SPANISH MAKE THEIR SELECTION OF MEN

Details of the Transfer Have Before and His Men Take Their Places with the Fleet.

Off Juragua, July 6, morning.—By the Associated Press dispatch boat to Port Antonio, Jamaica, and Kingston, July 6, 1898, by the Associated Press.—U. S. Kingston, Jamaica, July 7, 1:30 a.m.—Assistant Naval Constructor Richmond P. Hobson of the Battleship New York and the seven seamen who with him sunk the collier Merrimac into the channel of the harbor of Santiago de Cuba on July 3rd last, and took for them were exchanged by the Spanish military authorities in exchange for prisoners captured by the American forces. Hobson and his men were received aboard the American vessel by Captain Chadwick, of the New York. The exchange took place. Every step of their journey was marked by the wildest demonstrations on the part of the American soldiers, who threw aside all semblance of order, stormed out of the entrenchments, abandoned every duty and filled the camp pandemonium in the endeavor to see the returning heroes and cheer after cheer for the men who had passed safely through the jaws of death to serve their country.

The whole scene of enthusiasm was created when the arrival of the men at the hospital station and at the base at Juragua. Hobson, who reached there in advance of his companions, was taken on board the New York immediately on his arrival and was received with officers and men and enthusiastic cheers. He met and shook hands with the officers of the vessel with the utmost cordiality and then spoke with the seven men of his crew who were waiting on the decks of a more than a mile away.

Hobson had little to say in regard to his experiences except that he and his men had been well treated by the Spaniards and that they were all in excellent health. The Spanish authorities announced this morning in exchange Hobson and his men and a force was established for the purpose of effecting the exchange. The exchange was under a truce between the American and Spanish forces, the officials of a Spanish gunboat accompanied by Col. Wood's staff officer, met Gen. Wheeler's headquarters and in the presence of the officers of the two armies.

The American prisoners left the Reina Mercedes here and were taken to Santiago de Cuba, where they had been confined, it is the short, to be in charge of Lieut. Jose, a Spanish staff officer who speaks English perfectly. The prisoners were conducted to the meeting place on foot, and were not blindfolded.

Lieut. Hobson and Lieut. Miller, accompanied by Interpreter Morales, were in charge of the Spanish officials. They were escorted Lieut. Amelio Vaca, and Antonio, a German belonging to the Twenty-ninth regular regiment. Lieut. Vaca, who is a graduate of Annapolis, and Lieutenant Adolph Arce, of the 1st provisional regiment of Barcelona, one of the most cultivated officers of the Spanish army, commissioned officer and a private in the Spanish army, were in charge of the party. Lieut. Vaca was educated in the United States. Lieut. Arce was educated in Germany. He is a graduate of the military college of Toledo.

The meeting place was at the outpost of the Spanish line, about 10 minutes' walk from the Reina Mercedes. The prisoners were conducted to the meeting place on foot, and were not blindfolded.
