LOGAN.

LOGAN, UTAH, - JULY 8, 1895.

The Fourth.

The celebration of the Fourth of July here, was the most successful ever held during the last few years. The two local companies N. G. U. took the matter in hand and with the aid of the merchants and citizens carried it to a successful issue. The parade was quite lengthy and four brass bands were interspersed along the line. The exercises of the day were held on the Tabernacle square, amid the grass and trees. In the evening the fireworks display was given on Main street in front of on the Temple hill, as has been the custom, and the wheel minus gave a lantern parade. The excursion presented quite a military appearance with its view while tents, stacks of arms and accoutrements and wheels scattered. A few arrests were made during the day for drunkenness, but no accidents occurring disturbed the equanimity of the peacefully disposed, and all enjoyed themselves.

Notes.

Charles Larsen and H. P. Hansen having indulged a superfluous quantity of ale eye on the Fourth, passed from the collection to the fighting stage in Wing Lee's restaurant, and proceeded to mix each other up. Larsen gratified chagrin was evened matters up by covering Larsen's cheek. It was going quite merrily when the police took a hand and stopped the performance.

Cache county, through the agency of its Farmers' associations, got out of its surplus wheat during the last week in June, just before the expiration of the special rate of 75 cents. Logan alone shipped 40,000 ounces, or 2,800,000 pounds, and every town along the railway has shipped its quota.

Seven thousand head of sheep now roaming between Logan canyon and the divide are to be taxed; time decided the county court at its last session, and the judge was instructed to call the attention of the assessor to the matter.

John Miles' sawmill, in the La Plata region of country, was entirely destroyed by fire on the Fourth. While the owners and all of his men were absent. The fellow turns out to be Erastus Christensen is envisaged in mystery.

H. H. Peterson, of Hyrum, escaped on a rocky mat and is suffering considerably in consequence.

Joseph E. Smith has been appointed by the U. S. Commission as registrar for Cache county.

Henry G. Heyball has been appointed deputy sheriff of Cache county.

LITERARY NOTE.

The Writer (Boston) for July is full of matter interesting and helpful to all who are engaged in literary work. "Leaving by the Fair" is the subject of a suggestive article, and there is an amusing story of "Some One's Way of Disposing of Odd Moss."

"Hep! Hep!" in Paris.

The anti-Semitic movement, which threatens such mischief in Vienna, has recently manifested itself in Paris. The Chamber of Deputies spent a day over an anti-Semitic interpellation, charges of a Jewish swamp who had been dismissed as delinquent from the office of departmental treasurer. Anti-Semitism in France is merely the cloak under which the socialist stalks his prey. In Roland the socialists do not seem to have discovered the possibility of exploiting race hatred and resistance cancer in the interests of a policy of plunder. But the anti-Semitic movement is nothing if not persistent in Europe, and it will before long take the steamer for Dover. Since the Barbieres failed the Jews are an opening. London Sunday Sun and who knows how long it will be before Mr. Hyndman or Mr. Ker Hardie discovers that the sacred cause of the disinherited people may consist the true step of the ancient cry, "Hep! Hep!" New York, 100, to last coming under the pecuniary dominance of the sons of Israel, but happily America has thus far escaped the disgrace of anti-Semitism as a movement.—July Review of Reviews.
