the unnamed exercise of arbitrary power.

The incorporation of small towns into citie-, with expensive governments and large powers, is pernicious. A bill to give inexpensive town governments and qualified powers, to be adopted by a vote of the people, would receive his hearty approval.

Also that he disapproved the bill incorporating the city of Silver Reef. From petitions he had personally received he was convinced that a majority of people in Silver Reef did not want the charter; but an inexpensive town bill with qualified powers, dependent on the vote of the people would be approved by him.

Also that he disapproved the general liquor bill on the ground that the second section of the bill was too cumbersome, as it contains the principle of license and local option, and requiring of the dealers in this trade bonds and requirements that
