XLIX CONGRESS.

SENATE.

Investigating the Payne Case.

WASHINGTON, 21.—Van Wyck, in presenting another batch of Knights of Labor petitions in favor of the land bills and Oklahoma bill, read a letter from Joseph Beaumont, chairman of the Legislative Committee of Knights of Labor, by whom these petitions have been sent to so many Senators, stating in response to Senator Vest's remarks yesterday, that these petitions were genuine and were sent to him either directly or by the authority of persons purporting to have signed them; and, further, that they were expressly authorized and sanctioned by the grand executive board of the Order in the United States.

The Senate then at noon proceeded to the consideration of the report on the election of Senator Payne, and was addressed by Pugh in advocacy of the position taken by himself, Saulsbury, Vance and Eustis, to the effect that there had been no belief or suspicion on the part of any member of the committee to the effect that Payne was connected in the remotest degree by act or knowledge with anything wrong, criminal or immoral, in his election, and that no further investigation of the charges should be made.

Hoar addressed the Senate in support of the views of himself and Mr. Fry recommending an investigation of the charges. Such an investigation he argued was due to Senator Payne, because it could only make it appear that the suspicion which all the Senators were so eager to remove did not rest upon him personally, and ought not to rest on the friends nearest him or upon the State that had so honored him. The question before the Senate was not how a case should be decided, but only whether an inquiry should be instituted. One thing he supposed would be conceded by everybody, and that was that the power, whoever it be, which should make this inquiry, must be one that would compel the attendance of unwilling witnesses, and that had jurisdiction to hear and decide the case after the inquiry was made. As to the source of the charges, all that the Senate required was that the charge should come from individuals or from a body of sufficent weight to assure the Senate that the charge was not made lightly or without reason.

Logan took the floor to reply to the argument of Mr. Hoar and to sustain the views expressed in the report signed by himself and Messrs. Teller and Evarts. He was as ready now as any Senator, and ever had been, to expel a member if he felt justified in so voting, but if, as in this case, the Senate was appealed to in garbled statements, on garbled extracts, or the perversions of testimony to do injustice to a man or to his reputation, he (Logan) was not the man to do it. There were many considerations in the matter. While he might be appealed to on the one side for the benefit of his party associates to do an act which in his judgment was not warranted by the law or the facts, he was opposed to it on the other hand by the knowledge which he had of the honored age, of the honesty of purpose and of the fair character of Senator Payne. "I have been threatened and warned; but I would rather be right than have all the offices or compliments that could be bestowed upon me. [Applause.] There is not an office in the country that would make me do wrong to any man in the Senate for political purposes. I am the wrong man to be used for any such purpose. What is there in this case that should cause such charges to be made against Senators? I have never been very much alarmed at the attacks made upon me.

I have had quite a number of such attacks made, and care very little for them—but in order to show the intense feeling against certain individuals I propose to read what has been said about the republican senators by persons who claim to be the party. This does not seem to be an investigation of the senator from Ohio as much as it is an attack upon the republican senators. The first thing that was said after this decision was arrived at by the committee was a telegram to various newspapers all over the country that Logan had requested the committee to keep the vote secret. This went to a certain character of papers in this country. Why was that said about me? There is not a man on the face of God's earth who ever heard me request secrecy in relation to any act of a public character that I ever performed. The members of the committee know that that was a lie, and the chairman of the committee telegraphed through the Associated Press that there was no foundation at all for the statement. I would like to know why the statement was made? Why should I be singled out over the other senators and have suspicion cast upon me? It was done just as many things have been done since then. It seems to be thought that now is the time to kill off Republicans. God knows that I am too small a person for them to commence shooting at first. Why should I be killed off? I am not in the way of anybody. I am not a candidate for Ohio for any office, and I don't want to be a candidate for any office.

Why is it that they persistently attack, lone day Logan, the next day Evarts? And the next day after killing off these two men, they say now is the time for our hero. It seems, sir, that this is a part of a play, and the last part of the play is for the purpose of destroying, if possible, the Republicans in the Senate Chamber, instead of ousting the Senator from Ohio. Well, that is all right, I am ready to be destroyed. I am no help to anybody. It will not hurt anybody to kill me off—not the slightest. I have been killed off half a dozen times, and they may kill me again. It will not hurt me, and if it be a pleasure to other people, let them have their fun."

Referring to the attacks made upon him by the Commercial Gazette, Logan said: "The Cincinnati Gazette is a very influential paper, a very powerful paper. It is owned and edited, and has been for a long time, by a man by the name of Halstead. In the days of Abraham Lincoln, Halstead thought that Lincoln's head ought to be chucked against the wall and his brains knocked out, or something like that. That was a compliment to Lincoln. In 1863 Halstead thought that Grant was a drunken old loafer who ought to be kicked out of society. That was complimentary to Grant. I came to the Senate here almost accidentally, and the first thing I knew when I got here I picked up a Cincinnati Commercial one day and found five columns of that paper charging my friend from Ohio, who presides so honorably and fairly over this body, with all sorts of things. The next thing that I found in the Cincinnati Commercial was that James G. Blaine was a scoundrel, a thief and a villain, who should be executed at the nearest lamp post. I did not believe it about Blaine. I did not about Sherman. I did not believe it about Grant, and I did not believe it about Lincoln. I did not think that I was a big enough fellow ever to be attacked by the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, and I never dreamed of such a thing. But the other day I picked it up, and to my utter astonishment found my name mentioned in it in a complimentary way in connection with the names of the two other Senators, who are greater men than myself." Logan here quoted from the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette an article against himself and Senators Evarts and Teller, and speaking of Evarts as the representative of cotton in the Senate, and that as to Teller he wasn't worth talking about. The Presidental boom for the next campaign, the article continues, of the two distinguished Republican United States Senators, can now be quietly laid away to eternal rest.

"That," said Logan, addressing Evarts, means yourself and the Senator from Ohio—Sherman. [Laughter.] It cannot allude to anybody else. There is nobody else that is spoken of in that article who is an aspirant for an office of that kind." [Laughter.] His colleagues on the Presidential ticket had been the subject of that paper's fulminations every morning, as though Blaine had been a criminal and had been convicted of every crime in the decalogue. How was it now—now eulogy was the order of the day in that paper. He was glad of it. He was glad they had come to the conclusion that they were wrong and were now willing to do justice to Blaine. But it only proved that if the three republican Senators had submitted to dictation they would have received the eulogy of that gentleman. Murat Halstead, of Cincinnati, about the time that James A. Garfield (now dead and mourned by his country) was talked of around Chicago, was going around the hotels and other places attacking him."

In conclusion Logan said he had been actuated in this matter not by impulse, not by being aggrieved and not by the attacks, but by the calm, deliberate examination of the testimony and of the law in the case. He had done his duty and would stand by it for his action was right and just and proper. [Applause on the floor and in the galleries.]

Teller said he was not on trial. He had no defense to make neither to the people of Ohio nor any other State. The committee had kept steadily and truthfully in the line of precedents. There was not a single ruling of the body that would justify the position taken by the minority.

Teller was proceeding to analyse the testimony in the case, but gave way to a motion to adjourn holding the floor to conclude his remarks to-morrow.

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, 21.—The House went into committee of the whole on the Senate amendment to the river and harbor bill. The Senate bill was read at length, together with the amendment reported by the committee on commerce, which is to strike out all after the enacting clause, and insert the House bill. After a short debate, the House took a recess till 8 o'clock in the evening, the session to be for debate only, on the inter-State commerce bill.

The House at its evening session debated the inter-State commerce bill till 11 o'clock and adjourned.

THE ANARCHISTS.

The Men Were Working on the Bombs.

CHICAGO, 21.—Not a single dull moment elapsed during the afternoon. The judge, jury, lawyers and spectators were kept fixedly without the slightest relaxation at the same high tension to which they were raised when the day's exciting developments began in the early morning hours. A determined attempt was made by the defense to show that the bombs manufactured on the afternoon of the day on which the massacre occurred, had no necessary connection with the riot in the Haymarket. The witness was tangled up and made to answer more or less satisfactorily to the defense till the court decided that the attempt had proceeded far enough. A new line of queries was quickly substituted by Foster, the object being to impeach the credibility of Seliger and place him in as odious a light as possible before the jury. He was partly successful, though without affecting the weight of his testimony materially. Seliger told how upon being liberated by Captain Schaack, he and his wife went home together. Solomon, one of the attorneys for the defense, soon called on him. Salomon endeavored to induce him not to testify against the defendants, and to tell Captain Schaack that his previous statements could not be substantiated in court.

Mrs. Seliger was then placed on the witness stand and gave her testimony in a thin treble voice. She was very nervous and at times embarrassed, but displayed none of the craveneness that characterized her husband on the stand. Lingg, she said, came to board with them a few weeks before Christmas.

"Did you ever see any bombs in your house?" asked the State's attorney.

"Shortly before May I saw some as Lingg was about to hide them. There were about half a dozen lying in his bed which he wanted to hide. There were both long ones and round ones. Gas pipes and shells were there."

She had no talk with him then about the bombs. After Lingg left the house she did not see any more of them. On the night of the riot she heard people say that a bomb had fallen at the Haymarket. That day there were several men in the house, six or eight, perhaps, and maybe more. Among them were Huebner, Huenian, Thiels, Lingg and her husband. They were in the house until towards evening, coming and going all day. The men were working upon the bombs.

She did not pay particular attention, but remembered that Huenian was filing. Said Mrs. Seliger: "I was in the kitchen when supper was ready. I went to where the men were at work. I was so mad that I could throw them all out."

"Are you a Socialist, Mrs. Seliger?" interrogated the States Attorney.

"No" snapped the witness. "They are always scolding me. I frequently saw Lingg melting lead right on my cooking stove. Twice Huenish was with him and once Thiels and my husband. Lingg would say to me, 'Don't act so foolishly standing there, you might be doing something.'"

Witness saw Lingg the day after the bomb was thrown. He was at home in the forenoon.

"Have you ever seen this instrument?" said Grinnell, exhibiting the iron spoon into which the dynamite shell was fitted.

"Yes," was the reply, "Lingg was always casting with that."

Mrs. Seliger was cross-examined for the defense by Foster, who began by a bland smile, saying: "You have been looked upon with suspicion, on account of this bomb business, I believe, Mrs. Seliger?"

"Yes, I have been looked upon on account of that man Lingg," answered the witness sharply.

The lawyer was a little staggered, but recovered himself quickly and endeavored to show that the witness was actuated by spite against Lingg. The other questions were directed to ascertain whether the Seligers were in receipt of money from the police. The fact was brought out that since the riot Captain Schaak had paid her rent and given her barely enough to live on.

"How old is your husband, Mrs. Seliger?" casually asked Foster.

"Thirty-one."

"How old are you?"

The little woman winced, then flushed to the roots of her hair, and said: "I am forty."

Before Mrs. Seliger recovered from her confusion the attorney proposed the following:

"Immediately after the riot did not you and Mrs. Thiel agree that you would raise a purse of money for Lingg, to send him out of the country and then lay the whole bomb-making scheme on him?"

The witness denied having ever talked of such a proposition. She had a conversation with Mrs. Thiel at the time referred to, but nothing of the kind alleged was mentioned.

The hour to adjourn having arrived, the long session ended by the State's attorney handing to the jury for inspection an article which several of them had desired particularly to see. It was a murderous dirk, fashioned from a file, and taken from Fischer the day after the slaughter of the police at the Haymarket.

Conference of Charities and Corrections.

ST. PAUL, Minn., 21.—This is the last day's session of the National Conference of Charities and Corrections.

After the usual opening exercises Mrs. DeWitt Colby, of Beatrice, Nebraska, read a report on the causes of insanity. Overwork and the monotonous life among the rural districts is given as one cause. An institution started by women and run by her in Omaha, for the cure of the insane is in a prosperous condition.

Mrs. Helen M. Woods of Illinois offered a resolution making the age of consent in female children 15 years, and calling on the legislatures to incorporate it into a law, which was referred to the Business Committee.

Dr. A. W. Archibald of Dakota read a report of that Territory. He is superintendent of the North Dakota Hospital for the Insane. He said the general policy of the institution was to treat the inmates as human beings, and not as criminals.

A discussion as to the place for holding the next conference followed, and after a lively discussion Omaha was chosen.

A. O. Wright of Madison, Wisconsin, read a paper on the construction and management of small asylums for the chronic insane. He discussed the plans followed in erecting buildings and hospitals separate for sexes.

B. G. Richardson, superintendent of the Insane Asylum at Athens, Ohio, read a paper on "Functional Insanity."

In the afternoon the committee on organization reported the following officers and committees for the ensuing year, and the report was adopted:

President—Hon. H. H. Giles, Wisconsin.

Vice-Presidents—Rt. Rev. Geo. D. Gillespie, Rev. A. G. Byers, Ohio; Rev. S. H. Sonneschien, Missouri.

Secretaries—Rev. H. H. Hart, Minnesota; O. C. McCullough, Indiana; Mrs. O. C. Dinsmore, Nebraska.

Ex-President R. B. Hayes said that while the conference had no form of creed, its members had substantially agreed upon a number of points; they all agreed that State boards of charity ought to exist in every State and Territory; that there should be some women on such boards; that the members should serve without pay and have neither patronage nor executive power.

It was agreed that the existing county jail is an abomination to be changed or abolished altogether.

Other brief speeches were made and the conference adjourned sine die with singing "My country 'tis of thee," and the pronouncing of the benediction by Bishop Whipple. In all there have been 472 delegates in attendance.

Mexican Railway.

NEW YORK, 21.—The bondholders' committee of the Mexican National Railway to-day issued their plan of reorganization. It provides for an issue of $12,500,000 of prior lien bonds at 6 per cent., the proceeds of which are to be used in acquiring an equipment, paying the floating debts and completing the international line. The present first-mortgage bondholders will receive for each $1,000 bond one $500 bond, payable, if earned, with cumulative interest at 6 per cent., and one $500 bond non cumulative. The committee shall have power to make the constitution for any company that may be formed and issue stock or union securities as they see fit. The committee state that they have not been able to arrive at any agreement with Matthewson & Co., London, who purchased a million of the first mortgage bonds dated July 1st, 1882. Should the Matthewson plan not receive the assent of the majority of the bondholders within a reasonable time the securities will be returned.

Killed by Horse Thieves.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., 21.—Jas. C. Cook and Frederick Gebhartt, living in Montgomery County, were shot and killed by horse thieves Monday night, who were in the act of stealing the former's horses. The thieves, seven in number, escaped and are still at large. A posse is now in pursuit of them.

To Expel Jesuits.

LIMA, July 21.—At a meeting held here it was resolved to petition the Government to expel the Jesuits from the country. The feeling against this class is daily becoming more intense. El Commercia recommends the Government to take the matter in hand, as it is in a spirit of moderation and justice.

Destroyed by Fire.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 21.—The main building of the State Soldiers' Orphan's Home at Knightstown, was destroyed by fire this afternoon. No loss of life or injury to person occurred. The loss is about $90,000, on which there is $25,000 insurance.

PORTLAND, Oregon, July 21.—John West's sawmill at Westport, on the Lower Columbia, sixty miles below this city, was destroyed by fire last night, together with the steamer Westport, lying at the mill. Loss, $55,000 to $60,000; no insurance. Origin, sparks from a smoke stack.

Prohibitionists.

BURLINGTON, Vermont, July 21.—The Prohibitionists State Convention to-day put in nomination a full ticket with Professor H. M. Seeley at the head for governor.

The Governorship of Wyoming.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., 20.—Much interest is manifested in Wyoming Territory regarding the change soon to take place in the gubernatorial office here. There are several prominent candidates in the field, all of whom are residents of Wyoming. They are ex-Delegate Post and Captain Carter, of Cheyenne, Holliday, of Laramie, and Beck of Johnson County, the latter being a son of United States Senator Beck of Kentucky, and now on his way to Washington to press his claims.

The Leader, the oldest democratic paper in the Territory, will to-morrow say editorially on this subject: When the President comes to appoint a Governor for Wyoming, he need be at no loss as to whom to select, whether he consider the point of qualification or consult the wishes of the people. While there is nothing to be urged either personally or politically against any of the gentlemen mentioned in connection with the position, it is no disparagement to the best of them to say that his recommendations are not worthy of consideration in comparison with those of Morton E. Post. No person of either party is more widely known throughout the Territory or more highly esteemed.

Twice elected to Congress he served with ability and zeal and declined the unanimous nomination of his party for another term. If the governorship were elective, no other democrat would ever be thought of for the place, and political opposition itself would almost become a matter of form, for Mr. Post is universally popular and has won the confidence of all. He is thoroughly conversant with the wants of the Territory and familiar with the peculiar conditions of every part of it, besides possessing in a high degree all the essential requisites and qualifications necessary for acceptability, ably and impartially discharging the functions and the duties of the office. The democratic press of the Territory without an exception has favored his appointment, and with one exception does so still. They have never advocated any other candidate but have clearly pronounced for Post, upon every fit occasion. Upon one point all must agree—it is important that Wyoming should have a governor whose personal relations with the people would increase his influence and help him in the discharge of his duty and the maintenance of the dignity of his office. One who would be at once a patriot, a democrat and a man of business. Mr. Post is just such a man, and his appointment would be hailed with delight by his own party and received with satisfaction by the people, while it would tend to strengthen the cause of good government and promote the lasting welfare of the future State.

Burns's Editorial.

CINCINNATI, 21.—The Commercial Gazette in an editorial to-morrow, called forth by Logan's speech in the Senate to-day, will say: The speech will surprise all but his old friends. Those of us who knew him long and have been anxious for his sake many times know what would be likely to happen if he should attempt to address the Senate as a Senator and a gentleman. The consciousness of being a candidate for the Presidency has not improved Logan, and has caused excess of emotion and may impair his reserve forces.

The editorial further says: The Commercial Gazette gave Logan the first political boom he got by reporting his Carbondale speech and always defended him from the charges made by the Confederates.

Referring to the reviling Chase letter in the Senate, the editorial says: The writer of that letter does not plead youth or ignorance in its production, but it was not as many years before its date as Logan is older than the writer, that the scintillating liberality of the statesman of Illinois flashed in defense of the fugitive slave law and declaration of personal willingness to aid in the enforcement of its provisions.

The editorial is signed "M. H."

R. R. Accident.

NASHVILLE, 21.—Later information of the collision near New Columbia, shows that Engine 519 which was coming North exploded, throwing the tender 150 feet in the air in an opposite direction. Robertson was instantly killed by being disemboweled by a piece of iron. His watch was broken in two, and had stopped at 6:20. Section Foreman Thompson was not killed as supposed. The switchman's name is Whitemore. He was found with the flag in his hand, wedged between the locomotive and the side of the cut. Robertson got on the locomotive at Carter Creek, about twelve miles from the scene of the accident. The train was running at a speed of forty miles per hour at the time of the collision.

Heavy Rains.

GARDEN CITY, Kansas, 21.—Heavy rains fell during last night and this morning. The country in places is flooded, and a few bridges have been washed away, but the crops have not been damaged to any great extent. The rain has been general all over this part of the State, and is sufficient to insure good crops. Corn looks well. Wheat and oats are more than an average crop.

Revolutionary Movements in Mexico.

ST. LOUIS, 21.—A telegram from Matamoras, Mexico, to the Globe-Democrat: "It is reported here that Col. Hernandez has captured 15 revolutionists, among them their leader, Adolfo Gonzales, whom he had hung, but the report is not given much credence. Prisoners now here have not yet been shot."

Another dispatch from Santa Marina says Colonel Prapidis Carazos with 40 cavalrymen moved up the river to-day. A large force of government troops arrived at Solisno ranche yesterday. A force of cavalry is now after the revolutionists said to be at Realitos. Cavanos captured the revolutionist leader yesterday named Pedro Benito. News was brought in this morning that a party of bandits was being organized in this city and at Feres to take forces from this side to Mexico, and join the revolutionists there. Sheriff Bryto and his men are out looking for them.

CHICAGO, 21.—St. Louis 2, Chicago 6.

The New York and Philadelphia and the Brooklyn and Metropolitan games were postponed on account of rain.

Veterans.

CHICAGO, 21.—The Grand Army of veterans are on their way to the Pacific Coast. The national encampment organization will take place at San Francisco from August 3d to August 12th. The Illinois division will leave for the occident at noon on Sunday on a special train over the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad. The party will be in command of General Post, and will number about 250 veterans and their wives. General and Mrs. Logan will be among the number. A portion of the Michigan delegation has arrived in the city, and will be joined to-morrow by the remainder of the Wolverine division. At noon they will depart for the Golden Gate over the Rock Island. The delegation will number about 100 veterans. The New England delegation, numbering nearly 600 people will arrive in Chicago early Saturday morning, and will pass the day here. The New York, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia delegations passed through the city Tuesday.

Chess Tournament.

LONDON, 21.—At the chess tournament yesterday, Lipschuiz beat Burn, Zukertort beat Schallopp, Isaacson beat Mortimer and Bird beat Pollock. Gurnsburg and Mason and Mackenzie and Blackburn played draw games.

Horrible Projects Hatched.

The Standard says: The next extradition convention hardly justifies the interest with which its appearance was awaited. It fails to provide for the suppression of American societies in which horrible projects are hatched, and by whose support alone outrages in England are possible. Public opinion in Great Britain will certainly look to the American government for the suppression of so gross and palpable a conspiracy against the peace and property of a friendly nation.
