ing newspapermen will be taken in automobiles and carriages over tho famous fruit belt of Provo and up Provo canyon where a trout dinner will be served at Heiselt. After din-ner a ride back to Provo and a visit to the State Mental hospital, the B, Y. U., the Provo Woolen mills and The Telluride Power plant will be the order. In the evening an informal banquet will be given at the Commercial club.

These for many parts of the order of more than 4,000 people that witnessed the scene in the ball park and race track grounds.
 The scene opens with a full street of houses that extend almost the full length of the park. It is a festival day and the streets are filled with the pleasure loving people of the Italian country. Ballet dancers move nimbly about, acrobats and tight rope walkers do excellent aerial performances; clowns and other tricksters do much to give the scene the appearance of a great fair. Then as the temple priests move along the highway and pay devotion at the shrine there is an explosion. The citizens fiel in terror from the village.
 In realistic style the volcano spouts out its flery lava, the mountain sides open and the houses fail before the molten flood.
 As soon as this is over the fireworks of the evening are turned loose. In this the skill of many years' experience has made the display something that dazzles the eye. Great showers of the sky in colored lights, giant rows of colored light appear.
 A giant portrait in fire of Gov, William Stry is one of the streat events of the evening fail of many colors and scores of other formances, a great fail of many colors and scores of other interesting features.
