

JUDGE DIEHL REVIEWS THE SEAMY SIDE OF LIFE.

The trial of Bertha Lenhart before Judge Diehl yesterday afternoon in police court brought out many amusing features. Mrs. Lenhart appears to have a grudge against Charles Larsen, a cook employed at the Exchange restaurant and hotel, and last Saturday she vented her spleen of his venom by abusing him and accusing him of dishonorable parentage. Lawrence Trice, proprietor of the restaurant and the employer of Larsen took up the case with the city attorney and had her haled before his honor to answer.

Trice, on the witness stand, related the following episode in about the following language:

"Mrs. Lenhart came into our place," said he, "and asked how we were getting along. 'Oh, pretty well,' I told her, and then she said, 'Well, you will get along all right as long as more don't go out your back door than you bring in the front.' I asked her to explain and then she said Larsen, the cook, was taking my hands out of the back door as fast as I brought them in. Just then Larsen came in and overheard our conversation and he chipped in. Then Mrs. Lenhart said, 'Oh, you dirty thief, you filthy dog, you liar, and a lot of other things that I cannot forget. Then Larsen says, 'That is not true.' And she called him some awful names that I don't like to repeat in this nice court."

Trice was pressed by Jim Smith, representing Mrs. Lenhart, to detail the conversation further, and coaxed out of him the statement that an allusion to Larsen's canine ancestry had figured in her conversation.

Mrs. Trice was drunk on an adjoining room as a witness and her testimony was in harmony with that of her husband. Pressed by Mr. Smith on cross-examination to go into detail, Mrs. Trice said, "Why, if I sat here all day I couldn't think of all the nasty words she used to say what she thought of Larsen."

Mrs. Lenhart was called.

"I doand use such language as dey sed I do. I naffer tell such a vord. I say to dis Larsen, 'You see, you drunkard! For vy did you steal of my hams? You dirty pup! Yes, I use dese language, but not dot odder vord. Dot ahndt my hapit. Such a vord for a lady to say!'"

Whereupon Mr. Smith rose and invoked the majesty of the law in his client's behalf. His words were in framing a motion for dismissal upon the ground that the words used by Mrs. Lenhart were not abusive and that the complaint lacked in technical detail.

Judge Diehl felt constrained to overrule the motion and the objections set out by Mr. Smith.

"If the language used by this defendant is not abusive, this court is at a loss to see what would constitute abuse," he asked. "How can I be sure of the many little affairs which come up every now and again. I cannot see that anyone has been injured, though Mrs. Lenhart certainly has been hurt. They were not polite. It is bad form, to say the least. She will be found guilty and discharged, but she is warned that if she has any particular disinclination to mingle with Mr. Larsen in an affable manner, she had best keep away from him."

The case of Abino Booth was called. He is charged by Adolph Myers with selling him some pigs that were unfit for food. The allegation of Myers is that the pigs became infested by myriads of larvae soon after they were purchased and that the aroma emanating from their proximity was not pleasing to the sensitive nostrils. Booth will claim that the place in which they were stored was unsanitary to an extreme one that a dignified live hog would not enter without a show of force—much less one in which the corpses of deceased porkers should be lying. The county attorney's office not being represented, the setting of the case for trial was left to counsel.

It is two years since W. H. Miller was arrested for being drunk—that is until Tuesday night. He was interrupted by Patrolman H. E. Smith, that time and after an interruption his troubles began. Miller rents a furnished room at Fourth South and State street and his landlord was away from home Tuesday evening. Miller in his inebriated condition sought a social chat with his landlord's wife. She objected. Miller skinned her with a doorknob and armed himself with a broom. With this he tried to batter the door down and succeeded in making a great noise. Pierce was attracted and Miller soon measured six feet along the hallway. The court called the two years' probation of Miller and discharged him with the admonition to go hence and return nevermore. And like Poe's Raven, quoth Miller, "Nevermore."

Alice Pink, charged with violating the license ordinance, and Mme. Ponty, charged with the same offense, were both discharged. Public Prosecutor Rogers explained to the court that these women had been conducting their

Miss Lillian Ross, 830 East 84th Street, New York, writes: "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured my irregularities, periodic suffering, and nervous headaches. After everything else had failed to help me, and I felt it a duty to let others know of it, I wrote to you. I am well, after suffering for months from nervous prostration."

Miss Marie Stolz, of Laurel, Ia., writes: "I was in a run-down condition and suffered from suppressed indigestion, and poor circulation. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me well and strong."

Miss Ellen M. Olson, of 417 N. East St., Kansas, Ill., writes: "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me of backache, sleeplessness, and established my periods, after the best local doctors had failed to help me."

H. E. Owen made the mistake of his life Tuesday night. He was very drunk—first time in two years. He was so drunk that he instinctively found his way to police headquarters. In a way that the desk sergeant, who found him out that his desire was to be locked up for five days. Joe thought that was a pretty good scheme and he turned him over to Jailer Wilkinson. With the coming of the dawn, the sight of life through a barred window was not to Owen's liking and he gave vent to many lamenting wails as he saw the cold, gray dawn of the morning from the damp little compartment that is dignified by the title of "Drunk House." With his steaming cup of coffee and bread at breakfast, Owen pleaded for his liberty. Before Judge Diehl yesterday afternoon he continued his plea and upon the uncertainty that it offered him, he said he last appeared on the mourners' bench, he was released and told to return not again. If he keeps his promise as well as he heeded the court's invitation to leave, he never will be back.

Frank Dailey sold some jewelry to a bartender. The bartender concluded soon after making his purchase that the value of the jewels was a debatable question and consultation with an authority convinced him that he had been deceived. The police, represented by Judge Diehl, was convinced. The upset of the whole affair is that Dailey will spend the next fortnight in jail, although he wanted to leave town.

J. W. Vere was drunk a year ago last spring and also Tuesday evening. Considering the infrequency of his inclination to indulge his appetite for stimulants, Judge Diehl discharged him, admonishing him to lend dignity to the court room by his presence no more.

S. Hunda and G. Makano, two subjects of the mikado, were caught in the net for the first time. They were drunk Tuesday night. Judge Diehl told them they could go, but sat down with a sigh and seemed willing to meet any fate, mattering not to him if they thought they were to return to the jail they had just left.

Dean Green drew head prize for having been away from court the longest time. Four years was his record. Drunkenness was the charge. His honor commented severely upon the showing of the man with the rhyming name and discharged him.

If Charles Shaeffer comes back to this city, he will carry off days with the city jailer. His sentence for vagrancy was pronounced yesterday afternoon just before Clerk Gutch folded up the docket and declared the daily grind of the mill of justice ended for the day.

After the dancing all were allowed to partake of a fruit supper, and all details carried out the idea of the festival. It took place in the Knights of Columbus hall.

JOHN DUBEL SUES.

Brings Action for Damages Claiming His Reputation Was Smirched.

John Dubel has filed an action in the Third district court against Samuel Glaser and others and the association doing business as the Huh Clothing Company, at 225 south Main street, asking for $10,000 damages and for an injunction restraining the defendants named by him from using his trade name or from injuring his business reputation. In his complaint the plaintiff charges the company with using his trade name without authority. He states that during his absence in Portland, Ore., on account of ill health, the Utah Credit Men's association made a pretended sale of his stock to the defendants, and that they are advertising throughout the city the impression that Dubel has failed, and that they have purchased his stock of goods at a greatly reduced figure and are therefore able to sell at greatly reduced prices. The plaintiff alleges that the defendants claim they purchased a $30,000 stock of goods for $15,000, whereas the stock received from Mr. Dubel was not in excess of $10,000 in value.

The plaintiff charges the defendants with fraud in that they brought in a much inferior stock of goods and attempted to make the public believe that was stock of the plaintiff. He claims that this has greatly injured his business reputation in Salt Lake, which he has been 18 years in building up.

ANOTHER UNHAPPY MARRIAGE.

Jessie Meiss, wife of George Meiss, has brought suit in the Third district court for separate maintenance, alleging that her husband has failed to support her for several years past. The plaintiff alleges that although Meiss is employed by the Utah Packing company at Bountiful and earns $120 per month he has failed to contribute to her support. It is also alleged by Mrs. Meiss that her husband has an ungovernable temper, and that shortly after their marriage, which took place at Cheyenne, Wyo., June 4, 1907, he began a course of cruel treatment toward her, frequently addressing plaintiff with opprobrious and insulting epithets, and she alleges his acts of cruelty have rendered it unsafe for her to continue living with him. She asks for $50 per month separate maintenance and suit money.

UTAH EXHIBIT AT SEATTLE.

Real Estate Men in Favor of the State Appropriating $25,000.

The Utah exhibit at the coming Yukon exposition was the topic of discussion at yesterday afternoon's luncheon of the real estate men at the Commercial club. "The sense of the meeting was that Utah should appropriate at least $25,000 to be used as actual exhibits, instead of wasted in a building that would be a dead loss at the close of the fair. E. L. Soule and T. R. Chandler were chosen members of the association, and B. A. M. Prosser related his experiences at the Irrigation Congress, stating that Salt Lake looked well in comparison with other cities he had visited. The association decided not to accept the invitation to join the national association at present as it could not be seen that any special advantage would come of it.

TAXES DUE NEXT MONTH.

Returns Are as Yet Decidedly Slow—Preparing for Big Rush.

Taxes become delinquent Nov. 1. According to the county treasurer only a very small percentage of the total taxes to be collected have been paid into the treasury. Of 30,000 notices sent out, only 5,700 have been heard from, and of a total of $229,000 taxes to be paid in only $12,500 has been received. Treasurer Groesbeck is preparing for the big rush which usually occurs in the first part of November at the tax window, but deprecates the fact that so many leave the payment of their taxes until so near the delinquency period as it requires additional help in the office, and it is difficult to handle the crush. If taxes are allowed to become delinquent an additional 25 cents is attached as penalty.

RAILROAD NEWS.

ANOTHER BIG MORTGAGE.

Western Pacific Now Has $10,000,000 Available for Completion of Line.

A copy of a big mortgage of the Western Pacific Railroad company for $25,000,000 in favor of the Central Trust company of New York was seen in the county recorder's office yesterday and it is expected will be filed today. Representatives of the Gould lines brought the mortgage to ascertain the cost of filing. They were told it would cost $142. The copy is a 95 page affair setting forth in detail 899 miles of rights of way of which 400 are in Nevada. Half of the total distance is already covered. Eighty pages of the book set forth the holdings and belongings of the new bond.

Something like $10,000,000 is immediately available for the completion of the Western Pacific. This snug sum was created by the filing of a new mortgage to protect its $150,000,000 bond issue authorized under the reorganization plans. J. F. Valle, general counsel for the Rio Grande and Gould's western bond arm generally returned to Denver from the east the first of the week with the announcement that about $5,000,000 has already been paid in to be used by builders of the Western Pacific. He is also authority for the statement that all Gould energy is being centered upon the building of the new Salt Lake-Ogden line, no improvements of consequence being planned for any other road. A total of $25,000,000 worth of bonds was set aside for the financing of the Salt Lake-Ogden extension.

Meetings were held in this city, Denver and eastern cities to ratify the consolidation of the Gould lines some weeks ago. I have brought copies of the conveyance and general mortgages and all other papers covering the general consolidation and these are now being filed in various counties affected.

Mr. Valle's name has been mentioned in connection with U. S. senate candidacy stories, but he tells the Denver newspapers he knows nothing of any reported candidacy and evidently avoids a discussion of the subject.

U. P. CUT-OFF OPENS NOV. 1.

November 1 is the date upon which the Union Pacific hopes to put the new line into operation. The new line, which is 12 miles distance, its construction has cost a million dollars and the money is held well spent. Those in charge of the work think November 1 is about 15 days too early as the possible date of completion. The cut-off starts three miles north of Carr, Colo., and runs for 12 miles west of Cheyenne. It eliminates the Athol hill grade, one of the hardest on the system, this being its purpose rather than the saving of distance, time and cost of operation. It will be of course, by the elimination of the climb.

I now take them as a tonic and they keep me strong and well." 50c at Z. C. M. I. drug store, 112-114 Main St.
