

MASS MEETING IS WELL ATTENDED

Resolutions Adopted Ask Secretary Root to See That Russian Refugees Are Protected.

MANY WARM SPEECHES GIVEN

Enthusiasm Calmed by Deliberate Words from Those Who Would Respect Treaties.

The mass meeting held last evening at the Salt Lake theater under the auspices of the Political Refugees' Defense league was very largely attended, and a number of rousing addresses were delivered. At the close of speaking, resolutions were adopted in line with the policy of the organization, that is, that this government should do everything in its power to protect refugees from being extradited from American shores for political reasons only.

The speakers of the evening were Bishop F. S. Spalding, Hon. B. H. Roberts, Rev. William Thurston Brown, Hon. E. M. Allison, Maj. M. A. Broeden and Atty. George M. Sullivan. There seemed to be little, if any, difference of opinion regarding the question as to whether or not this country should safeguard the rights and liberty of persons exiled for political reasons. A conflict of sentiment prevailed, however, as to the manner in which it should be done. Some speakers favored extreme measures on the part of the United States government in seeing to it that no man should be extradited from this country for a political offense, even if treaties had to be snarled in twain to prevent such occurrence. Against such procedure one speaker, Mr. Roberts, exclaimed in no uncertain tones. He called attention to the fact that treaties exist between this government and other nations that should be respected and lived up to so long as they remain in force.

TREATY WITH RUSSIA.

There is a treaty between the United States and Russia, the latter being the government most vigorously assailed by most speakers of the evening. Inasmuch as the resolutions were to be directed to the secretary of state, asking for his aid in the matter of protecting alien political refugees, Mr. Roberts contended that no demand should be made except that law and justice should prevail. He pointed out the fact that the treaty specifically provides that no surrender should be made by this government of persons whose only offense was political. The speaker believed in giving this class of exiles all the protection that could be lawfully and justly accorded, but he was not in favor of making this country a dumping ground for the criminal element of other nations.

Mr. Brown took exception to Mr. Roberts' address, taking it as being a reflection upon his own. From a seat he had taken in a box he accused Mr. Roberts of being ignorant of Russia, its politics, and challenged Mr. Roberts to a discussion of the subject. The sympathy of the audience was clearly with the temperate and moderate address of Mr. Roberts.

The meeting was presided over by Atty. George M. Meyer, and the resolutions, which had been read early in the evening by Dean Brewster, were unanimously adopted on motion of Henry W. Lawrence.

Last night's meeting was directly due to the fact that it is being made by the Russian government to extradite from this country Christian Rudewitz and Jan Pouren, who are accused of a series of crimes growing out of matters political. Among the accusations brought against the men are murder, arson, and robbery. The fugitives were arrested, one in New York and the other in Chicago, at the instigation of Russian spies. A United States commissioner has held that there is no probable cause for returning the men to the scene of their alleged wrongdoing.

THE TRUTH ABOUT KIDNEY TROUBLE

(SEDIMENT.)

Sediment that can be seen with the unaided eye is not usually an evidence of a serious stage of kidney disease. Neither is a cloudy appearance of the urine. Both of these symptoms are often found in people who are otherwise well, and they commonly disappear with the exciting cause. If the patient within a week or two of its discovery will diet, avoid colds and the carefully.

There are times in the lives of nearly all in which these symptoms have appeared and disappeared. It, however, they persist, it should be given thoughtful consideration in view of the declarations of medical writers that about the sixth month inflammation of the kidneys becomes chronic and is then incurable. The text books having no treatment that will ally inflammation of the kidneys, physicians prescribe a diet, and possibly an eliminant, and if early enough (but the likelihood is to be ineffective). But the new discovery, FULTON'S RENAL COMPOUND, the success of which is due to the fact that it is the first thing that will rid the kidneys of inflammation, is effective to rid the kidneys of inflammation in about 87 per cent of the cases in all stages.

ROD IN PICKLE FOR JEHUS.

Police Now Arresting Ambitious Drivers Who Exceed Speed Limit.

Mounted Patrolman Horace Heath started the ball rolling this morning following the orders of Chief of Police Barlow, to put a stop to fast and reckless driving over crossings and around street corners. He placed under arrest L. Shen, aged 19 years, a driver for the Naylor Bros. grocery store on Main street. According to Heath the youth was exceeding the speed limit over the intersection of Main and Second South streets. He was taken to police headquarters, his delivery wagon acting as patrol was gone, and looked for fast driving. He did not have $2 with him and was released until this afternoon, when he promised to bring in the bail for his appearance in court tomorrow afternoon.

About twice a year the police suddenly wake up to the fact that the ordinance against fast and reckless driving should be enforced, and they begin to round up the violators. Then in a few days it is forgotten again, and teamsters and auto drivers dash across the muddy streets, endangering life and limb, while policemen stand on the corners and talk politics.

NEWSPAPERMEN AS GUESTS.

Refusing Governor Entertains Men Whom He Met "On Building Run."

Notwithstanding all the social and official duties devolving upon ex-Governor John C. Cutler yesterday, he did not forget the newspaper reporters with whom he has been associated during his term of office, and his last social act of the evening was the entertainment of representatives from the local papers at a dinner served in one of the banquet rooms of the Commercial club.

Newspaper writers who have had occasion to come in contact with the office of the chief executive during his incumbency, have all recognized his sterling qualities as a man, although differing in many instances as to politics, and this has led to a warm personal regard for him. During the last courses of the dinner the governor entertained his guests with a description of many of the details of his early struggles, both in reaching Salt Lake, and after his arrival here, in the course of which he gave the younger men some splendid advice, which was all the more sincerely received because of the manifest sincerity with which it was given.

At the close of the entertainment the host, who was warmly seconded in his entertainment by Willard Done, then now his private secretary, shook hands warmly with all as he bade them good bye, the announcement having been made earlier in the evening that he with several members of his staff would be leaving the city for a stay of several months at their Los Angeles home.

WALLA WALLA RECEIVER.

Secretary of State Notified That Agents Cause Soliciting Business.

Secretary of State Tingley was in receipt of correspondence which proves conclusively that the published telegraphic statement of last Wednesday, to the effect that a receiver had been appointed for the conduct of the affairs of the Walla Walla Fire Insurance company, was correct.

The statement of the secretary of the company, O. P. Conway, and under date of Dec. 24, a letter to the secretary of state received this morning, states briefly that the company has been forced into the hands of a receiver, and that all agents in this state have been notified to cease soliciting business after the receipt of the letter.

The letter gives no possible clue to the reasons for the receivership. In response to a wire sent from the office of the secretary of state upon the publication of the dispatch referred to J. N. Shively, deputy insurance inspector of Washington, answers that a receiver has been appointed for the Walla Walla, and that he replied has been received from the company recently.

El H. Pierce, the local agent of the company here, when asked about the matter, stated that he had received no information which coincided with the letter and message received by the secretary of state, and that he was at a loss to account for the fact that there had been a receiver appointed, and that he had not received notification of the fact.

The last information he has received regarding the affairs of the company, is contained in a letter from the president, C. E. Holloway, which states that the company has been amalgamated with the Seattle company, and will hereafter be known as the American Home Fire Insurance company, with head offices in Seattle.

In speaking of the matter of the receivership this morning, Col. George B. Squires, who has charge of insurance matters in the office of the secretary of state, said: "I am at a loss to account for the fact that a receivership has been found necessary for the affairs of the Walla Walla company as it is a young company, and commenced business a comparatively short time ago with a rather heavy capital stock which was paid up and since then has received heavy additions of capital. I cannot understand how the company should have become involved to an extent making a receiver necessary in such a short length of time, when there have been no heavy losses against its risks."

THE ROUND OF THE THEATERS

HOME CLUB'S REAPPEARANCE.

Close to four hundred people, among them many of the regular first nighters at the Salt Lake theater, crowded into the hall last evening to witness the reappearance of the surviving members of the Home Dramatic club in a revival of one of the club's old-time successes, "Confusion." The evening was a series of surprises and evidences and if the action of the merry comedy was unduly prolonged, it was because the audience simply insisted in taking things into its own hands, and giving each of the five members of the club such a welcome that it temporarily halted the action of the play and visibly embarrassed more than one of the players.

The demonstrations began on the entrance of "Hild" Young, who came all the way from Canada after five years' absence, to join his old friends on the boards. For nearly a minute he was kept bowing to the tremendous plaudits from the front. Next came the favorite actress, Edith Clawson Knowlton, who also had a reception that must have earned her heart. Then followed John D. Spencer, the only one of the five who has "kept up his practice" before the foot-lights, and his reception showed that he had lost none of his popularity. Helmer M. Wells, who has twice filled the chair of governor of the state since he last appeared as a Thespian, next entered, and he also had to stand still and let things take their course in front until the audience was weary of his motion. Jones remains stamped on the memory of his friends, came in for as tremendous and prolonged a greeting as the others.

As far as the presentation was concerned, it can be truly said that these five "war horses" were all on their mettle, and played with as much ease, fervor, and earnestness as though they had doffed the sock and buskin last week instead of fifteen years ago. It is over twenty years since this special play was last rendered. Many in the audience who saw the original rendition, said it never went with greater smoothness than last night. After the play, a big sign of light in attendance remained to greet the players, and for half an hour or more, filled the hall with reminiscences, both amusing and affecting, of the old presentations, and of the dear departed ones whose talents have been a bright light on the club's old history. These included Lottie Clardige Young, Mrs. Birdie Clawson Wells, L. A. Cummings, and Charles Whitney, who were in the first presentation of "Confusion."

The five new members of the cast gave excellent accounts of themselves, and Miss Mae Alder, in the very responsible part of Lucretia, astonished even those who thought they knew her. Her "best" was one of the most difficult in the piece, and the way she acted it would have done credit to one who had been on the stage for years. Given Knowlton did the part of Maria very charmingly, and Elliott Clawson and Charles Whitney filled the roles of the youthful lovers with excellent taste; Will James made an unctuous Muzzle, and Baby Jensen acted as though it enjoyed the performance as much as anyone, while the pug drew the usual scenes of laughter.

The stage setting was a round of applause; the general direction was in the hands of Mr. H. G. Whitney, who managed the production the first night of its rendition, Jan. 1, 1886. A. H. Kirke, the original producer of the production, also volunteered his services for last night's revival.

The music of the evening was furnished by Mr. Spencer Clawson, Jr., and Miss Marybelle Kraft, who were heartily applauded for their several artistic renderings.

The final production of "Confusion" will be given tonight. All the proceeds from both presentations go to the fund of the erection of the hall.

THEATER.—The advance sale for Manager Pyper's next big attraction, "The Wolf," which appears Thursday night, is now going on at the boxoffice.

ORPHEUM.—It is rarely, indeed, even considering the high standard usually maintained at the Orpheum, that an evening's entertainment crowds so much of merit into the bill as is the rule this week. There are full and complete bill by comparison with the livelier turns, but the average is high. The Royal Italian quartet has no one to dispute its right to the big type in the program. As a musical number it stands out as the best offering that has appeared at the Orpheum for several months, if not for a season or more. Not far behind the quartet are the Four Orans with their new and novel, "On the Seashore." The act goes with a snap that makes things worth while. Miss Campbell and Mr. Yates and company, the "company" being no less persons than John Ruby, score with "Two Hundred Miles From Broadway." Frank Nelson and company offer a strikingly good playlet, "Thirty Dollars." As a character comedlan, Mr. Nelson is maintaining his edlan, Mr. Nelson is maintaining his enviable reputation as one of the "legits." The number offered by "Shivers," with the assistance of Arlie Nelson, who has been the star of the last evening, is clever and amusing. Staley and Birbeck's novelty transformation, with the musical blacksmiths is a new adaptation of an old vaudeville favorite, but it is quaint and pleasing. Jack Connelly and Miss Margaret Webb, are announced on the program for a "cyclone" of comedy, melody and action. In the event of similar cyclones, a storm cellar would be an eagerly sought retreat. The absence of "repeaters" was a welcome feature of the entertainment provided. The orchestra offered a program that was pleasing to a high degree and with the kindred mood wound up an evening of rare enjoyment for the seeker after vaudeville of merit.

COLONIAL.—After witnessing a performance of "The Devil" with its vicious suggestiveness and ugly situations, it is most refreshing to attend a performance of "The Flower of the Hunch," the bill at the handsome new playhouse this week. It was given last evening to a crowded house and seemed to meet with instant success. The play is a tragedy one of the great west and is presented in the nature of a musical melodrama.

The stage settings, depicting the old western scenes, when a trusty Colt was expected to make a rescue, for the play are beautiful and true to nature and the rising of the curtain on each of the scenes was the signal for prolonged applause.

A minor mistake or oversight in the name of "Little Flower" did not appear, but her name is Frankie Drew and to say she is a clever little actress, has a sweet voice and can dance is not counting to middle age, but pretty and carries out the role of a western girl to perfection.

Another member of the cast who is not featured, but who should be given a mention is that of the true friend of Hume, the comedian, who plays Shivers, a tenderfoot. Coar, as the schoolmaster is also deserving of special mention for her clever acting and singing.

The Jack Farnum of Frederick Knight, is done in fine style and his rich tenor voice is a leading feature in the excellent program. The chorus is not only the voices are as strong as they should be, though some of the members were suffering from hoarseness last evening. The same bill runs throughout the week with the usual matinees.

GRAND—"A Man Who Dared," the offering at the Grand for the first half of the week, is not up to the standard of the Scott company, though it must be said that the players get out of the piece about all there is in it, and succeed in giving a fairly good evening's entertainment. At last night's performance, interest centered for the most part about the vaudeville features, of which there were a number. The Skansen dancers and musicians, ten in number, pleased the audience, as did their dances and gymnastic feats, peculiar to their native Sweden. A series of motion pictures and specialties by members of the Scott company added materially to the entertainment.

Thursday afternoon the company gives a performance in honor of the old folks of the city, on which occasion the bill will be "Outwitted by Two." The evening play will be "East Lynne" and "East Lynne" will be presented Saturday matinee and evening.

THE LYCEUM.—A fair sized audience assembled at the Lyceum last evening to witness "The Farmer's Daughter," a pleasing little drama, full of sunshine and shadow, virtue and villainy, with enough of the true and national climaxes to stir to action the most sluggish blood. It embraces the happy home, the mortgaged farm, the stern father, the banished daughter, the black villain, the true friend, the return to the old home, the reconciliation, and final retribution. The play is interpreted by a capable company, and will run the remainder of the week. It is worthy of good patronage.

LYRIC.—The new program at the Lyric, drew a capacity house last evening and is bound to attract large crowds all the week, for no new program has been at a Salt Lake moving picture theater. Not only are the animated pictures shown this week interesting and of high class, but the new songs, Mr. Will Phillips, are catchy and pleasing. Mr. Phillips' tenor voice is one of the attractions at the Lyric. As to which picture is the feature this week is hard to tell. "Bondage" is a good number and so are "The Helping Hand," and "The Habits of the Tree Frog." Two other interesting pictures are "Sports from all the World," and "The Lyric promises for next week's bill the celebrated pictures which the Associated Press reported as having been shown at the White House a few days ago, and which President Roosevelt so highly praised. These pictures are entitled "The Wolf Hunt," "The Round Up," and "The Bank Robbery."

A very enjoyable evening was spent last night at the home of William Langston, who was surprised by a number of his employees and friends who descended upon him in a body. The occasion being his fifty-fifth birthday. The table was prettily decorated with a profusion of carnations and sweet peas, and toasts were given. A chief feature of the evening was the presentation of a handsome silver time by his son in behalf of his employees and friends as a token of their esteem.

The Daughters of Utah Pioneers will meet tomorrow at the Lion House at 3 o'clock and the topic will be "Pioneer Art and Artists." Among those who will discuss the subject are Mrs. Alice M. Horne and George M. Ottigier, the last to give personal reminiscences.

Mrs. Edwin S. Sheets and Mrs. Albert M. Merrill entertained New Year's night at their apartment at the Grand in Chicago, in honor of the Utah boys attending the University of Chicago. A delightful evening was spent and delicious refreshments were served by the hostess. Those enjoying the affair were A. C. Bowen, D. A. Glen, Alma Erickson, W. B. Sikes, Eph. E. Erickson, M. C. Harries, R. L. Judd, P. P. Peterson, Robert Marshall, D. L. Cooke, Elders Geddes and Banks, Mrs. Alice M. Merrill, and Bishop Edwin S. Sheets.

DISCUSSED BUILDING PLANS.

Manager Henry J. Wallace of E. Auerbach & Bro., returned last evening from New York, where he went to confer with the architect of the firm's proposed new building. Mr. Wallace says that preparations will begin in the spring, the plan being to erect the south half of the structure first; and when that is finished, the firm will occupy it while the north half is being built. In that way, the firm will be able to continue its business uninterrupted. This is the idea obtaining in eastern cities.

TRIBUNE ANNUAL EDITION.

The annual edition issued by the Salt Lake Tribune this year is numbered among the best turned out by that paper. The cover design, which is a happy effort on the part of Frank Ellis, is distinctly striking. Throughout the 100 pages there is evidence of careful attention to detail. Every branch of industry in Utah and surrounding states is fully covered and illustrated with well chosen pictures. The advertising also is an index to the state of prosperity in evidence throughout the west. Without being too hypercritical it might be suggested that two pages of editorial practically devoted to the Tribune's opinion and bitterness could have been dispensed with. With the exception of the editorial page, it is a good number which is a credit to the state and its progress.
