

ADVANCED WORK OF SUNDAY SCHOOL

Interesting Series of Lectures
Under the Direction of Dr.
James E. Talmage

SUBJECT, JESUS THE CHRIST.

Outlines Dealing With Different Phases of the Theme Under Consideration.

The general progress of the L. D. S. university Sunday school has been noted from time to time by the "News." In the advanced class conducted by Dr. J. E. Talmage, the life and work of Jesus is the subject of study for the current year, and the course of lectures is given under the title, "Jesus, the Christ." Each lecture is delivered according to a printed outline previously distributed. By request of a number of readers who live at a distance and who are therefore unable to attend the lectures, the "News" herewith presents such outlines as have been issued to date:

JESUS THE CHRIST.

1.—Introduction.—Birth, life, and death of the man, Jesus, are historical facts. Even details as to year and place of his birth are generally accepted, though minor disputes have arisen in this connection.

Influence of His life and teachings is likewise recognized, even by those who deny His divine origin and mission, and who profess to regard Him as only a man among men. His place as a great teacher, with a philosophy of life simple and profound, is widely appreciated. Mohammedanism and Jew, and even the skeptic and the atheist, extol the worth of both His precepts and example.

Note the reverence with which He has been and is regarded by many leaders among men, by poets, philosophers, scientists, and historians. Among such are: Kepler, Bacon, Newton, Shakespeare, Richter, Spinoza, Kant, Rousseau, Carlyle, Napoleon.

References.—For brief but excellent treatment of this topic with quotations from writings of authors named above, see "The Life and Works of Christ" by Cunningham Gekie, Vol. 1, chap. 1.

It is eminently proper that we, who belong to the Church to which He has given His name, should make a special study of His life and office. Our prime source of information will be the Holy Bible; but to this we shall add the other scriptures held by us to be sacred and authentic, viz. Book of Mormon, Doctrine and Covenants, and Pearl of Great Price. These constitute the standard works of the Church.

2.—His Names and Titles.—Note distinction between ordinary names and titles. Names given of God are likewise titles, and carry with them the authority they express. Hence names have been prescribed before birth. Examples.—Jehovah (Hebrew, "God hears him," Gen. 22: 13); John (Hebrew—"The gracious gift of God,"

TEA

Schilling's Best is the grade in which money goes farthest; most economical tea.

Your grocer returns your money if you don't like it.

Luke 1: 13; also Jesus (Greek and Hebrew—"Savior," Matt. 1: 21; Luke 1: 31).

Names have been changed by divine direction. Examples.—Abram to Abraham (latter meaning "Father of a great multitude," Gen. 17: 15); Sarai to Sarah ("Princess," Gen. 17: 15); Jacob to Israel ("A prince of God," also rendered, "A soldier of God," Gen. 32: 28; 33: 9). Simon to Peter or Cephas (Peter is Greek, Cephas is Aramaic in origin; each means "A rock," Matt. 16: 18; Luke 6: 14; John 1: 42).

"Jesus" is the natural or given name of the Savior, and as such spelled in Greek derivation; its Hebrew equivalent was Yehoshua or Yehoshua, as rendered in English, Joshua. By derivation the "Yeh" means "Help of Jehovah" or "Savior."

"Christ" is a sacred title, of Greek form and equivalent to the Hebrew "Messiah," or "Moshiach," signifying "The Anointed One" (John 1: 41; 4: 25). Other terms—"Immanuel," or "Emmanuel," of Hebrew derivation, signifying "God with us" (Isa. 7: 14; 8: 8; Matt. 1: 23).

"Jehovah," from the Hebrew Yahveh, or Yahveh, signifying "The self-existent one," or "I am," is the name of God in the original form, commonly translated in our English version of the Bible as "The Lord" (printed in small capitals). First occurs in Gen. 2: 4. See also Exodus 6: 2-4, and read for comparison Gen. 1: 1; 35: 11; Exodus 3: 14; John 8: 58.

"Jehovah," from the Hebrew Yahveh, or Yahveh, signifying "The self-existent one," or "I am," is the name of God in the original form, commonly translated in our English version of the Bible as "The Lord" (printed in small capitals). First occurs in Gen. 2: 4. See also Exodus 6: 2-4, and read for comparison Gen. 1: 1; 35: 11; Exodus 3: 14; John 8: 58.

"I am," is related to Yahveh, or Jehovah. Hence the significance of this name by which the Lord declared Himself to Moses. (Exo. 3: 14; compare Isa. 44: 6; John 8: 58; II Cor. 1: 20; Heb. 13: 8; Rev. 1: 4.) Essential feature in all these expressions is that of eternal duration or existence, associated with omnipotence. Compare further with Moses 1: 3; and the many references there given.

Jews regarded "Jehovah" as an ineffable name, not to be pronounced; they substituted for it the name Adonai. Original of "Lord" and "God" in Isa. 40: 10, and Dan. 3: 15, is "Adonai." If this name occurs in connection with "Jehovah" the Jewish rendering is Elohim.

The need of a Redeemer—Intelligent beings existed before the world was created. (Abraham 3: 21-23). Plans were laid in the Council in Heaven to provide an earthly habitation for these beings. The purpose was to prove them. (Abraham, 3: 24-26). Free agency is essential to such a test. This involves acquaintance with good and evil, right and wrong. By such experiences man may be fitted for exaltation and eternal life; to secure which for man is God's work and glory (Moses, 1: 39). Lucifer, a son of the morning, aspired to become the Redeemer; his proposal was rejected as the involving the destruction of man's agency. (Moses 4: 1; Abraham 3: 27, 28; Doc. and Cov. 29: 36, 37; 75: 25-27). Lucifer led a rebellion involving a third part of the hosts of heaven; they were cast out and became Satan and his angels. (II Peter 2: 4; Jude 6; Rev. 12: 7-9).

The offer of the Son of God to sacrifice Himself even to the death, and leave man free to accept or reject His mediation, giving all honor to the Father, was accepted. (Moses 4: 2, and foregoing references).

In accordance with this plan, man was created as an embodied spirit

(Gen. 1: 26-27; 2: 7; Moses 2: 26-27; 3: 7; Abraham 4: 26-27; 5: 7). He was given commandment and law (Gen. 1: 28-31; 2: 16, 17; Moses 2: 28, 31; 3: 16, 17; Abraham 4: 28-31; 5: 12, 13). He was free to obey or disobey. (Moses 3: 17 and all references there given). He disobeyed one of the commandments (Moses chap. 4, and all references there given). He did so deliberately and with knowledge. (I Tim. 2: 14; see also II Nephi 2: 25). This constitutes the Fall, which brought about the mortal state. (Gen. 2: 22-24; Moses 4: 1; Alma 42: 35; Doc. and Cov. 29: 40, 41). Rejecting follow. (Moses 5: 12-11).

Study "The Mediation and Atonement" chap. 11; and "The Articles of Faith," lecture 3.

Results of the Fall have been manifested in the posterity of Adam to the present day. A Redeemer is demanded by the law of eternal justice.

5. The Atonement.—The Fall and the Atonement are closely related; latter is a sequence of the former. Mortality is the heritage of Adam's posterity; redemption from the effects of the Fall is assured. (I Cor. 15: 21, 22; Moses 9: 9; Doc. and Cov. 76: 41-44). The word "atonement" means at-onement, denoting reconciliation.

Instances of vicarious service illustrated by scapegoat (Lev. 16: 20, 21) and altar victims of ancient Israel (Lev. 4; see also Moses 5: 5-8); baptism for the dead (I Cor. 15: 29); and modern temple ordinances (Doc. and Cov. 127: 129, 130).

For universal atonement the sacrifice of a sinless Being of infinite powers was necessary. Of this great sacrifice the offering of animals was a prototype and symbol (Moses 5: 7; Heb. 9: 12-15; 10: 10-15). As a propitiation for sin, only sacrifices involving the death of the victim were acceptable; the animal offered had to be clean, healthy, and without blemish.

Christ was the only Being eligible for this great mission.—(1) as the one sinless man; (2) as the only Begotten of the Father, thus combining the attributes of God and man; (3) as the one chosen and ordained for the work. (Read and compare Matt. 1: 21; 18: 11; John 1: 29; 4: 13; Rom. 8: 29; I Tim. 1: 15; 2: 5; 2 Nephi 25: 20; 31: 21; Mosiah 3: 12-15; 8: 1; 9: 31; Doc. and Cov. 18: 22-25; 74: 13).

His sacrifice was voluntary (John 5: 26, 27; 10: 17, 18; Matt. 26: 53, 54), and inspired by love (Luke 22: 34). The Father's love toward man is shown in His acceptance of the Son's sacrifice (John 3: 16, 17; John 4: 9). Christ's sufferings were real and terrible. (Luke 22: 41-44; compare John 12: 27; Doc. and Cov. 19: 16-19).

Effects of the atonement are twofold:—(1) Universal redemption from the death invoked by the fall (John 1: 28-29; I Cor. 15: 22; Rev. 20: 12, 13; Rom. 5: 18; I Tim. 2: 5, 6; I John 2: 2; Mosiah 4: 7). (2) Special or individual salvation, whereby means of relief from the effect of personal sins are provided. (Heb. 5: 9; Rom. 2: 6-11; Mark 16: 16; Mosiah 3: 11, 12; Moses 6: 61; Doc. and Cov. 76: 42; see further I Nephi 16: 5; 2 Nephi 29: 24; 2 Nephi 31: 6; 9: 6-8; Alma 22: 13, 14).

Resurrection of the dead is one of the effects of Christ's sacrifice. His was the first resurrection. (John 11: 25; Acts 26: 23; Col. 1: 18; Rev. 1: 5; Alma 11: 4, 42-44).

Christ Fore-ordained and Fore-Ordained.—Old Testament records were current among the Jews before Christ's birth; these contained many predictions concerning Him—Moses prophesied of Him—Deut. xlii: 15; compare with John 1: 45; Acts iii: 22; xli: 37; see also III Nephi xx: 24. The Psalmist sang of His coming—Psalm 69: 20; 23; compare with Matt. xxvii: 34; Mark 15: 23; John 19: 29; see also Psalm 118: 22, 23; compare with Matt. 21: 42; Mark xii: 10; Luke xx: 17; Acts i: 11; Eph. i: 20; I Peter ii: 4, 7; Psalm xlii: 15; compare with Matt. xxvii: 34; Mark 15: 24; Luke xxiv: 34; John xix: 24.

Isaiah so predicted—Isa. vii: 14; compare with Matt. 1: 23; Luke i: 31, 34; Isa. lxi: 2; compare with Matt. iv: 16;

Eph. v: 8, 14. A special prophecy concerning the place of His birth—Micah v: 2; compare with Matt. ii: 6; John vii: 42.

See further Zech. ix: 9; compare with Matt. 21: 4-11; John 12: 15.

Among predictions note: Lehi's Book of Mormon prophesies that, giving the time of Christ's birth; and of the work of John the Baptist (verses 7-10). Nephi spoke even more fully (I Nephi, chap. 11, 12). See also I Nephi 19: 10, in which Christ then unborn in the flesh is declared to be "the God of Abraham, and of Isaac and the God of Jacob," viz. the Jehovah of the Old Testament; it is He who was later crucified as the Redeemer. See also II Nephi ix: 5; x: 3; xxvi: 24; Mosiah iii: 5-10; iv: 2; xlii: 35-35; xvi: 9-13; Helaman xiv: 12; III Nephi i: 9-14; Ether iii: 14.

The mission of Christ was made known unto Moses, as shown by the revelations recorded in the Pearl of Great Price (see Moses 1: 6; iv: 1-3; vi: 52; and all references given in connection with these passages).

Many preceding passages show that Christ was chosen for His mission on earth, even before the beginning of human history. Note particularly Moses iv: 2 and vii: 29. See also I Peter 1: 20; compare with Romans iii: 25 and note marginal translation, "fore-ordained;" also Romans xvi: 25, 26; Eph. i: 5, 11; Colos. i: 26; II Tim. i: 9, 10; Titus i: 2, 3; Rev. xiii: 8.

Modern revelation declares Jesus to have been chosen and appointed before the worlds were made (Doc. and Cov. 76: 39). He is thus pre-eminently the Chosen, the Anointed, the Christ.

NEED WOMAN'S BUILDING.

Urgent Necessity as Part of U. of U. Institution.

An important discussion was that which took place at the Ladies' Literary club yesterday, when Mrs. W. R. Hutchinson of the education committee of the Utah Federation of Woman's clubs, spoke upon the urgent need of a woman's building as a part of the U. of U. institution. She told of the limitations forced upon girl students by the lack of such a building in the way of class room for special studies such as domestic science, and particularly of the need of a dormitory attached to the institution where young girl students from outside places could find suitable accommodation during the school year. Many other points in favor of the idea were advanced in the discussion, and the plan seemed to meet with great favor. Mrs. Hutchinson said that the women of the state had obtained a free kindergarten appropriation from the Legislature by their persistence and energy and she believed by a hearty cooperation they would be enabled to obtain a similar favor for the proposed
