BANKS IN SOLID CONDITION

Steady Call for Money Tends to Stiffen Interest Rates-Reserves Are Higher.

Lecar banking conditions continue in a solid condition. The demand for money is strog in many lines of business, ovidencing a general desire for investment and confidence in return of satisfactory commercial conditions. Rates of interest remain the same, though with a tendency to stiffening on secount of the steady call for money, and men and institutions with money to lean are now well able to require gilt coged collateral. Bank reserves are higher, a condition that obtains pretty generally over the east,

In his last circular note received in this city, Henry Clews of New York ans this of interest to say:

"There is this much in favor of a betier market: The west is sound and enjoys a prosperity unknown here, thanks to a good harvest and profitable prices for all agricultural produsta.'

However, there is one great drawback operating not only here, but generally over the Union, viz., the falling off in railread net earnings. How long this will centinue to act as a disturbing feature can hardly be predicted with any degree of certainty. In the ab-sence of needed revenue roads are forced, to economize in all directions, found this communications. and this economy means curtailment of business everywhere, because rail-reads are the largest consumers in the reads are the largest consumers in the country of every class of made prod-uct. Then the revenues of the roads have been badly cut into by legislation, necessitating further economy, aban-doment of new work and shortening the purchase of supples. The rall-road situation is being noted with more of less anxiety by monied men-everywhere. everywhere.

LUMBER.

The lumber trade reports as to the new railroad tariff taking effect Oct. 15, that it is expected more or less lumber will now be moved through the Portland gateway, but at the same time the movement cannot be free be-cause of the scarcity of car equipment. What stocks to come may do so at tri-fling concessions are not likely to be of sufficient consequence to affect the of sufficient consequênce to affect the general level of the wholesale and re-tail lumber markets. In the next six anoths or a year there will be a larger field in which to buy. It is prob-able that this ferritory will not feel the effect of advancing prices, as much as it would if still confined to Portland and vicinity as a purchasing market. There will be keener competition in the wholesale trade as some of the large mills on the sound are now sending salesmen through this territory. To the retail trade there is a good deal of business being cleared up, and plans are under way for a number of build-ings requiring some little lumber. How-éver, a number of these buildings in prospect are likely to be changed to reinforced concrete, as this style of construction is receiving more consid-cration here than ever before.

In the testimony of Edward P. Moxey, a government bank examiner. it has been revealed that a person named Leslie E. Whiting had been one of the heaviest borrowers from the National Bank of North America, at one time owing the bank as much as $310,000 Hardly a week went by in the year of 1907, the testimony showed, that Whiting did not borrow $10,000, or more, giving ice stocks, principally, as security. It always appeared in the records, as presented, however, that the enormous sums of money borrowed by Whiting were credited to the ac-counts of Charles W. Morse. At the conclusion of Examiner Moxey's testimony Leslie Whiting was colled to the stand, and those in the courtroom, who had expected to see a dignified, shrewd-looking business man step forth, were astonished to see ; smcoth-cheeked boy of under 20 years walk nervously to the witness stand A soulle swept over the room, and Judge Hough rapped sharply for order. After Whiting had been made to de-scribe how he came to sign the notes which made him indebted to the bank for such large amounts, he was asked: 'Could you have paid this note l

The feature which proved of the greatest interest, and importances was the address of Col. George B. Squires It is regretable that all the life men in the state were not present to bear this talk, for the suggestions male were in the interest of every man in the business and coming at this time, on the eve of some definite legislation; every word emphasized the great need of co-operation and har-mony in the ranks of the life insurance men in the whole state in order that the law makers might be fully im-pressed with the need of certain laws. As a result of the Colonel's suggestions, plans were formulated for immediate steps along the line proposed and an early meeting of the legislative com-mittee will be held with a view of pro-posing a bill to be presented in the early part of the session.
