; Dead as a soul's crime-palmed power—Dead!

There can be but one thought of solace for the wasted life of the once envied and admired child of genius—that there is a plan of progress and achievement beyond this life, and which will provide recognition for all that she has missed or suffered in the clouded pathways of this world.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of the deceased, 468 South State street.

FUNERAL OF R. C. TAYLOR.

Services at Late Residence of the Salt Lake Newspaperman Largely Attended.

Elder C. W. Penrose Speaks Words of Consolation—Piper-Whitney Quartet Renders Selections.

The funeral of the late R. C. Taylor, the widely known Salt Lake newspaper man, who died on Friday morning, was held at 12:30 yesterday from the family house at 534 Bridgeport avenue. The house was filled with relatives, friends and many of the fellow newspaper men, and a number remained outside during the services on account of the large attendance. The casket was concealed beneath a profusion of wreaths, crosses and other floral tributes. The funeral service was conducted by Elder C. W. Penrose, and a quartet made up of George Piper, H. G. Whitney, W. G. Patrick and Willard Squires, rendered with much feeling several appropriate selections, among which were, "Lead, Kindly Light," "I Need Thee Every Hour," "Shall We Meet Beyond the River," etc. Elder Penrose referred with emotion to his long and pleasant association in years past with Mr. Taylor on the Herald. The speaker said he had always fondly remembered a man who well and faithfully performed his duties. He was efficient as a printer, a reporter and was in fact an all-around newspaper man. Whatever were his failings his heart was in the right place. The speaker concluded with a few words of cheer and comfort for the bereaved family.

The cortege then moved out to the city cemetery. The pall bearers consisted of the following newspaper men: A. C. Reese, John W. Hughes, Gerrie G. Van, R. J. Jessup, Murray Schick and K. C. Kerr.

At the graveside Elder John Holt offered the dedicatory prayer.
