WOMAN'S WORLD.

Remove the kernels from one-half dozen ripe peaches and press through a sieve; put what you have thus obtained in a dish, adding one-half pound powdered sugar and whites of two eggs; beat for five minutes with egg beater; then take whites of five eggs and beat to a stiff froth; mix all together well; put on a dish and put in a hot oven for five or six minutes before serving; sprinkle powdered sugar on top; plums, bananas, apricots and other soft fruits can be served the same way; apple or other hard fruits to be cooked and then pressed through sieve, and treated like peaches.

When the paper hangers and painters have taken their departure, the housewife wakes up to the realization that a floor here, a table there, a chair on that side or a picture frame on that shows signs of hard usage which were not manifest before the house cleaning commenced. If she calls in the cabinet maker to repair these trifling damages the expense is heavier than she anticipates, but with the proper cleaning fluids, polishes and waxes, she can do wonders by herself or with the aid of her better half.

Enamelled and wicker furniture which has been varnished must be sandpapered before it can receive a new coat. There is no touching up spots on highly varnished surfaces of this sort. Here is the best method of preparing wicker furniture or enamel surfaces for a fresh coat of paint: Boiled water in which a little washing soda has been dissolved should be poured over and through the wicker work for ten minutes or longer. When this is dry, go over it with a flannel cloth wet in turpentine or naphtha, after which the wicker or chair must be allowed to remain in the air or where the air can reach it over night. Next day rub down with sandpaper.

Spots which have faded from wool surfaces through heat, light or the touch of alkalis can be brought back to their original color by rubbing gently with boiled linseed oil mixed with one-fourth of alcohol. Apply this mixture to the surface several times during the day with a small wad of cotton batting rolled in a square of old silk or linen.

To remove a dent from wood, cover with four thicknesses of wet paper and set a blazing hot iron on the paper for a minute, and if necessary repeat the steaming. Should the varnish be injured rub off with alcohol or naphtha and then revarnish.

A scratch which goes no deeper than the varnish may be healed by holding a red hot poker an inch above it for half a minute. When the place cools, rub it with a mixture of alcohol, olive oil and cedar waxer in equal quantities. This also makes a cheap and excellent furniture polish and will remove white spots from varnished furniture.

To remove a stain from a coarse cloth in hot water and sprinkle with pulverized borax. Rub the copper surface thoroughly by this and rinse in very hot water.

Marble statues should never be washed with soap. Instead dissolve a large lump of Spanish whiting and a teaspoonful of washing soda in enough water to moisten the whiting and from a paste. Rub this into the marble with a flannel cloth, and after an hour wash it off with warm water, dry well and polish.

To freshen up gilt frames, wipe with a cloth moistened in oil of turpentine and let the frame dry without rubbing. Or the frame may be carefully sanded and then washed with the whites of three eggs, into which an ounce of soda has been beaten. If the frame is nickel or silver the wood beneath, touch these spots up first with a good quality of gold paint.

If carpets are dull after the regular beating, go over the entire surface with oxgall or household ammonia, and water.

For polishing brass beds, there is no more reliable method than the old fashioned whiting, as with household ammonia, which is less apt to scratch than any of the patent sandpapers.

Creamed Pinman Huddle—Pour two eggs well beaten into a cup of milk and stir thoroughly. Have a cupful of picked pinman huddle browned in butter in a saucepan and turn the milk and egg mixture in. Thicken with a little flour and milk, season and serve hot with baked potatoes for breakfast.

Feather Drops—Beat three eggs with one cup of sugar, and when stiff and frothy stir into the mixture one heaping cup of sifted flour, in which has been mixed two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Drop in spoonfuls on a buttered tin, and bake in a quick oven. Any desired flavor may be added.

Chilled Bananas—Select firm, and large bananas, split open one side, and remove the pulp carefully; beat the pulp to a cream with chopped marshmallows, cherries (eight or ten will be enough), add four tablespoonfuls of sugar, a teaspoonful of lemon juice, and mix well together, taking care not to make the mixture too liquid. Fill the banana skins and place on ice.

Prune Cornstarch—Set a quart of milk over the fire in a double boiler; beat up two eggs with three tablespoonfuls of sugar, two of cornstarch, and make thin with a little milk. Add this to the milk, stir until it thickens; take from the fire, adding a little vanilla, and stir in some chopped prunes, which have been soaked over night. Stir well and pour into a mould to cool.

Salmon on toast—Place the contents of a can of salmon in a saucepan, and when hot stir into it a large piece of butter, a tablespoonful of flour and a little milk. Or, better, make it half cream and half milk, and allow the mixture to cook until smooth and about the consistency of a thick gravy. Have ready on a platter some slices of nicely toasted whole-wheat bread; season the sauce and turn over them.

Tartlets—Line fancy patty pans with a rich pie crust and bake, taking care that they do not brown. When cold, line with a coating of orange marmalade, and fill the centers with stiffly whipped cream. Drop a maraschino cherry on each.

Curry of Oysters—Brown a sliced onion in a little butter. Drain a pint of oysters; boil and a tablespoonful of flour, a teaspoonful of curry powder and a little salt and pepper in the butter, then turn in the oyster liquor and half a cupful of boiled rice. Brown the oysters on both sides, add to the sauce and serve.

The Floral Porch Party.

During the hot days, when active games are often out of the question, the hostess is frequently called upon for an enjoyable yet quiet way of entertaining friends. There is a fresh and attractive idea called bouquet building, which is admirable for porch parties and family affairs. It can be played by any number of persons, by either sex and any ages. The necessities for it are a dozen or more sheets of these paper, including all the printing and coloring, and a number of needles, thread and a couple of pairs of scissors.

Each player is told to choose, mentally, a flower—any well-known bloom—without mentioning the name of it to the company. He is then to endeavor to reproduce the bloom in tissue paper. Every player, whether he wishes or not, must make a flower, but the task can be simple or complicated, according to the choice he makes.

Twenty minutes are allowed for cutting, coloring, gluing and sewing the blossoms. At the end of twenty minutes there are collected by the hostess, who attaches to each a little tag having a number written upon it. Each flower-maker then receives pencil and paper, with a request that he write down the names of all the flowers represented, and if possible a poetical quotation regarding them. The hostess secures from each blossom the name of the flower intended and keeps these for reference.

Another twenty minutes is allowed for this work. The player who is successful in naming all or most of the blossoms is announced first prize winner. A second prize is in waiting for the girl or man who gave most quotations correctly.

A vote is then taken to decide which flower of all the bunch is cleverest in design and most accurately resembles nature.

If no little trinkets in floral pattern are at hand to serve as prizes, the flowers made by the different competitors can be divided into three large bunches, tied with appropriate ribbons and presented as trophies and souvenirs of the occasion. But if some little outlay can be made on the first, second and third prizes an amusing booby can be evolved by gathering all blossoms into one great bouquet. Then the presented to the booby winner in overwhelming magnificence.
