AMUSEMENTS. mmmmm

There was a decided improvement in the nitendance at the Theater last night, though the patronage is still far below what the high merits of the Neill company should warrant. Bronson Howard's "Aristocracy" has been done before in Salt Lake and that by an original Frohman company, but there were very few respects last night in which the Neill company did not equal dressing were in every respect equal, the gowns of the ladies being almost bewildering in their elegance. While bewildering in their elegance. While two or three of the players fell some-what short of the first presentation, the rendition as a whole was well nigh the rendition as a whole was well and up to the perfect line. The Jefferson Stockton of Mr. Neill, the Austrian prince of Mr. Howard, the Frenchman of Mr. McVicars, the Diana of Miss of Mr. McVicars, the Diana of Miss Chapman and the Englishman of Mr. Bloomquist were the best instances of Bloomquist were the nest instances of the acting. Miss Chapman doing the most effective work of her engagement in the role of the wife. Mr. Burton hardly had the "ton" and the aristo-cratic hauteur for an ideal member of the "400." Miss Dean and Miss Lamkin acted and looked charmingly. The third in which the struggle between the husband and the villain occurs, was excellently done and warmly applauded. The same bill went for a matinee yes-terday afternoon to a light attendance. terday afterneon to a light attendance.

This evening "An American Citizen"

Mansfield's great play, "A Parisian Romance," and the two closing performances will be given Saturday afternoon and evening, with "A Bachelor's Romance," in which Miss Dean has her best change. best chance. Mr. Weihe was warmly applauded for a charming violin solo rendered during the evening.

At the Grand there was an average house to see the stock company in the play of "Frou Frou." As this is a play in which the main weight falls upon the shoulders of the lady, general satisfac-tion was given, as Miss Mortimer is far and away the strongest member of the company. If she would provide some one more nearly her equal in ability among the male members, there would be a decided improvement. The main applause as before, was be-stowed upon the vaudeville features be-tween the acts; the darkey dancing was especially appreciated.
