d128 tf ---- From all accounts Horace F. Clark, with his uncounted mil-lions, was the victim of his own folly—over work. He went home from a long railway business tour to the West, and the way these railway men transact their business allow him to do so, as his vehicle was filled with milk cans and that, on this account, he was assaulted by Loonard. The latter was arrested and was to be tried before fustice Cilaton this afternoon. s almost certain suicide. Travel-is almost ceptain suicide. Travel-ing by sleeping cars and working day times will sconer or later finish up any man, however good his con-stitution. The universal assertion of business men that they can rest just as well in a sleeping car or on a steamer, as in a regular bed, is a fiction that is leading many a bus-iness man across lots to his grave. If it can't be done. We know that now-a-days business is compressed into twenty-four hours, that here-tofore required a wee's's time. But it is also tare that men are com-pressing their lives in the same proportion. Unless men will be content to work eight hours a day, it surporting to give an exhibit of Credit Mobiller legislation an loperations. MORTUARY .- Here is the Sexton's report for June. Males, 22; females, 11; of these adult content to work eight hours a day, take eight hours for relaxation, and eight hours for absolute rest, they must pay the penalty that nature demands.—Cleveland Heraid.

—— The best economists in the rorld are the Germans. In their faderiand they waste nothing. The produce of everything—trees, cows —issaved either for homeuse or car-ried to market. By the side of every little, nook, every corner, where grass grows by the roadside, river and brook, it is carefully cut and carried home; nothing that can be used is lost—weeds, nettles or hay. - The best economists in the It is said by writers that they care-fully collect the leaves of the marsh grass, carefully cut the po-tate tops, and if these things fail, wooden ware business, and coerthing is green leaves from the woode cuttings of the vines are Jands; the cuttings of the vines are dried and preserved for winter use, the tops and refuse of the hemp, the rough stocks of the popples are all saved and converted into ma-nure for hand. In autumn the fall-ing leaves are gathered and collect-ed for use. The Germans are truly a wonderful people; their success in this country proves it.
