The Re Froi	n the Li	. Simpkin Draws fe of Jehu for Sermon.
THE	PACE	THAT KILLS	Contraction of the second seco

frime in Its Most Hidcous Form is Traceable to the Unrestrained Quest of Socalled Pleasure,

The Rev. P. A. Simpkin preached a stirring sermon in Phillips Congregational church yesterday, from the text: "And the driving is like the driving of Jehu the son of Nimshi, for he driveth furiously."--II Kings, 9, 19-20. The topic was, "Are we driving too fast? We live too sudden." 'The speaker said, in part:

er said, in part: "The impetuous dash of this old he-role figure, flashing with his charlot across the Judean hills is one that has caught the world's eye, and the way of him has become a common proverb of our English speech. He is quite worthy study for his achievement, and the study for his achievement, and the succer make-up of character he presents. But in the brief time we have, we bor-row only the thought of this line from the picture that has been painted on the record of the age, the fact that he drove furiously. The reckless swing of him and his steeds, flying along the The reckless swing dusty roads, seems out of harmony with the slow and quiet spirit of that with the slow and quiet spirit of that far yesterday, and must have made him a figure wonderful to his time.

HAS A WORD FOR US.

"He has a word for us. The age in which we live is Jehu reincarnate in the matter of the rush of life. Fast ine matter of the rush of the Past trains and steamers, fast eating and drinking, fast work and play. One of the cowboys of recent fiction summed it in the phrase, 'We live too sudden.' which if neither grammatical nor eleant, is at least forceful, and pictursquely true. On the edge of vacation when we are preparing for the annual orgy of rest, as we with uncon-sclous humor designate the annual period of vacations filled with rush and indulgence, it is well to pause a bit, and think of the folly of overin-duigence in pleasure. "This is the nervous age. The price we pay for bread and butter and the balance that means pleasure, luxury or competence is greater than ever. Except in a few occupations, the physteal burden grows less, the nervous strain ever more. There is a moral value, as well as a phypsical and men-tal one in the release of life-strain, and n the proper use of the leisure hours and days.

VALUE OF THE SABBATH.

The value of the Sabbath day in this direction is inestimable. One who uses its quiet privilege aright will wear giving of life the best, the neglected wonderfully amid the strain of the days and years. But there is need for an indulgence for the average man in the spirit of amusement, and a par-ticipation in the pleasures of his time ticipation in the pleasures of his time which are not wrongful in the harm to himself or in the violation of those divine ethics that should be binding upon all consciences. But is it not true that we have allowed the amuse-ment spirit to possess us instead of serving us? Has not the body taken the place of mind and soul almost wholly in our leisure hours? Has not pleasure, the buxom walting maid of pleasure, the buxom walling maid of our resting time, who was wont to charm us in the place of good books. good pictures, good plays, the good homes with their simple hospitalities and delights, come to be a tyrant mis-tress garbed in luxury, dazzling in flashing pasts and with face and cyes hectle with unholy passion?

"One of the prominent men of the city said within the week, as in the chance meeting of the street an inquiry was made as to his health. 'I am tired but. Night after night, it is go, go, go, theater, dinner-party, automobile, until am sick of it. I, wish we could have I am sick of it. I, wish we could have a little more of home. My pleasure hours take more out of me than busi-ness does. We have a beautiful city, one with facilities for enjoyment. The great resorts are places delightful for an hour of leisure. The canyons are unsurpassed for beauty and conveni-ence of access. The most skilful plans are laid to draw people to the varied enjoyments afforded for leisure hours. The city is famed as a pleasure loving and indulging one.

THE RACE TRACK.

"Now, I have no words to vay against any of these places except the race track, ostracised by all the great commonwealths of America for its in-iquitous influences and its character-rot so perllous to youth in particular, but duty demands that a word be spoken in regard to the madness of indulgence that makes play work, and life a grind, where it ought to be a delight. "But in the glorious summer time, with its hours of opportunity for leis-ure, amusement should be the incl-dental. All our life ought to be pleas-urable. But amusement should not be so perllous to youth in particular, but urable. But amusement should not be our upbuilding and renswal. The idea that every hour of leisure must be yielded to the siren call of sensuousness is a damnable and damaging one. It in jures socially because of that which it causes us to neglect as well as its unfitting influence on our lives. WHERE HELP CAN COME FROM.

"The wealthy and the well-to-do can help greatly this problem. Rational amusement in every walk of life is as important as rational education. It is not that wealth is culpable in seeking enjoyment. But in a land where the common citizenship seems to argue equality in all things, and the temptation is to seek to match in indulgence the pace set by those with means and leisure for unusual measure of enjoy-ment in the field of amusement, there is a demand for a fine unselfshness which will set a rational pace in all these matters. By the removal of that temptation that lies in ostentation and vulgar display, set before those who in the very nature of things follow the lead, by completing the veloce of lead, by emphasizing the values home, gentle culture and taste amusement, a great help can be given by the wealthy. The business man, the neurologist, the educator and the ec-clesiastic are at one in the deploring for various reasons this Jehu-like pace in amusement. The unpaid bills that seem to cause neither worry nor shame in the face of the fever for amusement.

that produce absolute forgetfulness of the great things that should sweep life in a sense of its relation and responsi-bility to God, these all are a part of the price we pay for the Jehu spirit that makes the chariot of the circus and the redfine of obscripting checkmans and the redfire of absorbing cheapness in so much of our amusement. It calls for our thought and care,

THE LIFE PLEASURE MAD. "It has been suggested that this tendency of our time to drive too hard the charlot of amusement, to share too eag-erly in the things of life on its lighter side unsettles life, makes it less healthy and same, burns out its energy, limits the moral vision and softens the fiber of life.

"Need one remind you that the saddest wrecks that visit the great neurol-ogists of America are not the men who are the wornout giants of the business and industrial world? They are the vo-taries of the craze for undue pleasure Have you noted that the shameful crimes of the past decade have sprung out of the hothouse atmosphere of the life pleasure-mad?"

NEWHOUSE MINES & SMELTERS

To the Bondholders and Stockholders:

Owing to the recent depression in business generally, and in the copper industries especially, and also owing to numerous unfortunate caves and misliaps at the mines of your company located at Newhouse, in the State of Utah. your company finds itself with an indebtedness of nearly $200,000, partly past due, on which suit is threatened, and with no funds with which to meet the semi-annual interest that will fall due on July 1st, 1909, on its $1,300,000 par value of outstanding First Mortgage bonds, and the $100,000 required also on July 1st, 1909, for sinking fund purposes. The company is unable to meet these obligations and requires substantial further working capital for the devel-epment of its mines, the alteration of its mill, and to pay its creditors. To that end a prompt reorganization is imerative. The undersigned, who own and control large amounts of the securities of the company, have, at the re-
