BREVITIES.

Tough story—any told of the meats at the cheap eating-houses.

How to communicate with the denizens of the deep—drop a line.

The bark of a dog is a good tonic for many people. It starts them right up.

A farmer who rises early in the morning will find plenty to do and time to accomplish what is needful.

Tobacco leaves buried around the roots of fruit trees are said to be a good preventive of injury by ants.

There is a girl in Gloucester so modest that she will not allow the Observer to remain in her room over night.

There is a glut of panthers in the streets of Corydon, Ind., and the citizens are preparing to thin them out.

Tender raspberries and flowers do better at Quebec than at New Orleans, because they have a winter protection of snow.

Fall plowing is for heavy clays which pulverize with frost, not for soils which melt in the rain and become like mortar beds.

A favorite style of dress for gentlemen in Paris this Summer has been coats, vests, and trowsers of white silk, with blue cravats.

The Oregon crops are very large. Wheat is selling in Portland at from 65 to 70 cents per bushel, and oats at from 45 to 50 cents.

A curate who believes that the lower orders of the English clergy are underpaid, proposes a clerical strike as a means of securing better wages.

It is becoming fashionable to take tea in the day-time in France, and lovers of the "cup that cheers but not inebriates" hope soon to see the French drink tea instead of wine at breakfast.

Fine, well rotted manure, applied to the surface, gives the wheat plant strength to go well through the winter, and it fits the ground for receiving clover seed early in spring.

A Lima letter states that two children of Lieutenant Dyer, U. S. N., are in Callao, homeless and friendless, their father and mother having been lost by the destruction of the storeship Fredonia.

The widow of Audubon, the naturalist, lives in want near New York, with twelve grandchildren dependant upon her and the exertions of one of her granddaughters, who teaches music for support.

"Doctor——wants to know if you'll please to pay this bill now?"

Old gentleman looks over the items and replies:

"Tell Dr.——I'll pay him for his medicines, and return his visits."

A person who was recently called into Court for the purpose of proving the correctness of a doctor's bill, was asked by the lawyer whether the doctor did not make several visits after the patient was out of danger. "No," replied the witness, "I considered the patient in danger as long as the doctor continued his visits."

A baby elephant, which was at Gallatin, Tenn., lately, followed its keeper into a saloon, filled his trunk with all the ice in the establishment, afterward emptied the sugar-bowl on the counter of its contents, and finally finished his meal by devouring a bushel of peaches behind the counter.

The Pall Mall Gazette has a leading article on the prospects of peace or war. It says that in every capital in Europe the belief that a great and immediate war is impending grows day by day, and that the best informed men expect it to break out before the end of the year.

An advertisement in the London Times seriously announces a new song, with the modest request, "Oh, give me back but yesterday!" A companion to the above, "Oh, could you spare to-morrow?" is in preparation; to be afterward followed by the sequel lyric of "You havn't got such a thing as next week about you, have you?"

A story is told upon Rayer, the eminent physician of Paris. He was called in six weeks ago to attend a sick child. The child—it was the only child of wealthy parents—recovered its health. A few days after Rayer had discontinued his visits, the mother of the little invalid called on the doctor. She said: "My dear doctor, there are services rendered in this world, for which money could not pay. I know not how we can adequately reward you for your kindness, attention, and skill to poor Ernest. And I have thought that perhaps you would be good enough to accept this little porte monnaie—a mere trifle, which I embroidered."

"Porte monnaie!" roughly exclaimed the doctor. "Medicine, madame, is not a sentimental profession. When we are called in to visit a patient, we want their money and not their gratitude. Gratitude a humbug! I'd like to see gratitude making the pot boil, and I have not only to make my pot boil, but I have got a horse to feed, madame, and a driver to pay, madame, and daughters to portion, madame—and gratitude won't aid me to do any of these things. Money is what is required, madame—yes, money.

The lady was, as you may imagine, confounded by this burst of indignant talent, and she could only stammer, "But—doctor—what is your fee?"

"My fee is two thousand francs—and I tell you, madame, there is no use screaming about it. I will not take one sou less!"

The lady did not scream, she quietly opened the porte monnaie, unrolled the five bank notes in it, gave two to the doctor, placed the other three in the porte monnaie, and the latter in her pocket, and bowed profoundly, "Good morning, Doctor," and then made her exit.
