Another Salt Lake man has stepped to the front with a couple of inventions which bid fair to revolutionize the air and clamp brake equipment on railroad cars. The man is Knut W. Carlgren, a locksmith of this city, and his inventions comprise an automatic air coupling device, and a system of mechanism by which, in case of accidental breaking away from a train of heavily loaded freight cars, the brakes are automatically applied, and the car stops within the distance of its own length from the place it breaks away Mr. Carlgren's inventions have both been patented. The car brake patent was issued July 21 of the present year, and the air coupling device on Aug. 11. It is claimed for the car brake that it will stop the largest and most heavit will stop the largest and most heav-ly loaded car by automatic application of the brakes within the distance of its own length on a 20 per cent grade, and a working model of the invention, now or, exhibition at the office of B. Clegg, 411 Auerbach building, demonstrates the correctness of the claim. There are two cars on the miniature railroad track, loaded proportionately heavy, and at as great an incline as the wheels of the car can be prevented from sild-ing, the brakes are applied when tho cat breaks loose and is stopped in an incredibly short distance.

incredibly short distance. SIMPLE MECHANISM.

In the case of the air pipe coupling device, the mechanism is very simple, yet very effective. The coupling words automatically and connects the steam or air pipes the moment the cars are coupled, and automatically disconnects the pires when the cars are or air pipes the moment the cars are coupled, and automatically disconnects the pipes when the cars are uncoupled. The device is adapted to be applied to the standard air or steam pipes now in use, obviates the necessity for going in between the cars to couple up the pipes, and it is claimed can be applied to present systems with comparative-ly small cost. The coupling is produced by means of a rotating tube equipped with curved fingers which upon pres-sure of the cars coming together are forced together and interlocked, thus completing the connection. A working model of this invention may also be seen in the Auerbach building. A feature of the car brake is that it may be made to work whether the car is going forward or backward, or may

America from Sweden 25 years ago. He located in Salt Lake City when first coming to the country, and has been a resident of this city ever since. He is a gun and locksmith by trade, modest in demeanor, and of himself makes no great parade over the two inventions which are certainly moves in mechan-ical progress calculated to save time, labor, life and property. He has been working on the inventions about two years, and is happy to see success crown his efforts. He has received very flatteirng letters from scientific men who have examined his patents, and many local railroad men, and others, pronounce them marvels and predict for pronounce them marvels and predict for
