of Senator Quay are greatly discouraged at the action taken by the Senate this morning, in postponing further consideration of the Quay case until April 3. Even when it comes up at that time, it must at any time yield precedence to the Puerto Rican or Philippine legislation, appropriation bills, or to conference reports, so that today's agreement virtually puts Mr. Quay in worse position than ever, so far as reaching a vote is concerned. The interval between now and April 2 will give a dozen of Quay's opponents ample time to prepare long speeches, so that they are more sanguine than ever

For some time past Lewis has held the position of assistant dog catcher, and has proved himself a terror, not only to dogs to their owners as well.

Yesterday Mall Carrier Naylor, whose route embraces the Annex and Sugar ward, lodged a complaint with Deputy Recorder Nystrom, stating that east and west, north and south of Eleventh South, dogs were as thick as lice on a hen's back, making it extremely dangerous for him to enter people's lots and deliver his mail. "All right," said Nystrom, "We'll see what a little weeding out process will do.' Accordingly, bright and early this morning Lewis was dispatched to the Annex and vicinity and was making quite a haul when one little cur gave him the slip and ran, with "Race Horse Dick" after him. Lewis got within a few feet of the canine when the little 'begger''(as Lewis called him) went under a fence and into the lot owned by Councilman J. J. Thomas. In the rear of Mr. Thomas's lot, chained to a kennel, was a massive St. Bernard dog, called "Blaine," who, seeing the colored man trying to lasso one of his own tribe, sprang forward and made for Lewis, breaking his chair in the spring. The infuriated animal would have been on Lewis in another second or two but just at that moment Councilman Thomas appeared on the scene and called "Blaine" back. The dog retreated toward his master somewhat reluctantly, all the while growing like "sixty." Lewis caught the dog he started out after, put in it the dogwagon and then went back to the Thomas residence. "What do you want?" enquired

"Rural? Rural? did you say?" said Mr. Thomas, as he caught Lewis by the throat.
