AND SHOOTING AND STOW AWAY.

Recalls the Finest Captain of the United States Vessel to Europe and Respect the Stars.

New York, March 11.—The American mail steamer Albatross, which was proceeding from Colon to New York on the night of a terrible storm, was overtaken by a Spanish schooner, which fired at her with a 4-inch gun, and then, when she did not sink, she fired a second shot, which was answered by the Albatross with a 4-inch gun. The Spanish schooner then fled, and the Albatross continued on her way. The incident has caused much excitement in the United States, and the Spanish government has been accused of cowardice. The Albatross is commanded by Captain J. M. Smith, who is a well-known seaman. The schooner was captured by the Albatross and taken to New York. The schooner was found to be carrying a large quantity of arms and ammunition, and several stowaways were also found on board.
