SUING FOR A FORTUNE.

Daniel Wattenhelme Being Sued for a Brother-in-Law's Life Insurance.

THE SUM A FULL FIFTY THOUSAND.

Receiver C. E. Thum of a Defunct Blackfoot Bank Says the Money Belongs to That Institution.

A decidedly unique, important and somewhat sensational suit was filed in the Third district court shortly after noon today. The plaintiff is C. E. Thum, receiver of C. Dunting & Company, bankers, who failed at Blackfoot, Idaho, in February, 1897, and the defendant is Daniel Wattenhelme, the well known Salt Lake coal dealer. Mr. Thum is suing for $50,000 life insurance money, which he alleges was illegally collected and which he now declares is illegally held by Wattenhelme. Briefly, the grounds upon which the complaint is based are these:

In November, 1891, Charles Bunting, brother-in-law of Wattenhelme, and general manager of the now defunct bank, took out a $50,000 life insurance policy with the New York Life Insurance company. Less than three years afterward Bunting died, but before passing away had paid the insurance company $3,310 in premiums. It is alleged further that all of the premiums were paid from funds of the bank while the institution was insolvent and while Bunting had no money in it; that the last payment was made in 1896 and that Bunting during that year assigned the policy to his brother-in-law, Mr. Wrottenhelme, for which it is asserted the latter paid nothing and that he did not obtain possession of the valuable document until March, 1897; that on coming into such possession the defendant immediately proceeded to and did to fact collect the full $50,000 which plaintiff now contends is in equity and good conscience an asset of the bank.

Brown and Henderson represent the plaintiff. What the defendant's answer will be is not yet known.

Trial of a Damage Suit.

The damage suit of Nels P. Thompson, administrator of the estate of the late Ann O. L. Thompson, against the Ute Grand Western Railway company, commenced before Judge Hiles and a jury late yesterday afternoon, with John M. Zane and C. M. Zollner representing the plaintiff and Judge Harkness and Joseph F. Richards for the defendant company.

The complaint alleges that on Dec. 18, 1895, Mrs. Thompson, the wife of the plaintiff, was crossing the railway track, near Murray, when a train of the defendant company came along at a speed of forty miles an hour, and the engineer failed to blow the whistle or ring the bell as the train approached the crossing. Mrs. Thompson was run into and instantly killed, and the plaintiff now demands $25,000 damages.

The plaintiff rested at noon today.

Motion to Dissolve.

Messrs. Dickson, Ellis and Ellis, the attorneys for George R. Scott & Co., have filed a notice of motion to dissolve the attachment levied on the stock after the same had originated. The motion will be heard before Judge Hiles on Saturday. The grounds are that the attachment is illegal, and that the attaching creditors have no valid claim on the property over and above the claims of any of the other creditors.

COURT ITEMS AT PARIS, IDAHO.

Defendant Pleads Guilty to a Charge of Grand Larceny—Complicated Usury Cases.

Special to the "News."

Paris, Idaho, Feb. 25.—The Fifth district court has been in session here since the 17th inst., Judge Stanford presiding. There was one criminal case on the calendar, state of Idaho vs. Christian Lhumbarr, charged with grand larceny. He plead guilty to stealing a cow from W. L. Rich of Paris; sentence this week.

Four cases all involving the question of usury and insufficiency of an acknowledgement, by married women. These cases are the result of a recent decision by the Idaho supreme court in the case of the Vermont Loan and Trust company's interest in the state of Idaho. Interest notes bearing interest after maturity are declared null and void and all such interest that has been paid is declared under the ruling of the Idaho supreme court from principal indebtedness.

Court will be in session the remainder of this week. Next term Blackfoot, March 17th.

The Accusation Against Captain O. U. Bean of Richfield.

Hansen, 1,000; John Peter Hansen, 400; Olava Jr., 600; Niels Mortensen Jr., 1,000; Annie Mortensen, 25. All the parties are residents of Ephraim.

To Regulate Gambling in Ogden.

Ogden Standard: Washington's birthday anniversary will be remembered by many as the day upon which they ceased to be privileged to play a quiet little game in a quiet little room, in the rear of a quiet little smoking-parlor.

On that day Chief Davenport of the police department issued orders closing up these "spider and fly" joints and to further promote the morality of the city gave orders to arrest anyone found running such a quiet little game. The result is that there is no gambling except in regulated gambling houses, and the effect will be watched further, to ferret out down the number of patrons at the regular joints. Mayor Boyle and several members of the council were seen yesterday and they all asserted that they proposed to back up the chief to the limit to place the city on a higher moral plane.

AMUSEMENTS.

The surprise of the Grau Opera company's engagement was the excellent presentation of Verdi's "Il Trovatore," at the New Grand last evening. It is now just about two years since the company was last given here, being presented at that time by the Mme. Tavary Opera company for a matinee performance and it can be said that the presentation by the Grau company compares favorably with that of 1896, from the fact that the members of it are all clever actors in addition to possessing good voices and the performance made a charming ensemble, handling the music of the role admirably and giving it an excellent interpretation. Sylvia Speight made a splendid impression as the Count di Luna. He has a well trained baritone voice that is only marred by a tremolo that becomes irritating in his highest notes. In none of his music, the same being true of Fanny Meyers, who last night essayed the role Azucena, the Gypsy. Martin Fuchs made a splendid appearance as Manrico, and though he was acting a little too key at times, made a hit in the part. The Grau chorus negotiated themselves in their usual excellent manner given by the company, and considering their members, did remarkably well. Cavalleria Rusticana and the second act from Ship Ahoy. For the matinee tomorrow Martha will be given, the engagement to close with Faimitza on Saturday night.

Our Plat begins tonight an engagement of two nights and Saturday matinee at the Theater. Miss Rachael Ford, the boasted beauty, will appear in a leading role.

The Salt Lake Opera company sang and played at Ogden last night. And be it said to the company's credit, it sang and played better than at any previous performance of the present engagement. There were no forgotten lines, but very little off-key singing and an improvement in general interpretation. To Salt Lakers who had seen the presentations here the improvement was very noticeable, and it is very generally conceded that all that is necessary to make the company a success as a producer of light opera is practice. The audience was a large one and thoroughly appreciative with the performance. The work of principals and chorus alike was warmly applauded and the local hits made by Spencer and Young pleased the Ogdenites immensely. About one hundred and fifty Salt Lake people accompanied the singers to the Junction city and returned with them at midnight. It is very probable that Salt Lake will be given at Logan in the course of a couple of weeks, as soon as Mr. Roper can arrange matters for it, for which city he leaves in a day or two to arrange for a Utah exhibit at the big exposition to be held there the coming summer.

High Priests.

The regular monthly meeting of the High Priests' quorum of the Salt Lake Stake of Zion will be held in the Assembly hall tomorrow (Saturday) at 11 a. m.

A JUROR TO ANSWER.

Cited to Appear in Court for Contempt—Young Couple Divorced.

Correspondence of the "News."

Fillmore, Feb. 24.—Very little business has been done here at the term of the district court which closed yesterday. The case of W. A. Ray vs. N. J. Boregard went over for the term; court ordered that an amended answer may be filed on the payment of $10 costs to plaintiff by the defendant.

Peter Huntsman vs R. B. Huntsman, application for a new trial still under advisement.

The court ordered the clerk to issue citation to Samuel W. Western, a petit juror at the December term, to appear at this court on the first day of the June term, A. D. 1898, to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court. The trouble has arisen from the fact that Mr. Western was one of jurors on the panel which tried the Huntsman case, and as such sought a clearer insight into the subject, by going to the saloon where the fracas took place, and making a personal examination as to how certain falls occurred. In the course of the lawyers talk, it appears that in the case "innocence is not bliss" and may be the "peg upon which a case trial will be hung.

Elizabeth McMahon Huntsman asked for and obtained a decree from Lafayette E. Huntsman. These young people had been married about two years, but the little spell did not improve of Lafayette's bed and board, and months after the marriage she sought the shelter of the parental roof, where she and her babe have been provided for ever since. It appears to be a clear case of incompliance and against parental counsel, from which the young wife deserted liberally. Lafayette is also smiling in court and like "Barkis, was willin'" to make another capture.

The 36 Mutual improvement associations under the guidance of Elder Clyde have been doing a splendid work all through the county. They have carried the war into Africa by making house to house visits, shaking up the dry bones, and kicking best results have been obtained, and in many instances acknowledge the corn with a smile of glad you came. The report of the conference visits in many directions, in happier homes, brighter eyes, higher aims, better citizenship, and a more devout interpretation of the words "Our Father in Heaven" should speed the boys who do battle for the truth.

A. HILD.

Alleged Theft of a Buggy.

George Davis was arrested today for petit larceny in the alleged theft of a buggy, which several weeks ago figured in a collision with a Salt Lake street car. The vehicle was sold for by the street car company and left at the scene of the wreck for a few days. Afterwards it disappeared and it now appears that Davis is the man who "cabbaged" it, the gentleman having fixed it up for his own use. He will be tried tomorrow.

Cardinal Sent to Jail.

Lawrence Cardinal, for stealing a number of canes, had a hearing before Justice Thurmond today, was found guilty and sentenced to 30 days in jail. This was a sharp trick and just as sharp was that of his honor the court.

Preparations Said to Have Been Made by a Florida Company.

All of their ships have been placed in condition for emergencies. Should war be declared it is said that they have perfected plans to land a large body of troops on Havana within thirty-six hours after their arrival at this island. Troops also made arrangements, it is understood, to land promptly men and arms at Key West and all stations they have on the coast of Florida and at Mobile.

THE PRAYER IN CONGRESS.

Chaplain Wants Officials to Act for Righteousness and Peace.

Washington, D.C., Feb. 25.—The blind chaplain of the House prayed for peace at the opening of the session today.

"Oh, Almighty," he prayed, "strong to deliver and ever wise to forgive, we ask, hear our prayer. Keep us, we beseech Thee, in the midst of all excitement, calm and deliberate and especially deliver us from unnecessary anxiety and care and from vain boastings; that if the time should come when we pray that it may not, we pray that we may be strong to maintain our rights and uphold the dignity of Thy nation. Bless, we beseech Thee, the President of the United States and all his counselors, the Congress and all others in authority, so that righteousness and peace and honor be ours."

Search for the Buried Treasure.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 25.—On the strength of the statements made by an old negro named George Washington, Isaac D. Cirina, a painter, and a man named Watkins have started for a plantation near Yorktown, southeast of Richmond on the Chesapeake bay, Va., to search for treasure buried by Henry A. Wise during the war. Washington was Wise's slave and body servant, and claims he helped bury the treasure and can find it. It consists of three kegs of gold and silver coins. A son of Henry A. Wise, named George, is still living in Virginia.

A TOOLEE ROMANCE.

Mr. George Lee Re-Weds the Woman from Whom He Was Divorced a Year Ago.

A story comes from Tooele with a tinge of romance in it. A year or so ago Mr. and Mrs. George Lee were divorced, having reached the conclusion that they were unsuited to each other. Time and again they tried to reconcile their differences, and time and again they failed. Finally the court was appealed to and removed the yoke of marital incumbrance that was so galling to both of them. Then they traveled the journey of life single-handed and alone. They were unaccustomed to such peregrinations and soon grew tired of them. They yearned to put on the yoke again, and travel side by side once more. The more they thought of it the fewer obstacles they saw in the way. After a while there were none at all. So one day last week they tied themselves to the office of the county clerk, took out a marriage license and once more were made man and wife. Mr. and Mrs. Lee are both upwards of forty years of age and have a large family.

ALLAN HILTON DEAD.

A Well Known Citizen Passes Away—Met With an Accident—Ailing for Years.

Allan Hilton, who for a generation past has been a familiar figure and well known citizen of Salt Lake, died at his residence, 126 G street, in the Twentieth ward, at 9:30 a. m. today. Six weeks ago the deceased met with a severe accident while suffering from an attack of epilepsy, falling to the floor and fracturing three of his ribs. After the accident his health appeared to fail more rapidly though he was not absolutely confined to his room.

Allan Hilton was born March 28, 1839, at Lee, Lancashire, England. He joined the Church in 1851, and came to Utah two years later. For fifteen years he was employed as a teamster by President Brigham Young, and for many years was an employee of the Tithing office. He leaves a wife and seven children to mourn his death. He was well and widely known throughout the Territory, and many warm friends will learn of his death with sorrow. He was a man of startling and honest and blunt character. The funeral will be held from the Twentieth ward meeting house on Sunday next at 12:30 p. m. Friends of the family are invited to attend.

FORGERY THE CHARGE.

T. A. Clemmens Detected by Frank Knox and Arrested.

A man giving the name of T. A. Clemmens was arrested today by Detectives Shorts and Raleigh, the charge against him being forgery. Clemmens appears, forged the name of Byrum Ellis, the lawyer, to a check drawn on the Commercial National bank for the sum of $20. On presenting the paper for payment Cashier Frank Knox detected something crooked and he straightway marched the man to the lawyer's office, where it was pronounced fraudulent. At first Clemmens protested his innocence, but afterwards he practically admitted his guilt by stating that he was forced to it through lack of employment. The defendant is 30 years of age and of late has been much afflicted with rheumatism.

Clemmens was arraigned before Justice Timmony this afternoon, but up to press time the case had not been disposed of.

NARROW ESCAPES.

How Men-of-War's Men Sometimes Have Their Blood Chilled.

Men-of-war's men become callous to danger and just now in any room of the navy department you can hear stories of accidents and experiences and narrow escapes from death and destruction that chill the blood of a layman who has put in the best of his living with torpedoes, gun-cotton and that kind of stuff. Judging by the Maine by what has happened in other ships, you can see a thousand ways in which an explosion might have occurred. A veteran officer relates what he calls "a little incident" to show the nerve of an apprentice boy. A division of the crew of one of the battleships was overhauling the after magazine one day, bringing out the ammunition, cans of powder and gun-cotton, and clearing house, as it were, under the direction of a lieutenant and a gunner's mate. The latter stood leaning over the hatch, singing out orders to the men in the magazine, when he accidentally knocked his lantern against the steel side of the hatchway. The spring that held the lamp gave way, and it fell into the pit, bottom-side up and still burning, upon the top of a large tin can of powder. The men in the pit were busy stowing, with their backs turned, and did not see the accident. The lieutenant, the gunner's mate and others who were looking over the hatch were stricken with momentary fear, fortunately for that ship and its crew of 500 men, an apprentice boy had his wits with him and quicker than you can tell it "skinned" down the tackle, jolted the lamp, extinguished the flame with his hand, grabbed the heated can of powder in his arms and sang out: "You inkbers, haul me and this here can to the deck, d——quick." Two jerks upon a rope lifted the boy and his dangerous burden to the deck and in an instant he had cast it over the side into the sea.

The commanding officer did not complain of the loss of that powder and the boy now wears the sword of a gunner's mate.

"It was only the other day," said an officer yesterday, "that another gunner's mate by a bit of swift head and hand work saved one of the battleships of the north Atlantic squadron, which is now cruising around Key West, from a awful peril in which it was placed by sheer carelessness. The ship was engaged in big-gun practice at sea, and while the men were being fed from the main battery. The gunner's mate referred to was stationed in the reaming tube with the shipper. One of the big guns was loaded with a solid shot, as the shipper was about to press the electrical button held in his hand, when the toy noticed that the breech of the gun was not locked. He might have let loose a yell of warning that would have startled the shipper and caused a contraction of the muscles of the hand that would have pressed the button, and discharged the gun, but he had too much sense for that. He did not utter a sound, but with a quick spring he seized the electric wire and broke it with his hands, thus cutting the circuit. Then he sunk on the floor of the cramping tower, without a bit of blood in his face and as weak as a kitten. The shipper thought he had fallen in a faint or had gone crazy, but the boy recovered himself in a moment and explained how near the captain had come to setting his own ship afire by a solid shot. If that gun had been fired very little of the ship would have been left and 100 or 200 men or more, including the captain, would have gone on the list of casualties."

Growth of a Great Man.

[Washington Star.]

The man who had come to Washington after an office was talking over old times with Col. Stillwell.

"Do you remember Mr. Gowans?" asked the "office seeker."

"Puffectly well," replied the colonel; "puffectly well. Charmed to see you, sah. I believe he settled in your city, did he not?"

"Yes, sah."

"He didn't seem to have a great deal of ambition when I knew him."

"There's a great deal to show yourself a poor judge of human nature, sah. I foresaw saw a man got along fastah in our community than Gowans."

"Perhaps I did him an injustice."

"You undoubtedly did, sah. Why, befo' he had been there three weeks he had got to be a major. In less than six months he was known as 'Colonel,' and when I left a great many people were alludin' to him as 'General.'"

"Well, that doesn't prove that he has accomplished anything great himself."

"Don't mistake, sah; don't mistake that he has assisted his opportunities. A man cannot achieve all things at once, sah. His rise was gradual, but sure. I didn't tell you what happened to him after I left the city. Soon by step he made his way, sah, from Major to Colonel and from Colonel to Brigadier General, and still onward and upward, until now, sah, he has got to be a real statesman with considerable influence."

It is announced that Hon. James B. Angell, United States minister to Turkey, will resign his position and resume his work as president of Michigan University at the opening of the opening of the school year next fall. The query naturally arises: "If it is so soon done for, what was it begun for?"

AT DRUGGISTS and FANCY STORES

Too Bad!

The makers of Pride of Japan (tree tea) have advertised that Thos. Price, analytical chemist of San Francisco, and Prof. J. T. Kingsbury of the University of Utah, have given them certificates that the above brand of tea is perfectly pure.

The deduction drawn from this analysis is, that the Pride of Japan tea which you buy in the stores is perfectly pure.

While it is quite possible to buy pure tea (like Schilling's Best) and pack it in Pride of Japan packages, and submit it to chemists for analysis; still we assert that the Pride of Japan tea sold in this market is artificially colored with coloring matter.

We don't know how these endorsements were secured; but it is a pity that the names of such eminent authorities should be used to back up statements made in the advertisements of Pride of Japan.

Schilling's Best tea is not only guaranteed pure, but it is such tea as you would drink yourself if you knew all about it.

Besides it is money-back, and that is backing enough in the long run.
