

SEVEN BILLS WERE PASSED.

Senate's Night Session is a Very Busy One.

Bill Passed Senate Regarding Fire Insurance Companies to Do Business Through Local Agents.

At the last evening's session the Senate passed several bills, consisting of the following:

Senate bill 42, relating to insurance companies, shall carry on their business through resident agents so that the State can collect a failure 15 percent on the premiums. Failure to comply with the law entails a fine of $500.

Senate bill 111, requiring the publication of entry notices and notice of sale of entries in county papers wherever possible.

Senate bill 107, giving purchasers of State lands the right to assign such property in subdivisions of forty acres before completing the purchase.

Senate bill 84, requiring the State dairy and food commissioner to visit and inspect dairies and creameries in a compulsory condition.

Senate bill 85, relieving the State of the payment of one-half of the salaries of county attorneys.

Senate bill 86, requiring corporations in mining or being sued to prove their corporate existence.

Senate bill 81, giving the heir, devisee or legatee the right to secure his share of an estate by filing a petition therefor three months after the will has been probated.

Senate bill 114, giving city councils the power to grant railroad franchises and union depot franchises for 100 years instead of 50 as at present.

Senate bill 108, providing for uniform examinations of applicants for positions as teachers in county schools.

House bill 105, giving the state board of education control over teachers' examinations.

House bill 147, giving city councils the power to grant land to railroad companies.

House bill 167, relating to taxes for schools in cities of the first class.

Senate bill 45, appropriating $4,000 for the establishment of a domestic science department at the University, was ordered referred to the committee on appropriations.

HOUSE RECORD BROKEN.

Twenty-five Bills Disposed of in a Single Day—What Was Done.

All records were broken in the House yesterday, when twenty-five bills were disposed of, twenty of which were passed.

One of the bills was the celebrated "banker's bill," which has been called the "banker's bill" through, but it was hardly recognizable for the same bill that the speaker had introduced some weeks before, being amended by the striking out of an entire page and the substitution of a whole page of typewritten amendments, besides some minor corrections. The bill, as passed by the House, imposes a tax of half of 1 per cent, to be paid each first of May, on all money loaned during the preceding twelve months. The clause of the bill allowing tax assessors to ascertain the amounts of individual bank accounts was eliminated, and the bill, in its present form, is said to be perfectly satisfactory to the bankers.

The House would have none of Glassman's bill to assess property which had been assessed, and after the bill had brought about a vote of 10-10 between the speaker and Messrs. Anderson and Smith, the committee's report that the bill be rejected was adopted.

Mr. Glassman started the trouble by accusing the committee of discourtesy in not asking him to be present when his bill was being considered. Messrs. Anderson and Smith both seemed much surprised at this and said that the speaker had been present when the bill was considered. Mr. Anderson said that he took a printed copy of the bill home with him to study it.

The speaker denied that the bills had been printed at that time. Mr. Smith reminded him that (Glassman) himself had distributed the bill at the committee meeting, but the speaker still stuck to his point and said that the printer's record would show that the bill had not been printed at the time of the committee meeting.

During the afternoon the speaker announced that he had appointed Representatives Axtell and McGregor as a committee to assist the chief clerk in correcting the journal, and a month's salary will be allowed them for the work.

Mr. McMillan moved that Mr. Clark Claxson have a hand in the work, but the House was unwilling that any further expense should be incurred in connection with this matter.

The report of the committee on University and buildings was read by Mr. N. L. Morris and referred to the committee on revenue and appropriations.

It calls for a total amount of $173,000, distributed as follows: General maintenance, $70,000; apparatus, $10,000; and other supplies, including supplies for the school of mines, $3,000; for the school of law, $2,000; for the school of mines or museum building, $10,000; machine shops and machinery, $10,000; kindergarten, $5,000; branch normal at Cedar City, $10,000. This is exclusive of interest on the land fund.

The report of the day's work is as follows:

BILLS PASSED.
Senate bill No. 87, by Allison—Relating to the collection of damages suits for the death of children or wards killed by accident.

Senate bill No. 161, by Lawrence—Relating to a felony in a corporation.

Senate bill No. 63—Fixing the mileage of judges and district attorneys at 8 cents per mile on railroads and 15 cents on all other railroads.

Senate bill No. 28, by Howell—Providing that the State board of examiners shall approve the books of all State schools and other persons required to make where no other provision is made for the approval of the books.

Senate bill No. 235, by Lambert—Appropriating $5,000 with which to purchase poison for the destruction of rats in the various counties of the State.

Senate bill No. 31, by Pennington—Providing for the acceptance of certain heart lands from the government by the State, and providing for the reclamation, occupancy and disposition of the same.

Senate bill No. 117—Prohibiting unauthorised persons from wearing the insignia of the Loyal Legion, button of the same, or medal of the Utah National Guard.

Senate bill No. 59, by Whitmore—Providing that the State board of examiners may let contract to lowest and best bidder for publication of records of marks and brands, to be sold at $2.50 per copy or less.

Senate bill No. 40, by Whitmore—Providing for printing and distribution of copies of records of marks and brands.

200 People by the Hair!

An average, healthy hair will support a quarter of a pound. There are 120,000 of these on the head. They all together would support 30,000 pounds, wouldn't they? This is equivalent to an audience of 200 people, weighing 150 pounds each!

It's mathematically true that an average head of hair will support an entire audience of 200 people. It doesn't seem possible, but it's so.

It doesn't seem possible, either, that Ayer's Hair Vigor restores color to gray hair; but it does restore it, and every time, too,—all the dark, rich color the hair had years ago. It stops falling of the hair also, and keeps the scalp healthy and free from dandruff.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for thirty years and I do not think there is anything equal to it for a fine hair dressing. I am never without it."

J. A. GRUENFELDER, Grantfork, Ill., June 8, 1899.

One dollar a bottle. All druggists.

Ask your druggist first. If he cannot supply you, send us one dollar and we will express a bottle to you. Be sure and give the name of your nearest express office. Address, J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

SEND FOR OUR HANDSOME BOOK ON THE HAIR.

TEXT OF OPINION IN GRAHAM CASE

Following is the full text of the Supreme Court opinion in the case of John C. Graham convicted in the district court for unlawful cohabitation:

THE OPINION.

In the Supreme Court of the State of Utah; the State of Utah, respondent, vs. John C. Graham, defendant and appellant; Rolapp, district judge.

The defendant in this action was tried in Salt Lake county for the offense of unlawful cohabitation, upon an information charging the defendant with such offense as follows:

"That the said John C. Graham, on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1898, and on divers other days, and continually between said 1st day of January, A. D. 1898, and the 12th day of May, 1899, at the county of Salt Lake, State of Utah, did unlawfully cohabit with more than one woman, to-wit, one Mary A. Graham and one Sarah Potter, commonly known as Sarah Potter Graham."

The evidence adduced at the trial showed that the defendant cohabited with Sarah Potter Graham as his wife in Salt Lake county, without showing that the relation existing between this woman and defendant was illegal in any way; but on the other hand the evidence affirmatively shows that the defendant married Mary A. Graham (the other woman named in the indictment) thirty-two years ago, as a plural wife, he then having another wife living, and that for twenty years or more he has cohabited with her as such wife in the county of Utah, in this State. It was further affirmatively shown that this latter woman has never been in the county of Salt Lake within the period during which it is claimed in the information the defendant unlawfully cohabited with more than one woman; nor has the defendant at any time lived or cohabited with her in Salt Lake county.

The trial resulted in the conviction of the defendant, from which verdict and the subsequent judgment the defendant appeals to this court, assigning as principal errors certain of the instructions as given by the court, and the refusal of the court to give certain instructions as requested by the defendant.

Upon the trial the court below, among other things, charged the jury as follows:

"You are instructed that it is not necessary to find that the defendant cohabited with both of the women named in the information in Salt Lake county; but if you find that he cohabited with Sarah Potter Graham in this county, and with Mary Graham in Utah county, during the time charged in the information, he would be guilty."

And further, the court charged that: "If he has so conducted himself toward her that those living in the vicinity had reason to believe and did believe he was living with said Sarah Potter Graham as his wife, then you should find the defendant guilty, as charged, provided that you also find from the evidence beyond a reasonable doubt that during the same period as above mentioned he lived and maintained the same relations with Mary A. Graham, although such relations with her were maintained in Utah county."

The defendant requested the court to charge the jury as follows:

"If at the date of Statehood the defendant had two polygamous wives, one in Provo and one in Salt Lake, he had the right to marry either, and commit no offense in living with her. If defendant had as one polygamous wife Sarah Potter, and lived with her after Statehood in Salt Lake, the law will presume in behalf of innocence that he was married to her, and if married to her and lived with no other woman in Salt Lake county, then you should acquit."

REQUEST 1.

"It is necessary to allege the exact facts, and if it is sought to prove an offense committed partly in one county and partly in another, then it must be so stated in the information. This information states the offense as committed wholly in Salt Lake county, and cannot be sustained by proof that it was committed partly in one county and partly in another."

REQUEST 2.

"If the jury find that the defendant was living with one wife in Utah county, and with another in Salt Lake county, and never living with but one in Salt Lake county, then he cannot be convicted under this information, which charges him with living with two wives in Salt Lake county."

REQUEST 3.

"The act of living and cohabiting with Sarah Potter Graham in Salt Lake county was an innocent act, as far as this information is concerned, and not punishable unless accompanied by proof that somewhere defendant had a lawful wife. No such evidence has been offered in this case, and the jury should acquit."

All of these requests were by the court refused.

Of course, inasmuch as the instructions given by the court were wholly antagonistic in theory to the instructions requested by the defendant, the sole question before this court is, which of the two theories is correct.

Our statute provides (Revised Statutes, section 4720): "The information or indictment must contain:

"Second—A statement of the acts constituting the offense, in ordinary and concise language, and in such manner as to enable a person of common understanding to know what is intended."

Section 4534 of the Revised Statutes provides as follows: "When a public offense has been committed in part in one county and in part in another, or the acts or effects thereof constituting or requisite to the consummation of the offense shall have been committed in two or more counties, the jurisdiction shall be in any of such counties. When a public offense shall have been committed near the boundaries of two or more counties, the jurisdiction shall be in any of such counties."

This latter section of the statute was copied from the California statute, after having received repeated judicial construction from the highest tribunal of that State; and under such circumstances we have repeatedly held that this fact is a rule of construction in interpreting this placed upon such borrowed statute by the highest court of the State from whence it came. As early as 1857, in the case of People vs. Dougherty (7 Cal. 396), the supreme court of California interpreted the statute in a manner similar in principle to the one under consideration here. In that case the defendant was indicted and convicted for an assault with a deadly weapon, charged to have been committed in the county of San Francisco, while the evidence showed the crime to have been committed on board a vessel, either while lying at her berth in Sacramento or on her passage to San Francisco.

The court held that the prosecution was commenced provided that "when an offense is committed within this State on board of a vessel navigated on river, bay or slough, or lying therein, in the prosecution of her voyage, or the course of her voyage, or in the county where the voyage was terminated."

And the court, in reversing the judgment, said: "The extra territorial jurisdiction thus conferred upon the courts of the various counties situated upon the navigable waters of the State is special in its character, and in derogation of the common law rule, and is subject, and whenever it is invoked, the facts and circumstances must be set out in full in the indictment. In this respect the court may be considered as exercising a special and limited jurisdiction, and the facts which give jurisdiction must be clearly alleged and satisfactorily proved."

Again, in the case of People vs. Scott (15 Pac. 284), which was a case upon an indictment for burglary committed in both counties and being assailed upon that ground the court says: "The offense was committed in one county, and consummated in another; but it was only one transaction, occurring partly in each county, and it was not only proper but necessary that the indictment should state the facts, so as to bring the case within the statute."

Again, in the case of People vs. Scott (15 Pac. 284), which was a case upon an indictment for burglary committed in both counties and being assailed upon that ground the court says: "The offense was committed in one county, and consummated in another; but it was only one transaction, occurring partly in each county, and it was not only proper but necessary that the indictment should state the facts, so as to bring the case within the statute."

brought into San Bernardino county, must be alleged in the indictment.

This principle has been universally applied, with two exceptions, one of which is a seeming exception only. The first exception is applicable where the offense was committed within a short distance from the boundary line between two counties, in which event it has been held sufficient to allege and prove the offense to have been actually committed in either. The other class of cases in which there is an apparent diversion from this well-established rule is where the stolen goods are carried by the thief through various counties, in which case the law adjudges that the offense was in truth committed in each of such counties, and hence there is no occasion for a statement in the pleading of what occurred in any other except where the trial is held.

All of the cases cited by counsel for the State either came within one of these two exceptions to the general rule, or they are cases where a dangerous agent has been unlawfully set in motion in one county and the necessary result of such act effected in another, in which event, of course, the jurisdiction of the offense may be laid in either county.

Apart from the consideration of the effect of these adjudicated cases upon the question before us, we do not think that the provision of section 4534 of the Revised Statutes, outside of those relating to offenses committed near the boundary line of two counties, are at all applicable to this class of cases. Before that section can become operative in any criminal case one of two things must appear. Either, first, the offense must be divisible, and each part be unlawful in and of itself and committed at a different time and place; or, second, the offense must consist of more than one act, each of which acts or effect of such acts must constitute an unlawful element of the offense, without the presence of which the offense could not be consummated.

The mere existence in some other county than the place of trial of acts or conditions of the defendant, lawful in and of themselves, but necessary to be alleged or proven, in order to establish the crime as charged, do not involve the powers of the State as to permit the trial of the defendant in such other county.

Applying this reasoning to the case at bar and viewing the evidence in the light of the presumption of innocence accorded to every accused person, we must inevitably come to the conclusion that the jury were bound under the evidence in this case to regard as wholly innocent any relation, whether actual or apparent, existing between the defendant and the woman named in the information who resided in Salt Lake county, and who claimed to be his wife. If in any case the proof shows the presence of a relation founded either on actual marriage or on the holding out of its existence, between a man and a woman living within the jurisdiction of the court, and no evidence of an illegal inception or character of the relation is produced, the conclusive presumption arises that such relation is that of lawful marriage.

U. S. vs. Snow, 9 Pac. 658.

U. S. vs. Smith, 10 Pac. 291.

This is so upon the well established rule that the presumption of innocence and ordinary state of things, rather than a peculiar and exceptional condition; it supposes legality rather than crime, and virtue and morality rather than the opposite qualities.

Camille vs. Ferrie, 23 N. Y. 158.

While residing with his lawful wife in Salt Lake county the defendant did not "flaunt in the face of the world the ostentation and opportunities of a bigamous household." Consequently, while the defendant's association and relations with the lawful wife in Salt Lake county was a necessary matter to be pleaded and proven by the State, yet such association, act or condition was not a public offense, nor part of any offense; and not being or constituting the offense, it is not necessary that it be alleged or proven.

Of course, inasmuch as the instructions given by the court were wholly antagonistic in theory to the instructions requested by the defendant, the sole question before this court is, which of the two theories is correct.

Our statute provides (Revised Statutes, section 4720): "The information or indictment must contain:

"Second—A statement of the acts constituting the offense, in ordinary and concise language, and in such manner as to enable a person of common understanding to know what is intended."

Section 4534 of the Revised Statutes provides as follows: "When a public offense has been committed in part in one county and in part in another, or the acts or effects thereof constituting or requisite to the consummation of the offense shall have been committed in two or more counties, the jurisdiction shall be in any of such counties. When a public offense shall have been committed near the boundaries of two or more counties, the jurisdiction shall be in any of such counties."

This latter section of the statute was copied from the California statute, after having received repeated judicial construction from the highest tribunal of that State; and under such circumstances we have repeatedly held that this fact is a rule of construction in interpreting this placed upon such borrowed statute by the highest court of the State from whence it came. As early as 1857, in the case of People vs. Dougherty (7 Cal. 396), the supreme court of California interpreted the statute in a manner similar in principle to the one under consideration here. In that case the defendant was indicted and convicted for an assault with a deadly weapon, charged to have been committed in the county of San Francisco, while the evidence showed the crime to have been committed on board a vessel, either while lying at her berth in Sacramento or on her passage to San Francisco.

The court held that the prosecution was commenced provided that "when an offense is committed within this State on board of a vessel navigated on river, bay or slough, or lying therein, in the prosecution of her voyage, or the course of her voyage, or in the county where the voyage was terminated."

And the court, in reversing the judgment, said: "The extra territorial jurisdiction thus conferred upon the courts of the various counties situated upon the navigable waters of the State is special in its character, and in derogation of the common law rule, and is subject, and whenever it is invoked, the facts and circumstances must be set out in full in the indictment. In this respect the court may be considered as exercising a special and limited jurisdiction, and the facts which give jurisdiction must be clearly alleged and satisfactorily proved."

Again, in the case of People vs. Scott (15 Pac. 284), which was a case upon an indictment for burglary committed in both counties and being assailed upon that ground the court says: "The offense was committed in one county, and consummated in another; but it was only one transaction, occurring partly in each county, and it was not only proper but necessary that the indictment should state the facts, so as to bring the case within the statute."

Again, in the case of People vs. Scott (15 Pac. 284), which was a case upon an indictment for burglary committed in both counties and being assailed upon that ground the court says: "The offense was committed in one county, and consummated in another; but it was only one transaction, occurring partly in each county, and it was not only proper but necessary that the indictment should state the facts, so as to bring the case within the statute."

Again, in the case of People vs. Scott (15 Pac. 284), which was a case upon an indictment for burglary committed in both counties and being assailed upon that ground the court says: "The offense was committed in one county, and consummated in another; but it was only one transaction, occurring partly in each county, and it was not only proper but necessary that the indictment should state the facts, so as to bring the case within the statute."

Again, in the case of People vs. Scott (15 Pac. 284), which was a case upon an indictment for burglary committed in both counties and being assailed upon that ground the court says: "The offense was committed in one county, and consummated in another; but it was only one transaction, occurring partly in each county, and it was not only proper but necessary that the indictment should state the facts, so as to bring the case within the statute."

Again, in the case of People vs. Scott (15 Pac. 284), which was a case upon an indictment for burglary committed in both counties and being assailed upon that ground the court says: "The offense was committed in one county, and consummated in another; but it was only one transaction, occurring partly in each county, and it was not only proper but necessary that the indictment should state the facts, so as to bring the case within the statute."

Again, in the case of People vs. Scott (15 Pac. 284), which was a case upon an indictment for burglary committed in both counties and being assailed upon that ground the court says: "The offense was committed in one county, and consummated in another; but it was only one transaction, occurring partly in each county, and it was not only proper but necessary that the indictment should state the facts, so as to bring the case within the statute."

Again, in the case of People vs. Scott (15 Pac. 284), which was a case upon an indictment for burglary committed in both counties and being assailed upon that ground the court says: "The offense was committed in one county, and consummated in another; but it was only one transaction, occurring partly in each county, and it was not only proper but necessary that the indictment should state the facts, so as to bring the case within the statute."

Again, in the case of People vs. Scott (15 Pac. 284), which was a case upon an indictment for burglary committed in both counties and being assailed upon that ground the court says: "The offense was committed in one county, and consummated in another; but it was only one transaction, occurring partly in each county, and it was not only proper but necessary that the indictment should state the facts, so as to bring the case within the statute."

Again, in the case of People vs. Scott (15 Pac. 284), which was a case upon an indictment for burglary committed in both counties and being assailed upon that ground the court says: "The offense was committed in one county, and consummated in another; but it was only one transaction, occurring partly in each county, and it was not only proper but necessary that the indictment should state the facts, so as to bring the case within the statute."

Again, in the case of People vs. Scott (15 Pac. 284), which was a case upon an indictment for burglary committed in both counties and being assailed upon that ground the court says: "The offense was committed in one county, and consummated in another; but it was only one transaction, occurring partly in each county, and it was not only proper but necessary that the indictment should state the facts, so as to bring the case within the statute."

Again, in the case of People vs. Scott (15 Pac. 284), which was a case upon an indictment for burglary committed in both counties and being assailed upon that ground the court says: "The offense was committed in one county, and consummated in another; but it was only one transaction, occurring partly in each county, and it was not only proper but necessary that the indictment should state the facts, so as to bring the case within the statute."

Again, in the case of People vs. Scott (15 Pac. 284), which was a case upon an indictment for burglary committed in both counties and being assailed upon that ground the court says: "The offense was committed in one county, and consummated in another; but it was only one transaction, occurring partly in each county, and it was not only proper but necessary that the indictment should state the facts, so as to bring the case within the statute."

Again, in the case of People vs. Scott (15 Pac. 284), which was a case upon an indictment for burglary committed in both counties and being assailed upon that ground the court says: "The offense was committed in one county, and consummated in another; but it was only one transaction, occurring partly in each county, and it was not only proper but necessary that the indictment should state the facts, so as to bring the case within the statute."

Again, in the case of People vs. Scott (15 Pac. 284), which was a case upon an indictment for burglary committed in both counties and being assailed upon that ground the court says: "The offense was committed in one county, and consummated in another; but it was only one transaction, occurring partly in each county, and it was not only proper but necessary that the indictment should state the facts, so as to bring the case within the statute."

Again, in the case of People vs. Scott (15 Pac. 284), which was a case upon an indictment for burglary committed in both counties and being assailed upon that ground the court says: "The offense was committed in one county, and consummated in another; but it was only one transaction, occurring partly in each county, and it was not only proper but necessary that the indictment should state the facts, so as to bring the case within the statute."

Again, in the case of People vs. Scott (15 Pac. 284), which was a case upon an indictment for burglary committed in both counties and being assailed upon that ground the court says: "The offense was committed in one county, and consummated in another; but it was only one transaction, occurring partly in each county, and it was not only proper but necessary that the indictment should state the facts, so as to bring the case within the statute."

ELKES, MICHAEL, MILLER,

Each at Height of His Career Uses Paine's Celery Compound.

Elkes, Michael and Miller, each at the height of his career, used Paine's Celery Compound and acknowledge a debt of personal gratitude to the great remedy.

The New York World says of Champion Elkes, whose likeness is given above: "There is no reason why Elkes should not claim the World's championship, having beaten every crack rider in America and Europe." Like his great predecessors, Michael and Miller, Elkes believes Paine's Celery Compound to be the most wonderful preparation in the world for strengthening the nervous system. He has consented to the publication of the following letter:

New York, December 21, 1900.
"Before I began to train for the six-day race at Madison Square Garden, New York City, I was in poor condition. I took Paine's Celery Compound, and after the first bottle I felt entirely different. I continued to take it up to the time the race started and during the week of the contest, My excellent condition is due to Paine's Celery Compound. I recommend it to all who need a perfect restorer of exhausted nervous energy."

Yours sincerely,
H. D. ELKES.

Wonderful Jimmy Michael in recommending Paine's Celery Compound said: "After the exertion of my record rides, I was advised to use Paine's Celery Compound. I am pleased to say that it gave such satisfaction that I was impelled to use it again. I believe that wheelmen and athletes will find Paine's Celery Compound of assistance in keeping up their physical tone."

JIMMY MICHAEL.
Champion C. W. Miller, winner of the six-days' bicycle race at Madison Square Garden, New York city, says: "I owe to Paine's Celery Compound a debt of personal gratitude. For several years I have occasionally used Paine's Celery Compound when I felt out of sorts and run down. Before the big race in New York, feeling that I ought to be in the best possible condition, because a nervous breakdown on the track is one thing all welltrained men are afraid of—I began to use Paine's Celery Compound. It was an essential part of my successful training. I assure you that it did me so much good, I wish that others may have the benefit of my experience."

Yours sincerely,
C. W. MILLER.
Champion long-distance rider of the world.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

TO OUR MANY FRIENDS AND CUSTOMERS we desire to announce that on and after March 10th, 1901, we will have moved, fixed up and ready to receive calls from customers, friends and public at large at our beautiful, handsomely fitted up new ware room 51 and 53 Main street. We have on exhibition the latest and finest and best stock of pianos and organs ever exhibited in Utah. Our stock consists of the Knabe, Everett, Steck, Hardman, Ludwig, Smith and Barnes, Harrington, Willard, Harvard, Lakeside and other good makes of pianos. Earhart Temple and Estey organs. Whoever saw in any one establishment as large a line of high grade pianos and organs to select from? Our prices on pianos run from $100 up, organs from $25 up. Cash or easy payments. Our stock of goods are right, our prices are right, and our terms are made to suit the buyer. Come and give us a call if only to see our new store with the immense stock of fine instruments on our floor that in itself will doubly pay you for your trouble in calling. REMEMBER THE PLACE.

E. N. JENKINS CO. TEMPLE OF MUSIC. 51 & 53 Main St.

J. Auerbach and Bro

Wholesale and Retail Dry Goods etc

The ...

Swan Fountain Pen

Having all desirable qualifications and no objectionable features is

The Best.

They are fitted with "Mable, Todd & Co." Gold Pens made in all grades of points from

Stub to Extra-Fine. Thus enabling the writer to possess the most satisfactory

Fountain Pen

Obtainable. Mable, Todd & Co., Mfgs. 10 Fulton St., New York.

For sale by CANNON BOOK STORE, (The Desert News, Prop.) C. L. Savage, Margaret Brothers, Salt Lake News Co., Barrows, Kelley & Co.

Buyers of Royal are protected by this label.

BUY THE GENUINE SYRUP OF FIGS

MANUFACTURED BY CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. IF NOT THE NAME.

See that you get the original De Witt's Kidney & Bladder Pills, ask for it. The genuine is a certain cure for piles, sores and skin diseases.

F. C. SCHRAMM.

CHEAP SOAPS ARE DEAR AT ANY