DEATH OF VALISON TANNER.

Lived a Month With Broken Neck—George White Injured in a Fall—Mr. Henderson Honored.

Ogden, Nov. 15.—The first press club to be organized in Ogden was completed last evening at a meeting of the representatives of all of the Ogden and Salt Lake newspapers, held at the Weber club parlors. W. Fred Bossner was chairman of the meeting. It was decided to incorporate under the name "The Press Club of Ogden." Articles of incorporation and by laws that had been prepared by District Judge Howell were carefully gone over and unanimously adopted. The club is incorporated for a period of fifty years, for the purpose of bringing in closer relations between the newspaper men of Ogden, for social and mutual benefit, and for the purpose of pushing Ogden to the front in every way.

The following members were elected to serve until Jan. 1, 1907: C. M. Jackson, editor Utah State Journal, president; Frank Francis, editor Ogden Standard, vice president; W. McKell Hughes, Ogden Standard, secretary; W. Fred Bossner, of Herald, treasurer; E. A. Larkin, of Deseret News, historian; and the first four with W. D. Bratz, of the Intercontinental Republic, Alex. Hyatt, of the Tribune, and Howard Greenfield, of the Standard, the board of governors.

An amusement committee was appointed, consisting of Ernest Spencer, W. D. Bratz and Fred Whipple, was appointed. It was decided at the meeting that only those who do newspaper writing or writing for other publications can become regular members of the club, but that any other person desirous of joining can become associate members on recommendation of two of the members and consent of the board of governors, and payment of the regular membership fee.

The studio and apartments of Prof. Squire Coop, who kindly offered them to the club, will be used for the present by the organization. Many prominent business and professional men have already expressed a desire to become associate members and it is believed the club will have a good membership and will be a success in every respect.

CANNOT STOP FISTIC CONTEST.

The Ministerial association of Ogden held a meeting with District Atty. Halverson and Sheriff Sebring concerning the coming 20-round glove contest for Friday evening at the Grand Opera House between Fighting Dick Hyland and Cyclone Thompson. The ministers desired to have the sport stopped, but it is doubtful if they will be able to accomplish it, as it is not to be a prize fight. Sheriff Sebring was asked Atty. General. Breckenridge for an opinion on the statutes governing such exhibitions, and will be governed accordingly. One of the ministers stated after the consultation, that they are satisfied nothing can be done by them to stop the contest.

THE BENEFIT OF DENATURED ALCOHOL.

It is nearing the time when the advantages of the denatured alcohol law, passed last spring, are to become actually available. On Jan. 1, 1907, the law becomes operative. Its passage was a fortunate event for farmers and manufacturers alike.

The full extent of its benefits are problematical, though the development of the industry in other countries is sufficient to give assurance that it will prove a material of widespread use in the matter of lighting and heating, though possibly it may be many years before it takes as important a place in that regard in this country as it has in Germany. That country has no such ample supply of gasoline and kerosene as is at our command and is more dependent upon alcohol as a heating and lighting fluid.

It is therefore in a measure misleading to anticipate for it as widespread use here in the immediate future as is wholly reasonable to predict a healthy and steady expansion of the consumption of denatured alcohol in this country for industrial purposes.

The present tax on grain alcohol for internal use is $1.10 per proof gallon (50 per cent alcohol and 50 per cent water). On absolute alcohol the tax therefore amounts to $2.20 per gallon. This tax plus the cost of production brings the present price of alcohol to $2.60 per gallon, a price which absolutely prohibits its use for industrial purposes. In other countries alcohol costs from 10 to 35 cents per gallon. It is now estimated that with the tax removed in this country alcohol could be made and sold at a reasonable profit for from 15 to 25 cents a gallon.

If alcohol can be produced cheaply enough to become available as a material to supply heat, light and power, the farmer will derive great benefit from it, as well as finding in its manufacture a better market for a portion of many crops he raises which now represent nearly waste material or such as he is sold at a very low price.

CACHE VALLEY.

Is a "Cowboy" hat seen at Banks', 115 South Main street. Extensively worn by rosy cheeked dairy maids. This hat is as stable and durable as cream cheese, butter and cream. Trimmings with leather band, metal buckle; retails for $1.50 at Banks'.

The sources of alcohol are starch and sugar, and used for the purpose they yield about 45 per cent of their weight in alcohol. An expert has figured that the percentage of alcohol-making material is 16 in apples, 16 in artichokes, 29 in barley, 55 in beans, 84 in buckwheat, 39 in cassava, 70 in corn, 12 in cornstalks, 28 in cottonseed, 55 in cow peas, 70 in Kaffir corn, 60 in oats, 50 in peas, 17 in potatoes, 80 in rice, 72 in rye, 11 in sorghum root, 15 in sugar beets, 24 in sweet potatoes and 71 in wheat. Compare with this the average yield per acre, which is 25 bushels for corn, 15 for wheat, 34 for oats, 27 for barley, 15 for peas, 19 for buckwheat, 35 for potatoes, 9 tons for sugar beets, etc. Now 55 bushels of potatoes will weigh 5,100 pounds. Seventeen per cent of this, or 867 pounds, is starch. The starch will yield 45 per cent of its weight in alcohol, or 393 pounds, which equals 57 gallons. If the alcohol sells for 35 cents a gallon an average bushel of potatoes would therefore yield only $14.25 in the form of alcohol.

Distillers state that the average yield from a bushel of corn is five proof gallons or two and two-thirds gallons of commercial alcohol (94 per cent), and that the by-products used in feeding stock are sufficient to pay the cost of distillation. The cost of alcohol then determined will be the cost of corn and other crops used in its manufacture. On that basis alcohol will cost 11, 13 and 15 cents a gallon with corn at 30, 35 and 40 cents per bushel. The price of potatoes would therefore yield only $14.25 in the form of alcohol.

Alcohol is almost non-explosive. With an incandescent mantle alcohol gives a far brighter white light than kerosene and without any unpleasant odor. The chimneys do not smoke up, the wicks do not have to be renewed, heat is given off and the lamp is safer than with kerosene.

In Europe alcohol lamps have been used for many years. It is a clean, bright, and safe light.

power. In these lamps a Welsbach light at a cost of 6 cents as compared with a cost of 10 cents for kerosene under similar conditions. This being true, therefore, the argument that denatured alcohol is unlikely to be produced here at low enough cost to be of service for use in lamps as a lighting material is ridiculous.

If the production of denatured alcohol from the various farm crops can be kept out of the clutch of some greedy trust, as it should be, it will prove the best agent through which to hold the available, grasping combinations that now control our supplies of heating and lighting materials in check that has yet been produced.

Let the farmers prepare to make the most of free alcohol, both from its production and consumption.—Drovers Journal.

FARM MORTGAGES COMPARED WITH RAILROAD BONDS

Farm indebtedness is almost invariably the result either of a mortgage given as security for a part of purchase price, for the purpose of improving or stocking land already paid for, or the purpose of buying additional land for investment purposes. But in no case do the mortgages of the class mentioned exceed one-half the value of the unimproved land. If this particular mortgaged farm, and the others in the community, fail to produce the returns necessary for the interest charges against them, whence will come the interest on the bonds issued by a railroad dependent on this community for its origin of business?

If one can imagine such a thing as a country suddenly rendered barren, the railroad has become worth less for dividend purposes while, on the other hand, should the same country simply be stripped of its railroad mileage, it would continue self-supporting and at the same time demonstrate its ability to pay any reasonable interest charge against it. It has already done this in times past in all portions of our own country before the railroad construction reached the community. If, therefore, the investor must ultimately look to the earning capacity of his investment, we feel that it is demonstrated that he can most safely do so when his investment is a properly made farm mortgage.—Harry Lee Taft, in Moody's Magazine for November.
