

UTAH GIRL WHO ESCAPED INDIANS

Miss Mable Straight is Now the Bride of Gabriel
May.

SURVIVOR OF A MASSACRE.

Redskins in Mexico Killed Her Two Uncles and Grandmother but Spared Her Life.

Twelve years ago, in one of the Indian massacres that have always been the price of subduing the frontiers of America, a whole family, save only one-year-old girl, was murdered in cold blood. Today the girl is the bride of Gabriel May, of Indianapolis, Ind., and in the spring will accompany her husband west to Salt Lake, where they will establish their permanent home. A week ago the bride to be, accompanied by her brother, Hyrum Straight, left Salt Lake to meet her future husband and be joined to him in the bands of matrimony, at his home city. The aged to crawl into the chicken coop, while the Indians were in the house, where he found his little niece. Here they remained, watching the proceedings of the terrible affair through the chinks of the log coop. After the In-

ans had returned the second time and found that the little girl had escaped, they went to the corral, and drove off 15 head of good horses. When they were out of sight, the boy and girl crept from their hiding place, and started for the ranch of George C. Williams, some three or four miles distant, to give the alarm; but the boy soon fainted from the effects of his wound and the little girl was left alone to make her way as best she could. On her way she met Sullivan Richardson, who hastened to the wounded boy and carried them both to the Williams ranch, and dispatched a messenger to Pacheco, word has just arrived that the wounded boy has died.

On Monday, Sept. 12, 1892, the ranch was attacked by Indians, the two boys, Miss Straight, and herself were out in the barnyard, when the Indians appeared, and both boys were shot. Then as the girl's grandmother came out of the house, she too was murdered. For some reason the girl was unharmed.

The story, at the time it occurred, was fully told in the Deseret News, through two letters, one from George Teasdale, and one from Joseph C. Bentley, published in the issues of Oct. 2nd and 3rd, 1892.

After being spared by the Apaches, and left without relatives in a distant land, the girl was sent to Spring Creek, Utah, where she was made acquainted with her father, and told of the death of her mother, while she was a baby, and of the fact that her grandmother had adopted her. Since then, until her marriage, she has lived at the home of her father, R. Straight, one of the well known and prosperous residents of Spring Creek.

The groom, too, has a rather romantic career. He fought through the Spanish war as a lieutenant in an Indiana volunteer regiment, and was wounded at El Caney, Cuba.

STORY OF MASSACRE.
An extract from the Deseret News of Oct. 3, 1892, follows, giving the details of the massacre, in which Miss Straight was alone left alive. It is taken from the letter written by Joseph C. Bentley, Sept. 29, 1892, and dated at Juarez, Mexico.

Miss A. Thompson and family, formerly of St. Johns, Ariz., had been living on the ranch for some time past, and last Sunday evening, Mr. Thompson left for Pacheco, to start work on a threshing next day, leaving his wife, two sons and little granddaughter at home. Early Monday morning, the Indians, seven or eight in number, surrounded the house, and while the two boys and little girl were feeding the pigs, opened fire on them from behind the barn, killing the elder son, Hyrum, aged 14 years. The other boy, Elmer, aged 14, and the little girl started to run towards the house, when a shot from the corral entered the boy's right side, causing him to fall to the ground. The Indians then rushed for the house, threw the little girl to one side, and meeting Mrs. Thompson in the doorway shot her. But finding that she picked up a rock and mashed her head with it. They then entered the house, cut open beds, valises, and burst open trunks, carrying away to where their pursuers were guarded by a gun, and ammunition, etc. they could find, and returned a second time to search for the little girl, whose life they had spared, evidently intending to carry her off a prisoner. The boy after falling, man-

"I was much afflicted with scabies," writes Ed C. Nul, Iowa, Sedgewick Co., Kan., "going about on crutches and suffering a deal of pain. I was induced to try Ballard's Snow Liniment, which relieved me. I used three 25c bottles. It is the greatest liniment I ever used; have recommended it to a number of persons; all express themselves as being benefited by it. I now walk without crutches, able to perform a great deal of light labor on the farm." 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold by Z. C. M. I. Drug Dept.

LIGHTS WENT OUT.

Some Stores Were Compelled to Close Their Doors Last Night.

Through the burning of a regulator, at the west side station, the business part of the city bounded by State, Second South, West Temple, and Fourth South streets, was shut off from electric lights for over half an hour early last evening. Several stores closed their doors rather than run any risk of raids from sneak thieves and shop lifters, while others used candles and made a shift to get along somehow. The damage was repaired at the earliest moment.

an especially easy time of it to judge from reports of accidents and minor difficulties that continually hinder their progress. They are several months behind time in finishing their contracts. Tuesday at Barstow, Cal., a wreck occurred on the road, which so seriously injured the engineer and fireman of a construction train, that they had to be taken to a Los Angeles hospital, and at the same time killed a brakeman. The accident was a peculiar one. A tank car, used to supply water to the men working on the desert, was being hauled up a hill beyond Daguer, when it broke free, and started on a mad rush down a long grade toward Barstow, carrying with it a brakeman. Ten miles down the track, at siding 21, it encountered a construction train. Engineer Henderson and Fireman Miller of the work train both saw the flying car too late to jump, and were in the cab when the collision occurred. The tank car was demolished, and the engine seriously damaged. Miller received several severe bruises, while Henderson had an arm broken. The brakeman, John Bryant went to his death with the runaway car on which he rode.

Thanks to this remarkable remedy, I am now a cured man and believe that it made a permanent and complete cure." F. C. Schramm is local agent for Mi-o-na, nature's cure for dyspepsia.
