The Semi-Weekly News.

THE GREAT COUNTRY PAPER OF THE WEST.

Is issued Mondays and Thursdays and contains all the cream of the Daily and Saturday News.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Great Salt Lake has shrunk one-tenth of a foot in the last 15 days.

Yester Lauby is the victor in the caddis' golf tournament, held on the grounds of the Country club.

There are 45 automobiles in this city, with more coming, so that Salt Lake promises to be well supplied with them before another year.

The boys of Battery A will give a smoker next Monday evening, when they will also give an exhibition drill with a gun on West Temple street.

Miss Mary V. Cox of Seattle, Wash., secretary to Supt. of Schools Cooper, formerly of this city, now of Seattle, is in the city visiting friends for a few days.

Miss Lizzie Andrews, who was operated on at the Holy Cross hospital a week ago for appendicitis, is reported to be doing nicely, and will soon be around again.

Chaplain John T. Axton of the Eighteenth Infantry will speak tomorrow evening in the Phillips Congregational church, on religious conditions and work in the Philippines.

The local militiamen are anxiously inquiring where the next state encampment is to be held, and hope that it will be held in Ogden Canyon. They don't want to go to Fort Douglas.

Col. Tim Kinney, the Wyoming sheep magnate, has contributed his mite towards the completion of the Catholic cathedral in this city, making the total of the $75,000 found now $50,000.

The local weather office has opened the new suite of rooms in the sixth floor of the Capitol block, handsomely furnished and with the office in better shape than ever before to do business.

Archie E. Leavitt, aged 14 years, and a resident of this city, was operated on at St. Mark's hospital yesterday for appendicitis. The operation was successful and the patient is getting along nicely.

Attorney-General Breeden is camping on the trail of an Ogden breasting concern that is advertising with a cut of the American flag as the background of the design. General Breeden says it is a direct violation of the law.

The city council special did not return to Salt Lake this morning, as was anticipated, and there seems to be a question of doubt as to just where it is at present. Inquiry at the recorder's office late this afternoon produced the statement that the junketers will not return until Monday or Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Miller were heard from last at Edinboro, Scotland, whence Mrs. Miller was going direct to London, the other following a little later. They are proposing to travel by automobile from London to Paris, and thence to Italy over the Alps. Mr. and Mrs. Miller are enjoying themselves thoroughly.

Artist Barratt is receiving many admirers visiting in room 210 Athla block, where he has on exhibition his crayon drawings and sketches. The display is considered one of the finest of the kind ever made in the west. The young man shows a talent in reproducing the natural that ought to in a short time give him an extended reputation.

Mrs. Jane R. Hocking of 155 East Second South street, is at the Holy Cross hospital in a critical condition, as a result of injuries received at her home a week ago. The lady, it appears, was descending the stairs into the basement when she slipped and fell in such a manner as to sprain the muscles in her shoulder, and become unconscious. She was at once removed to the hospital, where she now is under the care of Dr. Kelly.

County Clerk James is in receipt of a communication from William Stewart of Wileah, Scotland, who enquires concerning his aunt, Mrs. Christine Cook of Caldwellwood, who was a resident of Salt Lake for many years, and whose husband, Peter Caldwellwood, conducted a shoe factory. The writer has reason to believe that his aunt is dead, and as he is one of the heirs of the estate, he would be pleased to hear something concerning her.

Viola Pratt Gillette, Salt Lake's gifted daughter, returned home for a brief visit yesterday, accompanied by her husband. It has been four years since Mrs. Gillette last saw Salt Lake, and 10 years since she left for New York to work for a fortune in the dramatic profession. She has just closed with "Mother Goose," the great Klav & Erlanger spectacle, and expresses great pleasure at being able to take the vacation she has so well earned. Mr. and Mrs. Gillette will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Milano Pratt, 565 South State street.

Local members of the Salt Lake Produce Exchange are expressing themselves more or less feelingly on the advertised claims of a certain firm that the exchange is in trade with them. They deny this with emphasis, and say that all of the transactions of the exchange are conducted in open board and recorded just the same as in the past. They also claim that while standard prices are set by general agreement in the exchange, members are at liberty to sell for less where the character of the goods will admit of it. All of this, among members settled by arbitration, is to the detriment of the exchange and its members.

Henry C. Lawrence, postmaster at Hazen, Nev., in jail at Fallon on the charge of attempting to kill Edward Harrison, came to Salt Lake two years ago from southern California, and was given employment at the Kenyon as a repairer, where he gave satisfaction. He was afterwards married and went to the Ford hotel to work. He shortly thereafter returned to Nevada, where he was employed on government canal work. Disagreement with the engineer in charge over possession of plots caused Lawrence's return to Salt Lake last November, but he returned to Nevada in February with parties to locate grounds under the proposed government canal. B. S. Harrington, who went with him, declares Lawrence was a peaceable man, and that the charge is that certain government officials are trying to get hold of his plots and run him out of the country. Landlord Sam Porter of the Kenyon also gives Lawrence a good character.

Funeral services over the remains of Richard Collett were held in the Nineteenth ward last night. Yesterday afternoon, Bishop Isaac Barton presiding. The ward choir, under the leadership of Alvin A. Beasley, furnished the music and sang an opening hymn, "Thou Dying Dearest." Prayer was offered by Elder Joseph Derbridge. The choir further sang, "Thou dost not weep, to weep alone." The speakers were Elders John H. Back, Charles W. Gahl, Bishop Barton and Joseph E. Taylor, who referred in terms of commendation to the upright character of the deceased, and urged his kindred to follow closely in his footsteps. As a closing selection the choir rendered the hymn, "What voice is this that starts the ear?" and the benediction was pronounced by Elder William Asper. There was a good attendance of relatives and friends, and a profusion of beautiful floral emblems. A long cortege followed the remains to the City cemetery.

NEW BOOK FOR CHURCH WORKERS.

Prof. Keeler Completes His Treatise on Priesthood and Church Government.

WILL BE ISSUED NEXT MONTH.

Comprehensive Epitome of its Contents—Work Endorsed by the First Presidency.

A most useful and comprehensive work has been compiled by Prof. Joseph B. Keeler of the Brigham Young university, and will appear some time early in the next month. A brief synopsis of its contents is herewith presented. It will be published by the Deseret News, and has been carefully inspected by competent authority in the Church. It is commended to the quorums of the Priesthood, classes in the Church schools, and the Latter-day Saints generally. The title is "Priesthood and Church Government." Following is an epitome of what the work contains:

Part I is an elementary treatise on the Lesser Priesthood. The subject matter is printed in logical and progressive order, yet the text is simple, and the language such that the young, especially those who hold the Aaronic Priesthood, may easily understand it. The aim has been to give clear cut notions. The subject is gradually unfolded, beginning with an explanation of the Aaronic Priesthood, its meaning and nature, its history from Moses to John the Baptist, and its restoration through Joseph Smith in our day.

A discussion of the offices, officers and office work of this Priesthood is taken up.

The powers, duties and responsibilities of the Deacon, Teacher, Priest and Bishop are explained in considerable detail.

Following each chapter is a carefully prepared review containing questions which are intended to draw out the student on a proper line of investigation and thought.

Extended references to the standard books of the Church and also other works, are given so that the student may get the views of many authors on the topics presented.

Programs are also furnished as a guide for quorums and classes that may be used.

The desire has been throughout to meet the needs of those who are working in the lesser office of the Priesthood by furnishing in an attractive form, information that bears directly on their everyday duties.

Part 2 is a short manual on Church Government, for chapters are devoted to the questions of government in general; the kinds of government; the powers of government; and the source of authority. There is a chapter on the Church and Kingdom of God, and one on the governmental divisions of stakes and wards. Then the subject of the Holy Priesthood is treated, which includes an analysis of the offices belonging to the Priesthood.

The election of a First Presidency is next taken up, with a brief account of how six presidents have been placed in office. Following this is an exposition of the general councils and quorums of the Church, commencing with the council of the First Presidency, followed by the council of the Twelve Apostles, the First Council of Seventy, the Second Council of Seventy, the presiding Bishopric; also the councils of a stake, with ward organizations and mission conferences.

Under the head of "Courts and Councils" of justice, the three classes of standing Church tribunals are explained, viz, the ward Bishop's court; the stake High Council, and the Council of the First Presidency. In the case of the Bishop's court, and the stake High Council, details relating to methods of procedure are set forth quite lengthily.

Considerable pains have been taken to secure a full and complete statement in all phases of the questions treated.

Part 3 aims to give in brief manner the governmental construction of the various Church chapters of education, the Church school, and the auxiliary organizations, with a brief history of their beginnings. Considerable is said about the officers of these organizations, how they are appointed, their powers and functions of office and the nature and scope of the work that is carried on through them.

Part 4 is a brief Concordance of the Doctrine and Covenants. There are upwards of two thousand references. The section, verse, and the page are given with each reference. The initial word and the abbreviations are printed in a clear, bold-faced type, which makes the key-word to the reference very easy to see at a glance.

Copies of the Concordance will probably be published separately.

It will doubtless have a tendency to awaken a greater interest in the reading of the Doctrine and Covenants.

In every respect it is a modern work so far as concordances go.

The work is published with the authorization and approval of the First Presidency.

While it was in preparation, the author received helpful suggestions from President Smith, President Lund, Apostle Clawson, Bishop Preston and others. He also has received valuable aid and assistance from Elder Charles W. Penrose of the "News," who was appointed critic of the work.

The work is convenient in size, and is an up-to-date text book.

It is printed by the Deseret News Publishing company, and will be for sale through the Deseret News Book store, and will be out about the first of August.

LOSING A FORTUNE.

Fate of the Reckless Spender.

The man who spends his entire income without regard to the inevitable outcome, is losing a fortune in two ways. He is not only squandering all his means, but is overlooking the opportunity of building up riches with his surplus, which, negatively, is losing a fortune. A stated amount out of a good income, if wisely invested, will make any man or woman wealthy. It is not necessary for a man to be financially independent to become an investor. The same privilege is open to men of moderate means, and if he will take advantage of it, the present will be happier and the future brighter. Six per cent is probably the highest rate of interest that can be secured in an investment that is absolutely safe. That is the amount that McGurkin & Co., the investment bankers, guarantee to their customers, who embrace men of wealth and people in all ordinary circumstances. No speculation enters into the transaction. It is purely a business proposition, with the double guarantee of absolute safety and a high rate of interest. Dollars soon become hundreds in an investment of this kind, and a man of good business judgment cannot afford to overlook this opportunity.

EGYPTIAN PALMIST.

PRINCESS PYTERLYNGERO was born at Alexandria, Egypt. She is recognized as the most wonderful palmist in the world. On her visit to Europe she gave readings that astonished the most enlightened and skeptical people of leading European cities. This wonderful Egyptian challenges any palmist in the world to compete with her. She does not charge to please a crowd, but she takes the hand just as it shows from the cradle to the grave, tells every person the plan of his life, his troubles, his lucky and unlucky planets, and what step in life to take to better themselves; also explains things which have also been a mystery to the business men who are best adapted for the names of friends or enemies. She tells the exact questions on your mind—when and whom you will marry—the name and day and hour; settles and explains every family trouble; predicts the future separated, etc. Why not see the best? It costs no more. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Call and consult free. All readings are strictly confidential.

Princess Pyterlyngero, the celebrated Egyptian palmist, will render her services absolutely free of charge to church entertainments or any benefits given for the poor, turning the gross receipts over to the fund.
