o work to lay out the city and estab-ish themselves. The town flourished and its fame went abroad and people of all classes flocked to it. The land was fruitful and everything grew in abundance and the prosperity of the Saints here was in striking contrast with the hard condition of the Saints

This prosperous community was broken up in 1857 when the people were called home. Johnson's army was then sationed at Fort Bridger and all the Saints were being called in. After the army returned to the states and no danger threatened, some of the peo-ple returned to San Bernardino, a few of whom are still living. But they are not so prosperous as they once were. There is a vast difference beween the ones who remained in Utah o help build up Zlon and those who re-urned. The few who are left seem to be an unhappy and suspicious lot without any real motive in life. But many of those who remained in Utah have become rich; they are happy and contented and their children are being The missionaries from Utah are all

About the only opposition the mis-sionaries meet with here comes from the members of the Josephite church. The city of San Bernardino has a population of about 9,000, and contains many benutiful residences. The Santa Fe railroad has its shops here when 500 men are employed. This serves t give the city life and activity. It is claimed that the largest engine in the world runs into San Bernardino. It is fifteen feet high and weighs 137

There are five other roads running into the city, one of which makes a cir-cle of the valley. On this road a lunatic asylum is located with 700 inmates, and an addition is being built for the accommodation of more. Insanity seems to flourish in this state for there are 13,000 lunatics within the borders of California.

A brass band has been organized among the inmates of the local asylum and so far as I am able to judge I could not see any difference between their band and that of professionals, The principal industry here is orange growing, which is very profitable. The value of the land in the orange district ranges from $500 to $1,500 per acre. At Riverside I was told that a ten acre crop brought $4,590 and the pur chaser, gathered it himself. Our old friend Dr. Tom. C. Hiff was here some time ago peddling his stat stock of falsehoods on the people. But another long-haired fake in of a tapeworm doctor struck the town and got the crowd and the money. The attack made by Dr. Hiff was answered by a Josephite Elder and also by on of our Elders, W. S. Geddes. Then had a chance to tell the people a fey facts in relation to Dr. Hiff's preach Ing in the barn of which he had much to say. Elder A. S. Tanner, Provo, also made a few pointed marks and the people seemed pleased with what we had said. Elder very highly thought of here and are often called upon to address the peo-ple.
