

regents of the state university; A. A. Reed of Boulder, and S. B. Sanborn of Greeley. The platform is confined almost exclusively to a consideration of the liquor question, no reference being made to silver or woman suffrage.

The Anaconda Standard says: Henry Clay Graves, a prominent business man of Bannock, was instantly killed Sunday afternoon by the accidental discharge of a shotgun, which he was carrying. Mr. Graves, in company with A. F. Graeter, was coming from Bannock to Dillon in a buggy, and when about ten miles from this place the gun, which was a short double-barreled gun, slipped out of the buggy and presumably the wheel struck the hammer, discharging one barrel, loaded with buckshot, the entire charge striking Mr. Graves in the left side, just above the hip. Mr. Graves pitched forward out of the buggy and was dead before Mr. Graeter could stop the team and get to his side.

Australian papers received at San Francisco on the steamer Alameda report the wreck of the schooner C. C. Funk, on Flanders' Island, on July 31st with ten of her crew, all of whom shipped on the well known coaster either there or in the north. Only two seamen, Albert Krugh and John Peterson, were saved, and but one body had been recovered when the Alameda sailed. It was that of Peter Neilson. The list of the drowned is as follows: Captain and Mrs. Nesson, and two children, aged 8 and 5 years, respectively. A. Hansen, chief mate. J. Stump, second mate. Charles Olsen, Peter Neilson, Charles Johansen and Peter Anton, able seamen. The vessel was driven ashore by a gale and went to pieces in the surf.

George Bowman, of Bridgeport, Conn., was murdered last winter during a terrible snow storm by a companion named Johnson of Springfield, Mass. He was almost in sight of the Golden Mecca when his strength failed him and he sank down in the soft snow. Johnson, who was the leader of the party, went back to him and with an oath blew out the unfortunate man's brains with a revolver. This is the terrible story that is told for the first time by J. C. Smiths, who has just returned from Alaska. His partner, Edward T. Calhoun, of Yonkers, N. Y., witnessed the terrible deed, which was committed near their cabin a short distance from Dawson. Calhoun, too, nearly lost his life from a bullet from Johnson's revolver. Nothing was ever heard of Johnson. It is presumed he perished in the snow storm while trying to escape.

Tuesday night's caucuses of the Tacoma Republican convention were not very productive of results. The King county delegation could not agree on a candidate for supreme judge and adjourned till morning. The northwest counties, constituting what is called the Northwest Combine, with ninety-six votes, did nothing beyond endorsing E. B. Blake of Port Townsend for temporary chairman. A resolution endorsing Blake was introduced at the King county caucus but it was withdrawn before action was taken. At midnight the contest for temporary chairman was between Blake and Flske. Cosgrove is in the lead for permanent chairman. Developments indicate that the congressional nominees will be Cushman and Jones. Fullerton is believed to be out of the woods in the race for one of the judges owing to the non-indorsement by King county of any one of its candidates. It is difficult to forecast the remaining judgeship. Judge H. C. Stratton of Seattle is considered a very promising dark horse.

OBITUARY NOTES.

MARY ANN LLOYD.

At Salt Lake City, September 12, 1898, in the sixty-third year of her age, Mrs. Mary Ann Lloyd, of North Ontario, Cal. Mrs. Lloyd arrived here on July 29th last to visit her three sons and other relatives residing here. Her sudden and unexpected demise was due to blood poisoning, the result of a slight injury to her hand, received about a week after her arrival here. While a stranger here, save to her immediate relatives, she will be kindly remembered by some of our people who have met her in her former home in Pennsylvania. She was a woman of sterling integrity and liberal views. As to religion she was a free will Baptist, but at all times allowed all the right to worship God as they thought best. Her three sons joined the Latter-day Saints in November, 1887. This she did not object to, but defended them when persecuted and defamed by others for their religious views.

She was a faithful wife and loving mother. She died as she had lived, a firm believer in Jesus Christ and in a glorious resurrection. Three sons, one daughter and nineteen grandchildren survive her.—[Com.]

PHOEBE BEAGLE RODEBACK.

Another of the aged pioneers of Utah, Mrs. Phoebe Beagle Rodeback, has gone to her heavenly home. She passed away yesterday, at 11 p.m., at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Rebecca Cook, of Cedar Valley, Utah. Loving hands administered to her in her last illness, but to no avail, the time of her residence on earth was over. Mrs. Rodeback was the widow of the late James Rodeback, and was born in Chester County, Pa., June 25th, 1811. Her exact age at the time of her death was 87 years, 2 months and 23 days. In 1839 she became a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, and in 1841 removed to Nauvoo, where she resided during the troublous times there, being well acquainted with the Prophet Joseph Smith. With her husband and six children she came to Utah in 1852 in Uriah Curtis' company. True to the Gospel she remained a faithful Latter-day Saint until the end came and fully earned a great reward in heaven. Always loving, gentle and good and so unselfish, caring only for the wants and happiness of others. She was loved and esteemed by all who knew her and her loss will be mourned by hosts of friends.

Funeral services will be held in the Cedar Fort school house, Monday, at 10 a. m. All friends are invited to attend.

Mrs. Rodeback leaves three sons and three daughters, thirty-five grandchildren and thirteen great-grandchildren.—[Com.]

EMMA WITHAM MEMMOTT.

Emma Witham Memmott, beloved wife of Thomas Memmott, died at Scipio September 9, 1898, after an illness of several months' duration. Deceased was born at Ecclesfield, Yorkshire, England, April 27, 1836; baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in 1852 by Elder Henry Roper; emigrated to Zion in 1861 with her two children in company with her husband's father and family, leaving her husband to follow the next year.

Sister Memmott was a true Latter-day Saint, a faithful and devoted wife, a kind and loving mother, and died in full faith of the Gospel and in the hope of a glorious resurrection. She leaves a husband, seven sons, one daughter and numerous grandchildren and a host of friends to mourn her departure. Deceased took part in the settling and building up of Round Valley (now Scipio), and Deseret, and shared in the trials and hardships of those early days, which she did without mummur or complaint, being of a sweet and contented disposition.

Funeral services were held at the Scipio meeting house on the afternoon of Sunday, September 11, 1898. It was a beautiful and imposing sight which met the gaze of the writer, as the procession started from the late residence of the beloved deceased sister. The casket was tenderly borne by six stalwart sons, followed by the Relief Society (of whom the deceased was the treasurer), her sorrowing husband and children and scores of sympathizing friends. At the meeting house consoling and appropriate remarks were made by Elders Henry Roper (who baptized the deceased 46 years ago), Daniel Thompson of the Stake presidency, Counselor Peter Nielson, Elder Sidney Peeples and Bishop Thomas Yates. Expressions of sympathy were also tendered from the Sunday school and ward choir, of which organizations Elder Memmott is the superintendent and leader respectively. The singing was appropriate and beautifully rendered by the large choir, with Sister Rilla Wasden as organist. At the graveyard the dedicatory prayer was offered by Counselor William I. Hatch, after the hymn, "Farewell all Earthly Honors," had been sung by the choir. A large cortege, numbering 32 vehicles followed the remains to their last resting place.
